MANY SEEK RELIEF BY SPENDING NIGHT OUT UNDER STARS

Forecasters Say Torrid Wave That Has Gripped Nation for Four Days Will Continue Over Week End; Records Fall

ROOSEVELT LEAVES HUMID WASHINGTON

Flood Waters Force 100 From Homes at Belle Fourche, S. D.; New York Reports 31 Dead.

By the Associated Press.
Thousands of Americans fled to beaches, mountains and woods yesterday to escape the scourge of oppressive heat.
Perspiring forecasters spurred the hebra by predicting the hot pall that has covered over most of the nation for four days would hold sway through the week end.
Newly reported fatalities increased the death toll to 164.

CRAZY WITH HEAT?
SCIENTIST SAYS "NO"
LINCOLN, Neb., July 10.—(AP)—Crazy with the heat? Nothing to it, says Dr. D. G. Griffiths, superintendent of the State Hospital for the Insane.
"There is no basis for the belief that the hot weather causes mental disorders in greater numbers than the moderate or cool seasons."

of rising air, warm and moist, might cause local thunderstorms at many points but they would bring little relief to the 90 and 100-degree swelterbelt stretching from the western plains to the Atlantic seaboard.
President Roosevelt left humid Washington for a "working cruise" aboard the presidential yacht Potomac in Chesapeake bay. Legions of city dwellers hurried to resorts, picnic groves, rivers, lakes and the ocean. Hundreds of the folks they left behind crowded parks—many to spend the sultry night on blankets under the stars.
Wilted residents of New York city watched the mercury rise again to the season's record mark, 95.1 degrees, but slightly cooler conditions were promised the up-state sector.
Storms Kill Two.
Storms left two dead in the Detroit area but the temperature resumed its rise after reaching 87 at noon.
Newark suffered 98-degree heat. A reading of 94 at Marinette, Wis., was the highest of the year. The summer peak of 97 was equalled at Winona, Minn. Nashville's 91 was the top for the week.
Officials estimated 150,000 Chicagoans sought respite on Lake Michigan's shore. The maximum there was 89 but the relative humidity, 70, was 15 points higher.

Navy Fliers Scan Islands In Vain Search for Amelia

Without Clues and Virtually Without Hope Colorado's Airmen Fly Over Four Tiny Islands Comprising Phoenix Group; Lexington Is Due Monday.

HONOLULU, July 10.—(AP)—Holding little hope for rescue of Amelia Earhart, navy fliers from the battleship Colorado scanned the Phoenix islands today while the aircraft carrier Lexington with 300 aviators hurried on for a "last chance" survey of the south Pacific area where she disappeared eight days ago.
Without clues and virtually without hope that aviation's first lady and her navigator, Frederick J. Noonan, would be found, the Colorado's airmen pointed their three catapult planes toward the main Phoenix group, tiny bits of land.
The Lexington planned to reach the search area by Monday morning and naval authorities said she might unleash her entire brood of 62 fighting planes at once.
Capable of covering 60,000 square miles daily, this great air armada was expected to bring the hunt to a swift conclusion.
George Palmer Putnam, husband of the missing aviatrix, arranged to quit his long vigil beside coast guard and naval radio operators in San Francisco and leave for his North Hollywood home.
Putnam said he had not given up hope for the world girl who disappeared on a 2,570-mile flight from Lae, New Guinea, to Howland island.
"It's just that I feel there is nothing more that I can do here," he said. "Miss Earhart's mother (Mrs. Amy Earhart) is at my home," he added, "and I thought I should be with her."
The Colorado's aviators, empty-handed after three days of flying over the island group designated as the most likely place to search, undertook a broad survey of four or five small dots of reef-encircled land southeast of Howland island.
The great hunt first embraced 104,000 square miles of sea north and west of Howland but switched to the Phoenix area on the belief of naval authorities that wind conditions and unidentified radio signals pointed to the south and east of Howland.

HUNDREDS CUT OFF BY SUDDEN FLOOD IN 'SOCIETY' HOTEL

500 Automobiles Are Abandoned as 6 Feet of Water Covers Highway.

WHEELING, W. Va., July 10.—(AP)—Torrential rains and high winds struck the Wheeling area today, wrecked homes, flooded business districts, paralyzed traffic and marooned hundreds.
More than 500 automobiles were abandoned on U. S. Route 40 east of Elm Grove, it was reported.
The highway was under from four to six feet of water.
A tourist camp on the highway just east of Elm Grove was completely washed out.
In the same sector more than 100 yards of Baltimore and Ohio railroad track were washed out. A Pittsburgh-Wheeling train, due in Wheeling at 7 p. m. (Atlanta time), was halted outside the city.
A railroad bridge and a highway bridge were reported swept away by the surging, rain-swollen Wheeling creek.
Many narrow escapes from death were reported, but there was no known loss of life. Telephone communication in the district was almost entirely cut off.
Mother, Children Trapped.
A mother and her two children were trapped in the second floor of their house as the plunging, powerful flood water tore it from its base, and carried it downstream.
The three climbed out on a second-story porch. The house hit a wooden pier, the porch snapped.

Gershwin Reported Near Death; 'Phone Plea Made to Specialist

LOS ANGELES, July 10.—(AP)—George Gershwin, noted composer, was reported near death of a brain tumor tonight by hospital attendants.
He had been under treatment in the hospital (Cedars of Lebanon) before, but had been released a few days ago. As he grew worse today, several local brain specialists were summoned and an attempt made to reach Dr. Walter Dandy, eastern specialist reported cruising on Chesapeake bay.
Coast guard officials contacted Dandy by telephone at Cambridge, Md., after he had landed from the Maryland state yacht DuPont on which he was cruising in Chesapeake bay with Governor Nice.
The message transmitted to the coast guard shortly before midnight appealed to Dandy to telephone Gershwin's home immediately.
They said Dandy gave no indi-

CHINESE DIVISIONS MOVE NORTHWARD

Chiang Kai-shek Orders Powerful Air Force To Mobilize; Tokyo Army Head Silent on Plans.

PEIPING, July 11.—(Sunday) (AP)—Troop trains carrying units of Japan's powerful Manchurian army were reported rolling toward the North China trouble zone today as Chinese and Japanese forces resumed their bitter, intermittent warfare.
They clashed again yesterday and last night along the Yungting river about 10 miles west of Peiping, ending a precarious 36-hour truce. Although fighting ceased shortly before midnight it was expected to be resumed at daybreak.
The Japanese asserted they won the opening combat of the renewed conflict, capturing Lungwang-miao (temple of the dragon king) on the east side of the Yungting river about a half mile north of Marco Polo bridge.
It was near this beautiful 900-foot marble span that the original conflict began Wednesday night, when units of Japan's North China garrison on night maneuvers clashed with soldiers of the Chinese 29th army.
The first phase was ended by an armistice Friday, by which the Japanese withdrew to the east of the Yungting and the Chinese to the west.
Japanese declared the Chinese along the Yungting opened fire on them at 7:20 p. m. Saturday. The Japanese took up the challenge and seized Lungwangmiao after two hours' brisk fighting. They said their casualties were heavier than in the earlier phase of the battle.

FAYETTE COUNTY IN AWARDS DRIVE

Many Improvements Are Initiated by Progressive Leaders of State Unit.

By FRANKLIN P. GILSTRAP.
FAYETTEVILLE, Ga., July 10.—Under the inspiration of The Atlanta Constitution's $7,500 Progressive Awards, Fayette county has become one of the most progressive and aggressive counties of Georgia.
While some of the improvements may have come as a matter of course, many of them have been initiated and spurred because county commissioners and citizens realized that the awards program is designed to bring improvements and to provide new conveniences.
Co-operation Cited.
Never before in Fayette county has there been such a spirit of co-operation between urban and rural communities and never before has there been such a spirit of co-operation between citizens and officials.
The newly-organized Fayette County Chamber of Commerce, headed by Charles E. Bell, who also is county agent, is devoting itself vigorously to a program intended to aid farmers of Fayette and to bring new industries into the county.
For the first time in the history of the county, a paved road is now open. It extends from near Jonesboro to Fayetteville, and even now the road, Route No. 85, is being surveyed with the intention of extending it into Warm Springs and thus taking 15 miles off the present road.

In Midst of Battling $50,000 Downtown Blaze

The Barrett Food Products Company sustained a loss of upwards of $50,000 early Saturday afternoon when its Marietta street plant was destroyed by fire. Nearly 130 employees escaped unhurt. This photo, taken from the rear of the burning structure, shows firemen playing several streams of water on the blazing building.

$50,000 FIRE HITS DOWNTOWN PLANT

Flames Rake Marietta Street Foods Products Unit; None Is Injured.

Fed by inflammable salad oil and grease, a spectacular fire yesterday afternoon swept the two-story brick building occupied by the Barrett Food Products Company, 444 Marietta street, doing an estimated $50,000 damage.
Firemen battled the flames over an hour before the fire was apparently subdued only to break out again briefly a few minutes later in the right rear side of the building.
Approximately 130 employees, for the most part women, escaped the burning building uninjured as they fled out the plant in orderly fashion within a few minutes. However, practically all of them lost their street clothes as employees work in uniform.
Flames were first seen issuing from a large vent leading upward through the building from three cooking pots on the first floor. Q. J. Greenway, foreman of the potato chip department and discoverer of the fire, called the fire department and ordered fire doors closed.

Church at Conyers Burns on Revival Eve

Fire supposedly caused by defective wires totally destroyed the Conyers Baptist church at Conyers, Ga., last night, resulting in damages estimated at $15,000.
The fire broke out about 10 o'clock and had gained such headway before being discovered that the local fire department was unable to do more than check its spread.
The interior of the church had only recently been renovated in preparation for a week-long revival which was scheduled to have opened this morning. The Rev. W. H. Reed, pastor of the Sylvan Hills Baptist church, Atlanta, was to have conducted the meetings.
According to church officials, the damage was partially covered by insurance, estimated at $4,000.

Ball's Ferry Bridge Letting Will Be Followed by 'Cade

Savannah-Macon Cavalcade To Mark Culmination of 18-Year Fight.

The culmination of the 18-year fight for construction of the Ball's Ferry bridge across the Oconee river, contract for which is to be let on August 10, will be celebrated with a motorcade from Savannah to Macon two days later, Charles D. Rountree, editor of the Wrightsville Headlight, said yesterday.
Ball's Ferry bridge became prominent about two years ago when former Governor Talmadge and federal officials engaged in a bitter controversy over the project.
Congressman Carl Vinson, of the sixth Georgia district, was accused by Talmadge of holding up $17,000,000 in federal funds because the Talmadge-appointed highway board refused to approve construction of the Ball's Ferry bridge. After considerable wrangling, the federal government set Government Army Reported in Full Flight From Brunete, 15 Miles Away and in Desperate Plight on Ussera Sector.

FRANCE TO OPEN SPANISH FRONTIER

Ultimatum for Italo-German Co-operation in Keeping Aid From Soldiers Effective Tuesday.

HENDAYE, Franco-Spanish Frontier, July 10.—(AP)—Insurgent field commanders reported tonight the government offensive against the Madrid siege was smashed. The republic's army, they said, "suffered a great disaster."
Official communiques asserted 3,000 of General Jose Miaja's Central Front government troops were killed and 6,000 wounded when insurgents counter-attacked near Brunete, about 15 miles west of Madrid.
The government army was reported in flight from Brunete and in a desperate plight on the Ussera front, on Madrid's southwestern edge, after an attack by 20,000 troops collapsed.
300 Planes in Attack.
Insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco hurled the whole weight of his aerial forces in the drive to smash the five-day-old offensive. He sent 150 tri-motored bombing planes and 150 machine-gunning pursuit ships staffing Madrid defenders.
His lieutenants said a tank-protected army of 30,000 government soldiers was suffering "astronomical" losses under a terrific bombardment from the sky.
Reds Claim Victory.
(The government defense ministry, however, reported insurgent counter-attacks were repulsed on the Brunete front and its forces had penetrated deeper to the rear of the siege lines.)
(Official communiques reported capture of large stores of war materials and heavy insurgent casualties against few government losses. One company of "Fascist infantry," it was said, surrendered in a body and there were numerous other desertions.)
(A telegram from Teruel front, northwest of Valencia, said government forces occupied the outskirts of Castillo De Albarraza.

PARTY CHALLENGED TO OUST SENATOR FOR COURT STAND

Nevada Solon Carries Fight Against Compromise Court Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(AP)—Senator McCarran, Democrat, Nevada, challenged the Democratic leadership today to throw him out of the party for opposing the Roosevelt court bill.

Carrying on the opposition attack against the compromise judicial reorganization bill in senate debate, the stolid Nevada senator said he did not believe that such a step was the intent of those in charge of the administration measure, but that if it was, he would "rather go down" than return to the senate.

Nevada's Three Votes. He bluntly warned his party that the day "may come" when the three electoral votes from Nevada may be needed to "save the Democratic party."

The opposition group for which he spoke held a slim margin in the neck-and-neck race for publicly committed senate votes. Forty senators have announced they will fight the administration compromise; 39 openly have pledged support.

McCarran stood, for his speech, in the same spot from which Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, opened the opposition fight on the bill yesterday, just a few feet away from Democratic Leader Robinson, who sat listening intently, half turned around to face the Nevada senator.

Galleries Are Crowded. The galleries again were crowded, but the Boy Scouts who have attended previous sessions this week were missing. White summer clothes gave evidence of the burning summer heat outside the chamber.

Probably because it was Saturday, there were less senators on the floor than in the previous debates, but it was an unusually full attendance for a Saturday session. McCarran spoke bitterly of a published statement attributed to Postmaster General Farley to the effect that when the Nevada senator wanted something for his state, he would have a different viewpoint of the court plan.

GOVERNOR REVIEWS STATE'S NEW DEAL

Michigan Chieftain Says Pledge Has Been Kept.

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich., July 10.—(UP)—Governor Frank Murphy tonight told state Democratic chieftains that his "new deal" for Michigan has kept its pledge.

The first six months of his strike-beset administration has produced "the most notable contribution to the cause of social justice ever accomplished by a government of Michigan," he told the Democratic state central committee and other party leaders.

The leaders unanimously endorsed Murphy's labor policies and promised to support his program for civil service and revision of the unemployment compensation act.

TAMPA WPA STRIKE GETS LITTLE RESPONSE

TAMPA, Fla., July 10.—(AP)—The Saturday holiday in the WPA work week found relative quiet here today in the attempt of leaders of the Workers' Alliance—the WPA union—to call a general strike of about 2,000 relief workers on projects in the Tampa area.

While Frank P. Ingram, state WPA director, warned that further strike attempts would jeopardize the entire WPA activity in Hillsborough county, E. F. Poulnot, state president of the Workers' Alliance, said the general strike call would be pushed Monday when work is resumed.

Arrested Hitch Hiker Has 8 Purses and $430

CLARKSVILLE, Ark., July 10.—(AP)—State Trooper O. E. Bowden got a big surprise today when he arrested a man booked as Floyd W. Ferguson, Orlando, Fla., on a charge of violating Arkansas' new anti-hitch-hiking law.

The man thumbing Bowden for a ride and got it—to jail here. When the trooper searched Ferguson he found eight pockets containing a total of $430.

"I knew I had some money but didn't know how much because I hadn't counted it lately," the prisoner explained. "I'm not going anywhere—just taking in the sights in Arkansas."

Harry B. Baylor, of 211 Peachtree Battle avenue, has been elected a director of the Fulton National Bank, R. G. Clay, president, announced yesterday.

Mr. Baylor, a native of Atlanta, began his business career with the Armour Fertilizer Works, and later became manager of the Macon Fertilizer Works. He remained there several years.

In 1913, he became manager of the International Agricultural Corporation, and was made sales manager in 1915. In 1927 he was elected to the vice presidency, and was placed in charge of sales for the United States and Canada.

Mr. Baylor is also a director of the National Fertilizer Association.

ALEXANDER MEYER, 20, WAITS CHAIR MONDAY

ROCKVIEW PENITENTIARY, BELLEFONTE, Pa., July 10.—(UP)—Alexander Meyer, 20, penitent and resigned, waited in his cell tonight for death in the electric chair for the confessed crime of running down with a truck a 16-year-old schoolgirl so he could attack her.

Under heavy guard, he was brought here late today from Chester county to die early Monday for the slaying of Helen Moyer, whose nude body he threw into a well February 11 near Coatesville, Pa.

EARLY COMPLETION OF UNDERPASS SEEN

North Side Structure May Be Ready in Month, Contractors Say.

Completion of the North Side underpass within a month was foreseen yesterday by contractors and state highway engineers.

Opening of North Side drive under the Southern railway track near Fourteenth street will provide a new traffic artery to North Side residential sections. The project is a part of the new highway being constructed between Atlanta and Marietta to handle heavy north and southbound traffic.

Engineers said pouring the concrete for the north deck of the underpass and paving a 25-foot stretch under the bridge is all that remain to be done. Pouring will begin Tuesday but the concrete must settle for about 20 days before tracks of the Southern railway can be laid across it. The south deck has been finished and two lines of the Southern laid across it.

Paving of the short stretch of North Side drive under the bridge will be started by the contractors simultaneously with the deck construction, and will be completed by the time the deck has settled. Approaches to the underpass have already been constructed.

The underpass work was started about a year ago with the aid of federal money. Contracts for the work were let by the State Highway Department, whose engineers supervise the project. Its cost will approximate $135,000, contractors said.

FREUD IS STRICKEN ILL WITH HEART AILMENT

VIENNA, July 10.—(AP)—Dr. Sigmund Freud, famed psychoanalyst, is ill with a heart affliction, his physician announced tonight.

Dr. Freud was 81 on May 6. His theory that nervous troubles and worries are attributable to sexual impulses and civilization's restraints is known throughout the world.

FLORIDA AIR COMPANY WILL EXTEND SERVICE

TAMPA, Fla., July 10.—(AP)—Officials of National Air Lines were preparing today for an extension of mail and passenger services from Florida's west coast to Miami next week. The tentative date for the start of this service is July 15.

The line now operates from St. Petersburg to Jacksonville by way of Tampa, Lakeland, Orlando and Daytona Beach, with one trip each way daily.

Underpass at Northside Drive Said Near Completion

Construction work on the Northside drive underpass will be completed within a month, engineers announced yesterday. Here is a view of the underpass under the Southern railway which when opened will provide a convenient artery from downtown Atlanta to north side residential sections. Completion of a deck and paving a 25-foot stretch under the bridge are all that remain to be done. The project cost $135,000.

Hospitals and Churches Benefit Under Will of Late Dr. Dunbar Roy

The extensive medical library of the late Dr. C. Dunbar Roy, Atlanta physician who died July 5 at the age of 70, will be given to the Emory University medical school, according to the terms of his will, filed for probate in the county ordinary's office yesterday.

Included in the internationally known physician's will are several bequests to Atlanta churches and other institutions, as well as to his personal friends. Other Books Bequeathed. Dr. Roy's general library is left to the library of St. Joseph's infirmary in Atlanta. To the University hospital at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville, where he studied medicine, Dr. Roy leaves his medical instruments.

A bequest of $3,000 was made to Dr. William Goldsmith, 683 Peachtree, N. E., of whom he speaks as "my beloved friend." Another bequest of $500 was made to his secretary, Miss Margaret Pierce. The remainder of his estate is left in trust by the Citizens & Southern National Bank for the benefit of his widow, Mrs. Carrie E. Roy. There are also money bequests to other relatives and friends.

A codicil attached to the will provides that his furniture, antiques and portraits shall be given to the Home for Needy Confederate Women at Richmond, Va. He requests that his most intimate personal possessions be distributed among his closest friends. Division Provided. Dr. Roy in his will also provided for the division of his estate after the death of Mrs. Roy in bequests of money to various institutions. Three $5,000 bequests are made to All Saints Episcopal church in Atlanta, the Appleton Church Home in Macon, and to the Home for Old Women in Atlanta. He also directs that after the death of his wife a memorial window to his wife and to himself be built in All Saints church, the cost of which is to be determined by the executors of the will. A final bequest of $2,000 is made to Miss Katherine Wood, deaconess of All Saints church. Dr. Roy in his will appoints John M. Slaton, former Governor of Georgia and now a practicing attorney, whom he describes as "my lifelong friend," special legal advisor to executors of the will.

Wellesley Graduate Returns to Organizing Job at Tupelo, Miss.

TUPELO, Miss., July 10.—(UP)—An attractive 28-year-old Wellesley graduate who prefers social work to Memphis society tonight ignored threats of violence and remained in the "milltown" section of this small city from which anti-unionists twice had evicted her.

The young woman is Ida Sledge, organizer for the Committee for Industrial Organization's International Ladies Garment Workers' Union. Fifteen of the city's "leading businessmen" last night drove her and two companion organizers in taxicabs to Pontotoc, Miss., 20 miles distant.

The trio was back two hours later.

Leaders in last night's "escort party" still were highly antagonistic. They had not indicated, however, they would attempt to evict Miss Sledge a third time, using "more drastic" methods.

Three weeks ago, 150 women workers in one of the mills Miss Sledge was attempting to organize escorted her and another woman union representative to the city limits.

There was no violence during either of the evictions.

STATE BODY ORDERS POWER RATE CUT IN SOUTH GEORGIA

Residential customers of the Georgia Power and Light Company in 37 south Georgia cities will be saved an estimated $18,000 annually by a rate reduction the State Public Service Commission ordered yesterday.

Negotiations toward a possible reduction in commercial rates of the same company were continued until October 15 to allow the company to propose "one meter" charges.

Agreement Reached.

In announcing the reduction Chairman Jud P. Wilhoit, of the commission, said the company agreed to the rate order after having been cited to show cause why charges should not be cut.

Smaller residential consumers, Wilhoit said, will save approximately $3 a year, with those using more than 200 KWH monthly effecting a larger saving.

The new rates will become effective when the company renders bills in September for power consumed in August.

The old and new rate schedules are:

Current	Old	New
First 25 KWH	7.5 cents	6.5 cents
Next 25 KWH	5.0	5.0
Next 140 KWH	3.0	3.0
Over 200 KWH	2.0	1.5

Towns Served.

DISTRICT EXPORTS INCREASE $254,599

Georgia Customs Area Also Reports Greater Volume of Imports.

Exports from the Georgia customs district for the month of April were $2,009,166 as compared to $1,790,012 for the same period of 1936. This figure is an increase of $254,599 over March, according to information made public yesterday by the Atlanta office of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Imports for consumption were valued at $2,453,589, against $1,553,404 for April, 1936.

Textile fiber and manufactures exports ranked first on the export list. They were valued at $805,630. Vegetable products, inedible, followed with a valuation of $529,864. The principal item in this group was naval stores, valued at $486,319.

Exports of other groups in order of importance were metals, manufactures, wood, paper, machinery, vegetable food products, beverages, non-metallic minerals, animals and animal products.

NEGRO THUG STABS MAN AT OWN DOOR

William F. Shirley Is Admitted to Grady in 'Dying Condition.'

Stabbed in the back by a negro holdup man as he ran up the steps to his home, William F. Shirley, 52, of 217 Pine street, was admitted to Grady hospital about 11:45 o'clock last night in what physicians termed "a dying condition."

A switch blade knife buried up to the hilt in the man's back was removed by doctors with great difficulty.

Mrs. J. T. Barnett, of 213 Pine street, told police she heard Shirley scream in front of her house and saw two negroes marching him down the street, one holding a knife to his back. She called police.

Police said as Shirley reached the walk to his house, he made a dash for the front door and one of the negroes followed him, stabbing him as he reached the steps. Officers J. M. Jones and Ed Mashburn answered the call.

Police were unable to learn if Shirley had been robbed.

PIONEER RESIDENT, J. S. OWENS, DIES

East Point Resident, 80, Long in Poor Health.

J. S. Owens, 80-year-old pioneer resident of this section, died Friday night at his residence at 205 Dorsey avenue, East Point. He had been in bad health for some time.

Funeral services will be from the First Baptist church, East Point, at 2 o'clock this afternoon, with the Rev. W. A. Duncan officiating. His body will lie in state in the church from 1 o'clock until the services are read. Burial will be in Crestlawn cemetery, under the direction of A. C. Hemperley & Sons.

Survivors are his wife; a daughter, Miss Nora Owens, of East Point; three sons, H. L. and J. H. Owens, of East Point, and Charles E. Owens, of Sacramento, Cal.; a brother, W. B. Owens, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; and a sister, Mrs. Haley McGee, of Carryville, Tenn.

MOONEY SATISFIED, AUTHORITIES SAY

Prison Board Denies Charges of Cruel Punishment.

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., July 10.—(UP)—The state prison board today issued a statement denying that Thomas J. Mooney, serving a term for the San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing, had been subjected to "cruel punishment."

The board also denied allegations that he had not been given treatment for stomach ulcers while in prison.

The board asserted that Mooney himself said he was "perfectly satisfied" with the way he was being treated in prison. Dr. L. L. Stanley, prison physician, concurred in the statement.

TWO LEGION POSTS SELECT OFFICERS

Trammell Scott, Marion L. Boswell Are Elected to Commanderships.

New officers for two local American Legion posts were elected at recent meetings of Fulton County Post No. 134 and Atlanta Post No. 1. The latter post already has installed.

Legionnaires Trammell Scott and Jackson Dick were elected commander and senior vice commander of Fulton County Post No. 134 and Harry F. Dobbs was elected junior vice commander; Julian Salles, Roy Collier and Colonel Arthur N. Pasker were elected to vacancies on the executive committee.

Retiring officers were Homer Thompson, commander; Roy Collier, senior vice commander; Alex Hitz, adjutant, was appointed to succeed himself.

Stanley Jones, state adjutant, and recently appointed Georgia service officer, gave a resume of activities of the state convention in Albany. Rean Raimundo de Ovieta talked on the effect of the strike situation on this section.

Members of Atlanta Post No. 1 elected Marion L. Boswell commander for the year. He was installed at the same meeting.

Other officers who were installed were J. Walter LeCraw, senior vice commander; Gladstone Pitt, junior vice commander; Ralph L. Willner, adjutant; Ben C. Hogue, historian; the Rev. H. H. Dillard, chaplain; Theodore M. Butler, finance officer; Frank A. Holden, judge advocate; Allen L. Henson, service officer, and Robert M. Baldwin, sergeant-at-arms.

Those were chosen to succeed Commander Henry H. Green, Senior Vice Commander Boswell, Junior Vice Commander Gladstone Pitt and Adjutant Marvin W. Medlock.

CIVITANS' FROLIC PLANNED AT CAMP

Club Annual Outing Will Be Held Tuesday.

Members of the Civitan Club, families and friends will hold their annual outing at Camp Civitania, the Girl Scout camp, 12 miles from Atlanta on Bankhead highway, Tuesday.

A water carnival staged by the Girl Scouts will be the opening number on the program. Visitors will be led over the grounds by competent guides, according to L. F. Wynne, chairman of the Girl Scout committee.

The picnic supper will be followed by a program in the open-air theater.

Hotel, Restaurant Strike in Paris Paralyzes Major Establishments

Disorders Mark Visits of Roving Bands Calling on Workers to Come Out; Americans Stick to Hostelry, Doing Own Cooking, Making Own Beds.

PARIS, July 10.—(AP)—Outbreaks of violence tonight accompanied the spread of a strike by hotel, restaurant and cafe workers demanding an unconditional five-day week.

A dozen of the largest Paris hotels and more than a hundred cafes and restaurants were strike-bound when committees of three affiliated unions called their workers out except in establishments already on a 40-hour, five-day week.

One big boulevard hotel said most of its guests left when the strike was declared. Its American guests, however, preferred to stay even though they had to prepare their own meals and make up their own rooms. Kitchens were turned over to them and the hotel managerial staff left fresh linen at their doors.

One big Champs Elysee cafe kept running despite the strike, staffed by its manager and hat check girl. Sidewalk tables were deserted and its few patrons sat discreetly inside.

Most of the disorders were created when roving squadrons of strikers attempted to call out employees of eating places that remained open although listed on the strike roll.

Emergency police squads restored order in one cafe after an employee was injured and mobile squads were stationed near the large hotels and cafe-lined boulevards.

Twenty strikers smashed bottles and hurled chairs in a restaurant in the financial district until police squads ejected them. They returned with reinforcements but police blocked the entrances.

The employers' syndicate warned they would try to offset the strike by shutting their doors rather than modify the general accord of July 2, reached through government mediation, which established an approximate five-and-a-half-day-week.

There will be no more rain to bring 'mountain temperatures' to Atlanta tonight for several days, the bureau said. A high of 94 degrees was forecast today, with a low of 72.

Thermometer readings yesterday ranged from 71 to 93 degrees, while at Candler field they reached 94. Authorities are expecting the mercury to soar to 95 degrees at the airport today.

MINISTER IS ARRESTED ON GIRL, 15, CHARGE

MONROE, La., July 10.—(AP)—A minister was under arrest here today on the charge of living carnally with a 15-year-old farm girl, and the girl's sweetheart was held for attempting to blackmail the preacher. Bond had not yet been set for them.

District Attorney Frank J. Hawthorne said the Rev. George A. Dierlamm, about 55, confessed the girl had lived with him for about a year until she left his home several weeks ago.

LOVE OF PHOTOGRAPHY LURES MAN TO DEATH

SAN FRANCISCO, July 10.—(AP)—Wireless reports here today indicated love of amateur photography lured Radio Operator V. M. Costner, of the Matson steamship Golden Bear to death in the volcanic cataclysm at Rabaul, New Britain.

The Golden Bear is due at Honolulu tonight with full accounts of the catastrophe, which is reported to have killed 500 persons May 28 and 29.

NEW OIL-FURNACE AIR CONDITIONER

The last word in labor-free comfort at lowest first cost and fuel cost! Combines automatic oil-burner, warm air oil-furnace and air conditioning equipment complete in one compact unit. Complete winter relief from summer discomfort. Call local Holland branch.

And HERE'S WHY HOLLAND CAN GIVE YOU SUCH AN AMAZING Guarantee ON HOME HEATING

THE importance of having a furnace as efficient and as economical as the Holland cannot be emphasized too strongly. It is the very heart of your heating system and if it fails in any respect the whole heating system fails. The furnace, however, is only a part of your warm air heating system. Unless every part of the system is correctly designed and engineered for each individual home and properly installed, you cannot have perfect heat in every room.

DIRECT-TO-YOU FACTORY RESPONSIBILITY

That's why every Holland Warm Air System is planned and installed by the Holland Furnace Company's own organization. This company definitely guarantees you perfect heat in every room and must be certain you get it. Your entire home, therefore, is carefully surveyed and measured by Holland's own trained heating engineers who draw up a plan based on complete knowledge of your requirements.

SATISFACTION DOUBLY ASSURED

This plan is then carefully studied by senior engineers at the Holland home office and no installation work can be started until they have approved the local engineer's drawings. Finally, the system is installed letter perfect according to the okayed plans and we then guarantee perfect heat in every room.

Free FURNACE INSPECTION

If your furnace is defective in any way, it is costing you money for which you get no benefit and it may be a hazard to health and property. Why not learn the truth? The local Holland engineer will gladly make a thorough inspection of your entire heating system and will submit an estimate should repairs prove necessary. This service is absolutely without cost or obligation. Call the nearest Holland Factory Branch.

ARMAMENT RACE ENDANGERS PEACE, ITALIAN ASSERTS

Rabbi Condemns Proposal to Partition Holy Land Into 3 Parts.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., July 10.—(AP)—Luigi Villari, Italian diplomat, soldier and journalist, said tonight a five-power pact by which Italy, England, France, Germany and Poland would suspend the race in armaments would be the soundest effort yet attempted for peace in Europe and throughout the world.

Dr. Villari, addressing the University of Virginia Institute of Public Affairs, condemned the Franco-Soviet pact as "the chief cause of European anxiety and the chief danger to world peace."

Russia Condemned.
He described Russia's membership in the League of Nations as having "further contributed to make of that institution a source of evil and mischief and should dissuade all really peace-loving nations from putting their trust in it."

The League, he asserted, has been wrecked as an institution and discredited even as an ideal.

Dr. Villari, a former representative of Italy on the secretariat of the League, began a discussion on the maintenance of peace otherwise than through the League of Nations by denying that the League had been an absolute failure.

League Incompetent.
Dr. Villari saw the League on the other hand as being "quite incompetent to settle any of the major political questions, those in which the great powers were deeply interested and where their interests were radically divergent."

Rabbi Maurice J. Bloom, Newburgh, N. Y., member of the administrative committee of the Zionist organization in America, condemned the report of the British royal commission for Palestine as "abandonment of solemnly accepted responsibilities and non-fulfillment of the mandate under which Britain holds Palestine."

GIRL IS DISCOVERED BEATEN TO DEATH IN ATTIC ROOM

Police Hunt Youth in Whose Room Body, Hammer
Were Found.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 10. (P)—The battered body of Estelle Feinberg, 16, an orphan and a high school junior, was found late today in an attic room of her home which she occupied with Mrs. Bessie Moran, an aged grandmother.

The body was discovered by Mrs. Moran in a bedroom used by Joseph Dumorad, 20, who was adopted by the woman 15 years ago, Officer LeVine, of the New Haven police, said.

The officer said a search was in progress for Dumorad. Police wished to question him. The young man left home earlier in the day after announcing he planned to take a swim at a friend's cottage.

LeVine said he found the girl's body lying on the floor, a gash on the left temple. On a bed in the room was a shirt covering a carpenter's hammer, the head of which was stained, he said.

100-Degree Level.
Temperatures approached the 100-degree level in Iowa, ranged between 92 and 99 in Maryland and held around the 90 mark in most of Ohio, Missouri and Kansas.

Rocky Mount, N. C., reported 103; Union, S. C., and Ottumwa, Iowa, 99; Richmond, Va., 96; Roanoke, Va., 95; Pittsburgh and Philadelphia 94; Charlotte, N. C., Washington, 93; Minneapolis, St. Paul, Omaha and Lincoln, Neb., 93; Springfield, Ill., 92; Boston 90; St. Louis, New Orleans and Jacksonville, Fla., 88.

Flood waters of Hay creek, overburdened by a cloudburst, forced 100 residents of Belle Fourche, S. D., from their homes.

Deaths by States.
Deaths attributed to the heat included:

Michigan 24, New York 31, Massachusetts 15, Pennsylvania 13, Illinois 15, Connecticut 20, New Jersey 11, Rhode Island 6, Minnesota 4, Maine 3, Iowa 3, Nebraska 3, Indiana 5, West Virginia 2, Maryland 2, Wisconsin 1, Missouri 1.

Forecasters saw the possibility of thundershowers in the Newark vicinity and the southern portions of Illinois, Missouri and Indiana, northwestern Minnesota and southeastern Kansas. But they said unseasonably high temperatures would continue in most sections.

They pointed out the most severe heat wave of 1937 was following a trail blazed by a similar year in 1936. Both began July 7.

Last year the spell lasted eight days. It came during the devastating drought. This summer, by contrast—farmers expect a bountiful harvest.

HALF MILLION JAM CONY ISLAND BEACH

NEW YORK, July 10.—(UP)—More than 500,000 persons visited sweltering Coney Island today. Fifty-two children were lost and found, 27 peddlers were ejected, six bathers cut their feet on tin cans, one woman was almost drowned.

Ravenhall's Bathing Park improved on the ocean by placing large blocks of ice in the swimming pool.

STEEL DRAWBRIDGE IS VICTIM OF HEAT

SOMMER'S POINT, N. J., July 10.—(UP)—One of the heat victims here today was a steel drawbridge.

Attendants were forced to cool it off with streams of water before the mechanism, jammed by heat expansion, would close. Traffic was held up several hours.

'BABE' COLLAPSES ON GOLF COURSE

NEW YORK, July 10.—(P)—Babe Ruth, the home run king, collapsed on the sixth tee of a suburban golf course today.

A physician who revived him later in the clubhouse said the baseball idol had been overcome by the heat, but that he was able to go home.

U. S. SHIPS TO GET BIG 16-INCH GUNS

State Department Regrets
Refusal of Other Nations To Limit Arms.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—(P)—The State Department announced today that 16-inch guns will be mounted on the two new battleships on which construction already has begun.

The announcement by the State Department said that "with the greatest reluctance" the United States has been obliged to conclude that other governments would not give assurances of maintaining the 14-inch gun level and that this country must therefore install the bigger guns.

They explained that the keels for the two battleships, which the State Department described as under construction, had not actually been laid, although plans had been completed and materials were being purchased and assembled. The new ships will be built at the New York and Philadelphia navy yards.

Other signatories of the naval treaty some time ago that it would not be feasible for the Japanese navy to confine itself to 14-inch guns.

The two new battleships to be built will be 35,000 tons, the limit under the existing naval pacts, and will be armed with nine 16-inch guns mounted in turrets of three guns. Naval authorities said the battleships, which are under construction, would be heavily armed and better protected against submarines, enemy aircraft and other warships, than any existing American ships.

conflict, in which they lost 10 killed and 22 wounded.

FOUR CHINESE DIVISIONS MOVING NORTHWARD

SHANGHAI, July 11.—(Sunday)—(P)—A Domei (Japanese) News Agency dispatch from Hankow today said four divisions of the Chinese first army had begun moving northward on the Peiping-Hankow railway, possibly to reinforce the 23rd army, embroiled with the Japanese west of Peiping.

Another Japanese dispatch asserted Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Nanking government, had ordered his strong air force to be mobilized.

The first army is known as "Chiang Kai-shek's own." It is German trained, considered the finest unit of Chinese fighting forces.

In Nanking Chinese authorities were reticent about troop movements, but it was indicated "emergency precautionary" orders had been issued to Nanking forces along the Lunghai railway, the main east-west trunkline north of the Yangtze river.

The army command was understood to have formulated emergency plans to be put into operation if the North China situation becomes worse. These, it was authoritatively indicated, would deal with the disposition of all Nanking forces north of the Yangtze. Probably they would be assigned to a line along the southern banks of the Yellow river, the one great natural barrier between the Peiping-Tientsin area and Central China.

Chinese officials did not conceal fears the grave turn taken by the Peiping situation might lead to larger military operations in the north than any that have gone before.

Fugitive Alligators Elude Hunt in Ohio

UHRICHVILLE, Ohio, July 10.—(UP)—Powerful searchlights and the eyes of nervous "hunters" scanned Stillwater creek tonight for Earl Johnson's two alligators.

Police began the hunt after vandals released three of the "gators" from their pens at Johnson's home. One of the "gators" was shot and killed by a man who found it basking near a dam swimming pool.

Johnson, Uhrichville sportsman, said the beasts had been captured by his son in Florida two years ago. He added that either "gator" could snap off the arm of an average-sized man.

Manchoukuo into North China, but authoritative quarters expressed belief reinforcements probably would be sent across the Great Wall to the North China garrison.

General Gen Sugiyama, minister of war, summoned the highest officers of his staff for a conference on the Peiping crisis at 2 a. m.

Officials of the navy ministry and foreign office also were in conference discussing the increasing Sino-Japanese tension.

Reports that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Nanking regime, had ordered mobilization of army and air forces created an ominous sensation here.

FAYETTE COUNTY IN AWARDS DRIVE

paved road distance to the Georgia home of President Roosevelt.

Route of Road.

The new road when completed will lead from Warm Springs, Manchester, Woodbury, Haralson, Alvin, Gay, Senoia, Fayetteville, Kenwood, Riverdale, Hapeville and thence into Atlanta. An additional advantage will be that from Warm Springs, the road will connect with other arterial highways leading into Alabama and into Florida.

For years the only electric lights in the county were in Fayetteville, but a determined drive to carry the advantages and conveniences of light and power facilities to rural sections of the county and to other communities has met with marked success.

Power Extensions.

The Georgia Power Company is supplying a portion of the extensions and the Rural Electrification Administration is doing some work. In all, more than 80 miles of new lines will be constructed before the year closes. A new line into Kenwood already is being built by the power company.

More than 100 H. Club boys have thoroughbred pigs and calves which they are raising in the drive to popularize stock raising, and farmers also are joining in the adult program.

Bell has bought 30 to 40 mares, which have been sold to farmers at a nominal cost. Some of the bulls, boars and a jack are available. Farmers have the benefit of the services at a very low cost and they are taking full advantage of the opportunity thus offered.

Soil-Building Crops.

Lespedeza and various other soil-building crops are common-place in Fayette county this year in contrast to other years, when they were practically unknown. A uniform syrup cane is being planted in order that Fayette county can take full advantage of producing a standard-product for sale at more populous centers. It will be sold wholesale to stores and distributed to consumers.

County commissioners placed Fayette county in the awards program sponsored by The Constitution early in the year, and they believe that if practical results are to be the gauge on which the awards will be made that Fayette county will stand high among other counties of Georgia.

Commission Members.
W. L. Burch is chairman of the commission, and H. R. Harp and L. G. Jenkins are his associates as commission members.

"Fayette county is making rapid strides agriculturally," Bell said today. "There is a new spirit in the county and farmers are making strenuous efforts to better their own condition and at the same time improve the county itself. Many of them are exhibiting a keen interest in the standing of this county in the awards program. Fayette will be among the winners because we started from virtually nothing and have made remarkable progress."

Races in Soap-Box Derby Finals To Be Broadcast by WGST July 24

Preliminary Information Will Go on Air From Station
This Afternoon; Hundreds of Prizes Await Boys in The Constitution Classic.

Atlanta's 1937 Soap Box Derby is going one step further into the big time; all races in the finals July 24 at Soap Box Derby Downs will be broadcast over station WGST.

The broadcast will begin around 2 o'clock and the final race will probably be on the air about 4 o'clock. Giving a vivid word picture of the heated competition will be Frank Gathers and John Fulton, WGST's famous Frankie and Johnnie announcing team.

Broadcast Today.
At 6:10 o'clock this afternoon preliminary derby information will be broadcast over the same station.

Hundreds of prizes await the boys who reach the finals of the Atlanta derby and each finalist is assured of a prize. Plank steak dinners will be given them all at Peacock Alley.

Officials announced yesterday that boys still had plenty of time to enter the derby and urged all boys to do so at once. Two of the last three winners of the Soap Box Derby did not decide to enter the races until the last minute. It may be a good luck omen.

Expensive wheels for the derby racers are not necessary this year. Any set wheels that will turn fast and are safe will pass the inspection committee. Ordinary wagon wheels with solid tires are just as fast as any others, it was pointed out.

All Soap Box Derby entrants will be the guests of automobile dealers this afternoon at Lakewood park.

Special Race Arranged.

A special race will be run with all drivers wearing Soap Box Derby crash helmets. These helmets for the boys are made of the same material used by race drivers in every sanctioned race.

More boys have entered this year's races than have in former years, officials said. A check last night indicated competition would be keen and fast.

In Athens, where a preliminary race will be run for boys in that vicinity Wednesday, more than 100 have entered; in Gainesville, where a preliminary race will be run Saturday, 75 have entered, and in Griffin, where races will be run July 21, 60 have signed applications.

The winners of these preliminary eral orders with a restaurant by telephone, Haller said.

The official quoted Carl Solari, switchboard operator, as stating he heard a man say during the last call, at 7:15 a. m.: "I guess I killed her this time."

In the room were found a set of costumes, indicating the woman might have been an actress.

Book Lists Three Names.
Among the woman's effects, police said, were three bank books, each made out in a different name.

They were described as follows: One issued to Grace Handel, 1257 Boulevard East, West New York, N. J., by the First National Bank of West New York.

The second issued to Gertrude Miller by the Dime Savings Bank, Brooklyn. It showed a balance of $3,254. The last notation in it was a withdrawal of $350 on June 11.

The third was made out to Grace Casper by the Central Savings Bank, New York. It was issued in October, 1936. The savings were listed as $85.60.

Jardine's Lecture Is Heard by Only 71

ATLANTIC CITY, July 10.—(UP)—The Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, who married the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, faced a pitifully small audience in what was announced as his first lecture tonight.

Only 71 persons filled into the 4,000-seat grand ballroom of the hotel to hear the round-faced British clergyman and two of these were newspapermen.

Jardine, whose subject was "The Brotherhood of Man," took five minutes regretting the small turnout. He attributed it to the hot weather and "some misunderstanding due to some reason or other by local charity organizations."

CHANGES PROPOSED IN SOCIAL SECURITY

More Generous Pensions Are Suggested in Group's Five-Point Program.

NEW YORK, July 10.—(UP)—The Twentieth Century Fund, presenting the results of 15 months of research by its committee on old-age security, recommended today that the existing social security act be altered to provide more generous old-age pensions.

The Twentieth Century Fund is an independent economic "research and policy forming" body established in 1919 by Edward A. Filene, Boston merchant.

The committee, whose members included Frank P. Graham, former chairman of the advisory council of the President's committee on economic security, and Miss Grace Abbott, former head of the Federal Children's Bureau, described minimum benefits to be paid under the present act in 1942 as "inadequate," and proposed that the government should:

1. Pay bigger federal benefits.
2. Begin paying them in 1939 rather than 1942.
3. Pay them to more persons.
4. Ultimately decrease the worker's share of the cost.
5. Abandon the old-age reserve pension fund method of financing and proceed on a pay-as-you-go basis with only a small contingency reserve.

Lupescu Awaits Arrival of Carol At Paris Review

PARIS, July 10.—(UP)—Red-haired Magda Lupescu slipped unannounced into Paris today to await the arrival of her royal lover, King Carol, of Rumania.

Carol will arrive early next week on a visit to the Paris exposition and to attend the annual military review on Bastille Day, July 14.

Mme. Lupescu, under an assumed name, went to the home of friends to await the King, it was understood, she and Carol will visit his castle, Chateau de Couesmes, in lower Normandy. King Carol maintains the chateau as a place of refuge in the event of possible exile.

Wednesday's military show at the Arc de Triomphe will be an impressive display of France's latest mechanized fighting units.

It is planned as a demonstration to Carol of France's strength, timely in view of feeling here that that Rumanian King is becoming increasingly friendly to Germany. After his visit here Carol will go to England, returning to Bucharest by way of Berlin, where he will confer with Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

WOMEN'S MARKETS VALUABLE OUTLETS, DIRECTOR AVERS

Mrs. Robin Wood Speaks at Opening of Ninth Unit in Decatur.

Nine markets where Georgia farm women can sell products never sold by house canvassing or in curb markets are now active in Georgia cities, Mrs. Robin Wood, director of the women's division of the state bureau of marketing, said yesterday at the opening of another of the new type markets in Decatur.

Approximately 200 persons attending the opening of the market in the Masonic building heard Mrs. Wood discuss the plan to open up a new source of income to farm women by establishing at least one farm woman's market in every Georgia county, with the help of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Rent-Free Space.

The Decatur market is sponsored by the Decatur Woman's Club, under the supervision of Mrs. W. Guy Hudson, former club president. Other sponsors backing the market are the Decatur Citizen Club, the DeKalb New Era and Decatur businessmen. The Decatur Masonic lodge is giving market space rent-free.

Jellies, jams, garden produce, needlework and other products they have never sold before are being sold by farm women in these markets, Mrs. Wood said, expressing hope that large market centers can eventually be established in Atlanta, Augusta and Savannah.

The Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs now is working to establish a market in Atlanta in a few weeks, she added.

New Co-operation.

"I do not know of anything better for the farmer and his wife than this new avenue of co-operation between the rural Georgia," C. C. Smith, Atlanta attorney representing the Citizen Clubs of Fulton and DeKalb counties, said.

"Everywhere a market operates," Mrs. Wood said, "the public has received it well and supports it profitably." In the large market centers the really fine handwork of Georgia women should find ready buyers.

Rush Burton, editor of the Lavonia Times, also spoke at the Decatur market opening. He reported a similar market operating in Lavonia has been profitable and is "giving new impetus to agriculture there."

Goods on Display.

Bedspreeds and luncheon covers, handmade quilts, pillowcases, baskets—all kinds of products which farm women hitherto have had little success in marketing—were on display at the Decatur opening.

A high school girl, Alma Gluck, of Decatur, sold about $5 worth of candy she made herself. The market will be open on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of each week. Among those attending the opening yesterday in Decatur were:

Mrs. Stuart D. Brown, of Royston, chairman of the farm woman's market in Franklin county; Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, national director for the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs; Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Smith and Rush Barton.

Under a pile of dirty rags whereon Beggar Raymond Gran, of Paris, France, was found dead, police discovered $15,000 in stocks and bonds.

Decatur Market Opened as Aid to Farm Women

Attending the opening of a new type market for farm women, four sponsors of the plan to increase Georgia farm women's incomes were in Decatur yesterday. Left to right, they are Mrs. Stuart D. Brown, of Royston; Mrs. C. C. Smith, of Atlanta; Mrs. Robin Wood, of Atlanta, and Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, of Athens.

LUCKIE STREET LINE CHANGES FOUGHT

Residents Obtain Rule Nisi, Returnable Tuesday, in Fight on Change.

Possibility of a restraining order preventing any change in the Luckie street car line faced the Georgia Power Company yesterday as Superior Judge Paul S. Etheridge shortly before noon issued a rule nisi directing company officials to show just cause for the change at a special hearing at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Judge Etheridge indicated that an injunction might be granted following the hearing, Thomas L. Slapay, petitioner's attorney, said. Brought by Mrs. M. C. Strickland, Luckie street property holder, and Clarence Reagin, of a Luckie street address, the plea for injunction asked for return of a 100-foot strip of property 15 feet wide, fronting Luckie street, to Mrs. Strickland if the car service is changed.

The petition states that she donated the property to the city in order that the street be made wide enough to lay a double track. Abandonment of the car service will cause Mrs. Strickland to lose tenants of her property as well as the street property, it is said.

Power company officials July 1 went before city council with plans for substitution of buses serving the Techwood section and a small portion of the present Luckie street car lines. Action was postponed until Thursday, but petitions state they "are now informed and believe that certain members of the city council, acting in bad faith, met in secret session" and passed resolution for the change to take effect tomorrow.

Notice of the rule nisi was served on Daniel MacDougald, power company attorney, yesterday.

Policeman's Badge Stolen at Station

Nope, it wasn't a joke after all.

Harry Maddox, member of the Atlanta police accident prevention bureau, missed his hat and badge Friday night. He had left them in Captain Malcom's office at headquarters during the evening. But, when he came back, they were gone.

The officer was undismayed at the time. He thought one of his police headquarters friends was playing a joke on him. He reasoned the badge and cap would show up yesterday.

They didn't. Now, Officer Maddox feels sure he is the victim of thieves. The badge is number 337.

FORUM PLANNED AT SCHOOL HERE

Resolutions Praising WPA Work Will Be Offered.

Commendation of WPA officials and a musical program rendered by the WPA orchestra, under the direction of Walter Sheets, and a children's chorus will feature the meeting of the New Fourth Ward Civic Forum at 8:15 o'clock tomorrow night at the Capitol View school, it was announced yesterday.

A community chorus, under the direction of the Atlanta parks department and the WPA recreational division also will have a part on the program. Miss Edith Heidt is musical director for this group.

Resolutions commending WPA for its co-operation in the school building program will be offered, and an effort will be initiated to obtain modern, fireproof buildings for Murphy and Maddox Junior High schools, Ernest Brewer, president, said. He added that resolutions seeking an auditorium for Sylvan Hills school and a junior high school for the Capitol View section also will be pressed.

WOMAN, 37, DENIES SHE KILLED BROTHER

ST. LOUIS, July 10.—(AP)—Sullen and silent after declaring the statement of her self-confessed accomplice "is a lie," Mrs. Marie Porter, plump 37-year-old mother of four children, was charged in a warrant today with the wedding-day "insurance killing" of her brother, William Kappen, 38, an electrician.

Jointly charged with the slaying of Kappen, whose body was found near a Belleville, Ill., roadhouse a week ago today only a few hours before the time set for his marriage, was youthful Anthony Gancola, who Chief of Detectives John J. Carroll said told of being present when Mrs. Porter shot her brother.

29 BAR CANDIDATES PASSED IN FULTON

81 Took Examinations; Two
Are Women.

Twenty-nine bar graduates of local and state university law schools have been admitted to the Georgia bar from Fulton county, results of the state bar examination given by Judge Virlyn B. Moore on June 30 showed yesterday.

Former Governor John M. Slaton, chairman of the state board of law examiners, said yesterday that a total of 72 out of 187 applicants, several of whom were women, throughout the state passed the bar examination.

In Fulton county 29 out of a total of 81 applicants passed. Two of the 29 successful applicants were women. Those admitted to the bar from Fulton county are:

Miss Daphne Robert, Miss Grace H. Waits, T. A. Avery, Tilden L. Brooks, George H. Carswell Jr., Henry Grady Crawford, R. G. Crimm, J. E. Davis Jr., Wiley H. Davis, J. W. Dorsey, son of Judge Hugh M. Dorsey, T. A. Evans, W. G. Francis.

Boyd G. Guillebeau, son of Len B. Guillebeau, Atlanta attorney; Warren E. Hall Jr., Robert L. Holbrook, Karl L. Icenogle, W. T. Lane, Preston B. Mayson, J. M. Morris, Trian Neder, Albert F. Quirk.

Kenneth Romprey, Arnold Schulman, Robert T. Speer, R. C. Smith, W. A. Wallace, Earl W. Wingo, William W. Woolfolk and A. G. Yappa.

JOHN SCOTT RITES TO BE HELD TODAY

Former Alderman Will Be Buried in Greenwood.

Funeral services for John F. Scott, 55, of 673 Pryor street, S. W., former alderman from the second ward and prominent labor leader, will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Pryor Street Presbyterian church.

The Rev. Lawrence A. Davis will conduct the services. Burial will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Mr. Scott died suddenly Friday morning following a paralytic stroke Thursday night.

A native of Fayette county, he moved to Atlanta 30 years ago. He was a railroad inspector at the time of his death and was serving as vice president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, positions which he had held for many years.

CLINT PINSON GRANTED REPRIEVES OF 30 DAYS

Because his attorney had broken his leg on the eve of his appearance before the prison commission, Clint Pinson, condemned negro slayer, was granted a 30-day reprieve Friday, the day set for his execution. It was the second time in the past few months he has been granted executive respite. The first resulted from a new trial motion.

Back in Fulton county tower yesterday, Pinson was alive by virtue of the recommendation of the prison board and Superior Judge E. E. Pomeroy. Pinson was convicted of slaying Roscoe Harbin, a Peters street merchant, in 1934.

RETIRES AS HEAD OF HOSPITAL HERE

R. S. Hudgens Is Raised to Superintendent's Post of Emory Institution; Retiring Chief To Give More Time to Teaching.

TRUSTEES YIELD TO HIS REQUEST

New Supervisor Stepped Up as Recommendation of Physician Giving Up Portion of His Duties.

Voluntary retirement of Dr. Russell H. Oppenheimer, superintendent of Emory University hospital for the last 12 years, and appointment of Robert S. Hudgens, assistant superintendent since 1929, to succeed him, was announced yesterday by Harvey W. Cox, president of Emory.

Dr. Oppenheimer will continue his association in the capacity of medical director and in supervision of general policies, but he has elected to surrender hospital supervision to devote more time to the deanship of the Emory School of Medicine and his professorship there.

Familiar Figures. Both Hudgens and Dr. Oppenheimer are well known in southern medical circles, and are familiar figures at state and regional meetings of doctors and hospital administrators.

Hudgens, whom Dr. Oppenheimer recommended as his successor, was graduated from Emory University School of Liberal Arts in the class of 1923. He then studied at Harvard University and later joined the Retail Credit Company, Atlanta, continuing his studies at Emory. In 1930 he was awarded the degree of master of arts from Emory, after designation as assistant superintendent of Emory hospital in 1929.

He is a past president of the Georgia Hospital Association, is now secretary of the Southeastern Hospital Association and is a member American College of Hospital Administrators.

Dr. Oppenheimer came to Atlanta several years ago as a resident physician at Grady hospital. His executive ability and his thoroughness was recognized by Emory and he was promoted rapidly until he held the two most important positions in medical activities at the institution.

Credited for Advance. The steady recognition of the Emory medical school and Emory hospital is due largely to his untiring efforts, officials said yesterday in commenting on the change.

Dr. Cox also announced that Dr. A. E. Huck has been designated resident physician at the hospital, and Dr. Gene Nardin as the assistant resident physician.

Newly appointed internes are: Dr. Elbert Adams, Dr. Robert Candler, Dr. Henry Holliman, Dr. F. M. Sullivan and Dr. Robert Young, all of whom are graduates of Emory's school of medicine, and Dr. J. B. Patterson, of Ohio State University, and Dr. W. C. Alston, of Oklahoma University.

Miss Grace Doig will continue in her position as superintendent of nurses.

Bank Clearings Drop
Attributed to Holiday

Bank clearings in Atlanta amounted to $42,000,000 this week, $9,500,000 less than the clearings for the corresponding week last year, the Atlanta Clearing House Association announced yesterday. Officials attributed the decline to Monday's holiday.

Food Handlers Given
Health Test Orders

Food handlers were notified yesterday by Dr. J. P. Kennedy, city health officer, to secure certificates of physical examinations immediately or face prosecution in police court.

The health officer said only about 3,700 out of 10,000 food handlers have obtained certificates this year, although the city law calls for compliance by July 1. The ordinance requiring physical examinations for all food handlers is designed to prevent spread of communicable diseases.

Old Circulation Promotion Card Is Found

Here is a refreshing reminder of the days when promotion was not a matter of big type and superlatives—a reminder of the heritage handed down through the generations to the readers of The Constitution.

50-Year-Old Promotion Card
Recalls Methods of PastCURRICULA DRAWN
OVER FIVE YEARSNew Courses of Study To Dwell on Opportunity,
Citizenship and Career.

Standard curricula adopted for Georgia grammar and high schools by the state board of education represent result of five years of research, State School Superintendent M. D. Collins declared yesterday.

With the beginning of a full program of free textbooks for Georgia students, major attention will be given to alignment of courses to meet demands of broadening and standardizing educational opportunities.

Teachers Have Part. Fully 10,000 of the 14,000 white teachers in the Georgia system have a hand in mapping the curricula, Dr. Collins said, and "since they have a personal interest in them I feel assured the program will be highly successful."

Two primary themes under the grammar and high school systems planned by the state board. One is the fitting of the individual for any occupation he may choose and the other is in instruction on citizenship and government.

In the past, he explained, primary attention has been given to the student who plans to attend college after high school.

Special Instruction. Under the new plan, those students who do not plan college attendance will be given special instruction.

Constitution Weekly's
Advertising Leaflet Brings Back Memories to Texan.

By RALPH MCGILL.
In these days of super-promotion plans, the radio blares; three sheets scream from billboards; superlatives bound from the minds of promotion men and there is much noise and whoopla and considerable sounding of brass and cymbals from the rooftops.

But, one may wonder how long they stay in the minds and memories of the hearers and see-ers of the promotional noise.

Circulation Promotion. Hardly, one may be sure, as long as the promotion which a Constitution circulation man sent out about a half century or so ago.

It was a very courteous little card and in complete good taste. Those were the days when the great weekly papers were the style for the rural sections. And yesterday there came to The Constitution one of those cards and with it a story.

The Constitution is proud of its great heritage which dates from the very founding of this newspaper when, after the War Between the States, there was a question whether or not constitutional government should be restored to this state. The Constitution took its name from that fight and it was a winning fight.

Life-Long Companion. The Constitution is proud, too, of the hundreds of people all over the state who write and say: "The Constitution has been coming to my home for 60 years." "The Constitution has been at my breakfast table for more than half a century." "The Constitution was my primer when I was a boy and I am an old man now." These are some of the statements by friends of this paper who have found it a life-long companion.

Slayer of Baby Attempts Suicide,
Bemoans Failure of Lethal Potion

Mrs. Ethel Woody Peebles, 26, self-admitted slayer of her four-month-old baby in 1934, rubbed her throat, badly seared by poison in a second suicide attempt, and whispered from her Grady hospital cot:

"I wanted to join the people in the other world. . . I hope I don't get well. . . My throat hurts."

The woman was admitted to Grady yesterday after attendants at a downtown hotel, attracted by screams, had found her in the sixth-floor hallway.

Recovery Forecast. Doctors said she suffered severe burns about the mouth but would recover. She was given emergency treatment. Investigation disclosed two empty vials which had contained carbolic acid in Mrs. Peebles' room.

"I went to business school through last April but I couldn't get a job. I just didn't want to live. Why couldn't they let me end it all as I wanted to do?"

She bemoaned her fate, lying there on the white cot. She was sorry only that she was living.

"It looks like I do have the worst luck. I think it is every one's privilege to die if they want to. . . Could I have a coca-cola?"

Second Attempt. Yesterday's attempt marked the second time Mrs. Peebles has tried to commit suicide, police said. In 1934, after giving her baby poison, the mother attempted to "end it all." Medical attention saved her life that time also.

She was released from the state hospital in February, 1935, one month after she had been acquitted on a murder charge, adjudged insane and committed to the institution. First tried before Judge Virlyn B. Moore without a jury, Mrs. Peebles was given a life sentence. Later she was granted a new trial and the insanity verdict was reached by agreement between counsel.

Third Occupant Is Only Slightly Hurt; Trolley Bowls Standing Auto Against Pedestrian Here

Two Columbus citizens were admitted to Emory University hospital with severe injuries sustained when the car in which they were riding was sideswiped by a truck late yesterday afternoon and knocked down a 20-foot embankment on the new Buford highway near Clairmont road.

Admitted to the hospital were C. C. Bobo, 54, who received a broken shoulder, and W. D. Jenkins, 53, who sustained a broken knee and fractured wrist. Mrs. Jenkins, third occupant of the car, received only minor cuts and bruises.

The party was en route from Columbus to Greenville, S. C., to attend the funeral of Bobo's brother.

Truck Is Blamed. DeKalb police said the Bobo car was struck by an Atlanta-bound truck which was being driven on the wrong side of the road.

Police said the driver of the truck was John Jett, of Chamblee, who left his name and address with witnesses and continued on into Atlanta in the truck, which was not damaged.

Police broadened reports of the accident early last night in an effort to locate Fisher Bobo, son of the injured man, who was said to have been following some distance behind the wrecked car.

Freak Accident. In a freak accident involving a street car, an auto and a pedestrian yesterday afternoon at Broad and Hunter streets, Charles A. Little, of 786 Virginia circle, the pedestrian, was badly bruised and shaken.

Little was hit by the auto, which in turn had been struck by the street car.

Police said the street car operator sought to jump an amber light. In making a left turn the rear of the car struck an auto driven by J. L. Thrasher, of Macon driving, knocking the machine into the pedestrian. The auto was stationary when struck, witnesses said.

La Guardia Announces His Intention To Seek Re-election; Foes Busy.

NEW YORK, July 10.—(P)—The city's mayoralty election is four months off but the campaign already is taking on the appearance of a major political battle.

Both as a popular reaction test to national issues, including relief, and as a strategic lever in the 1938 congressional and 1940 presidential elections, the New York campaign is considered extremely important in political circles.

Fiorello H. La Guardia, Fusion incumbent, started things off this week by saying he would seek the Republican nomination. He hopes to be the first anti-Tammany "reform" leader in the city's history to succeed himself.

La Guardia was swept into office wearing the Republican label, but backed by a complex anti-Tammany coalition, just after the disclosures of the Seabury investigation.

This week he was asked by a number of prominent Republicans to seek the Republican nomination again. After he said he would, another Republican group got ready, behind the scenes, to come out in open opposition to him on the ground that his public policies have not been Republican as party leaders understand the label.

Children of Atlanta Go to Dental Clinics Gladly

With her mouth wide open, six-year-old Ruth Hayes, of 1099 Tilden avenue, N. W., a second-grade pupil at the Goldsmith school, is examined for defective teeth by Miss Collette Daniels, city hygienist, in the city hall clinic. The little girl is having her teeth fixed up so she will be ready for school in the fall. Thousands of pupils are examined annually by Miss Daniels as a part of the good teeth program of the Atlanta Public Health Department. Atlanta school children rank among the highest in the nation in the percentage of perfect teeth.

Appointment of Group To Come From His Sick Bed To Speed Book Choices.

Governor Rivers is expected to announce the appointment of the state's new 10-member board of education from his Los Angeles hospital bed this week in time for the new board to appoint professional textbook committees which will recommend school books for adoption at the board's meeting July 19.

The Governor himself is ex-officio chairman of the board and Superintendent M. D. Collins is ex-officio secretary. It is not considered likely that the chief executive will have improved enough by July 19 to permit his participation in the book adoption but the program is expected to go through in his absence.

Board Now Five-Man. The 10-member board will replace the five-member board, which has been serving for a number of years. The present board, in addition to the Governor, is composed of S. D. Truitt, of Atlanta; Representative L. A. Whipple, of Cochran; Miss Nina Cox, of Ashburn, and Mrs. Julius Y. Talmadge, of Athens.

The new board will have one member for each congressional district in addition to the Governor and state superintendent.

Dr. Collins returned to Atlanta several days ago following a conference with Governor Rivers in Los Angeles. The Governor, it is understood, will select the board and it will be sworn into office by his executive secretary, Downing Musgrove.

The superintendent said he is ready to recommend to the new board the appointment of the textbook committees, seven in all, which will have five members each. The committees will work on the subjects to be adopted rather than on the grades as in former years.

Will Select Books. It is not known whether the new board will order an elementary school adoption as the present

"Open wide; it won't hurt." A child takes her seat in the dentist's chair at the public health department clinic in the city hall and is reassured by Miss Collette Daniels, city hygienist.

So, the youngster opens wide her mouth and Miss Daniels begins an exploration of the oral cavity that may reveal bad teeth or it may reveal a perfect set of molars and incisors.

Never a Cringe. There's never a whimper from the child, no cringing fear of the shiny instruments Miss Daniels uses to probe in between teeth and to bring to light a bad cavity or perhaps the beginning of one.

It's all a part of the good teeth educational program which began in Atlanta some 15 years ago and is now being conducted by Dr. W. Vance Jackson, director of oral hygiene in the health department; Miss Daniels, the hygienist, and virtually every teacher in the Atlanta school system.

Amazing results have been accomplished by this method of educating school children and their parents. When the work was started, dental examinations showed that fully 95 per cent of all school children had defective teeth. It

Laura Haygood Portable Will Be First Junked To Start Building Program.

Removal of hazardous wooden portable school buildings at the Laura Haygood school on Marietta street will begin tomorrow morning in preparation for the start of a new $80,000 fireproof brick unit there Thursday.

Dr. H. J. Penn, member of the school board, said "this is a fine thing for the people of the section," in pointing out the elimination of danger from fire.

The Haygood school unit, one of 14 new classrooms, is a part of the $1,100,000 school-building program financed by the WPA and school boards. Eight of 15 projects have been completed or are under construction, and five more are scheduled to begin within a week. Ed S. Cook, president of the school board, announced.

Pleasure That Transcends Money
Found by Woman in One Kindly Act

Money can't always buy happiness, but then again it can, Mrs. F. D. Carey, of 712 Boulevard, S. E., learned yesterday.

Mrs. Carey, the 27-year-old mother of three children, is not the wife of a husband rich in worldly goods, but even that didn't mean money would tempt her.

She found a small roll of bills yesterday afternoon while walking down Whitehall street. It wasn't much to some people, but it would pay Mrs. Carey's gas bill or buy a new pair of shoes for baby. It was $11, to be exact.

Persons who saw Mrs. Carey pick up the roll urged her to pocket it and declared her "lucky." But, no, Mrs. Carey felt the right owner should have it back. She asked around for him.

Standing on the street where she discovered the bills, the young mother looked intently into the face of each passerby.

Then she saw a negro man, bent with age, coming down the street, his eyes glued to the sidewalk. His failing eyes searched minutely every inch of the sidewalk. He obviously was looking for something dear to him. Mrs. Carey asked if he had lost anything.

"Ah sho is, Mistus," he replied. "I've done lost every penny I've got in dis world. I've lost $11, Mistus."

The mother of the three slowly pulled out the $11 roll and placed it in the hands of the old negro.

"Here's your money," she said. "I was waiting for you to come get it."

He offered to share the roll, but Mrs. Carey refused.

Her happiness was his happiness.

ATLANTA SURVEY

Equitably Governed City Most Desirable as Site, Industrial Chairman of Commerce Chamber Notes

A record number of new businesses was established in Atlanta during the first half of 1937, bringing additional pay rolls totaling $1,003,500 per year, the industrial bureau of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce announced yesterday.

One hundred twenty-two new concerns, ranging all the way from manufacturers to retail stores and sales offices, came to Atlanta in the six-month period, adding 669 employees to the list of Atlanta workers, W. W. Winter, chairman of the industrial bureau, reported.

New Prospects at 359. Winter said 27 new industrial prospects were developed, making a total of 359 concerns considering setting up businesses in Georgia's capital.

Manufacturers, sales offices and resident representatives led in the number of new businesses here this year. There were 19 new manufacturers, 29 new sales offices, 46 new resident representatives, 11 sales offices and warehouses, four retail stores, five service organizations, and five wholesalers with warehouses included in the total of 122.

Thirty-two took space in office buildings, four bought sites, 19 took ground floor stores, five secured vacant factories, and three erected special buildings.

While the number of new concerns established this year is greatest in any similar period in Atlanta's history, the total annual pay roll has been exceeded several times, Winter said.

Efforts Be Fruitful. Efforts to bring new business to Atlanta have been highly successful, with many firms evidencing interest in the city, Winter reported.

Winter said the industrial bureau does not claim credit for bringing all the new firms to Atlanta but that "it was an important factor in securing most of them, particularly the larger concerns."

"The pending survey of our city, and county governments, for the purpose of making Atlanta one of the best governed cities in the country, could be a powerful factor in the future in making Atlanta an attractive location for

Three DeKalb Escapes
Are Back in Custody

All three convicts who escaped the DeKalb chain gang Thursday night were back in custody yesterday—their freedom short lived.

Robert Lee Williams, 19, convicted robber, and Theodore Gay, 26, holdup man, were arrested in Gainesville yesterday after the sheriff had received a tip they were hobnobbing a freight train.

Noah Stovall, 21, the third escapee, was captured while sleeping Friday in Atlanta. The arrest was made by DeKalb officers.

Williams and Gay will be returned to the DeKalb convict camp near Avondale. The three escaped by sawing leg chains and overpowering a guard.

Park Vandals Face
Police Prosecution

War on vandalism in the city parks has been declared by the police and city parks department, George I. Simons, parks manager, announced yesterday.

Simons said there has been more vandalism in the parks this summer than in years. Many white-way lights have been broken and recently benches at Maddox park were tossed into the pool. One concession was broken into. Damage has been considerable at all parks. Simons said most of the vandalism occurred between 10 o'clock and midnight.

"Whether this is being done by adults or by boys we are going to prosecute them to the fullest extent of the law," asserted Simons. He said extra guards are being assigned to parks.

FARMERS' MARKETS HANDLE $2,000,000 IN STATE PRODUCE

Only Estimate Available on Business During First Six Months of Year.

An estimated total of $2,000,000 worth of produce passed through eight state-operated farmers' markets during the first six months of this year.

Market Supervisor Hamilton Ralls said all produce handled at the markets went to wholesale buyers, many of them out of state.

The eight markets are centers at which the state agricultural department helps bring buyer and seller together. Ralls explained, but takes no part in the actual sale.

Accurate figures of sales were not available, he said, since the bureau does not handle individual transactions, but leaves price and other business questions to the farmers for direct handling with the buyer.

Estimates of the value of produce moved were based on average prices furnished through the department's market bureau.

KLAGENFURT, Austria, July 10.—(UP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor made their first public appearance here today when they attended the inauguration of the Lake Worth sport festival in a ceremony at city hall.

President Miklas was also a guest of honor at the ceremony. He and the Duke and Duchess had a long and friendly talk.

The Duke and his bride came here from Wasserleoburg castle, their honeymoon home, by automobile. They were greeted cordially by the population when they entered and left the meeting hall.

was an unenviable record that was shared by nearly every city in the United States.

Teeth Average Best.

Last year 33,071 Atlanta school pupils were examined and 25,495 had no defects in their teeth at all. About 25 per cent had some type of defect. Now Atlanta school children rank among the highest in the nation in the percentage of perfect teeth.

Here's the way the educational program works: Children are taught in their schools the proper way to brush their teeth and are urged to give them exercise. Dr. Jackson says it is not all about brushing teeth. Good teeth because they are the food raw, brushing their teeth is made attractive to the children and, remarkably enough, so is going to the dentist.

Inspires Fear.

No longer do mothers threaten their children with "I'll send you to the dentist if you don't behave." That inspires fear.

Instead, teachers and mothers show the children that good teeth mean good health and that dentists are not "bogey" men.

Further, school classes take a full holiday from lessons when every pupil has procured a dental certificate showing he has been examined by a dentist or by the public health hygienists each year. No child wants to be the one who prevents the class from having a holiday. Therefore, each secures the certificate.

Urged to Visit Dentist.

The certificates point out the condition of the child's teeth. Parents are urged to send the children to a dentist immediately but if they are not financially able, then Dr. Jackson performs the necessary work himself.

teeth are put in good order. While school is in session, Miss Daniels and assistants examine the teeth of each pupil. Regular clinic days are set aside for various schools.

Dr. Jackson doesn't think that the 25 per cent defective record will be lowered soon, because 10 per cent of the children examined develop decay before the next examination, 10 per cent are beginners in school, and about 5 per cent are pupils who have moved to Atlanta from towns where the good teeth program has not been in effect.

"Our main problem now is to teach parents to take care of their children's 'baby teeth,'" Dr. Jackson said. "These temporary teeth are most important. If they decay, the child does not chew its food properly and it may have a direct bearing on growth of the body." He said parents should start taking their children to the dentist regularly every six months when the children reach the age of two and one-half years.

ent adoption has one more year to run. It is known, however, that there will be a high school adoption, the first under the Rivers free school book program, which will go into effect in September.

Dr. Collins said yesterday he saw the need for speedy action by the book companies immediately after the adoption in order that the books may be ready for circulation by September 1.

The superintendent added that the companies drawing contracts with the board of education must establish a central warehouse in Atlanta for distribution of the books over the state. Through a centralization system, Dr. Collins pointed out, savings will be effected in transportation costs and each system will receive its books at one time rather than in small lots.

Co-operation of chambers of commerce throughout Georgia with the better business division in Atlanta has made it even more difficult for schemers and swindlers, he said, but the loss continues to run into heavy figures annually.

Rural Georgians particularly have been victims of various enterprising racketeers who establish fictitious or semi-fictitious addresses in Atlanta but do not operate within the city, preferring instead to go to distant towns for their victims, thus running less risk of exposure, he pointed out.

The old down payment scheme (a person representing himself to be a bona fide salesman takes cash for a high quality product at an unbelievably low price then fails to deliver) one of the schemes is being worked in Georgia, Mitchell said.

RUSSIANS POISED FOR NEW U. S. HOP

Two More Planes Will Attempt Non-Stop Dash Over Northern Route.

MOSCOW, July 10.—(AP)—Soviet Russian aviation leaders tonight disclosed plans to send two more airplanes off on attempted non-stop flights to the United States within a month, probably over the North Polar regions.

One plane is tuned up and ready to go; only rain has held it for several days in Moscow. It will be piloted by Mikhail Gromoff, for many years an outstanding Soviet distance flyer. He will have two companions.

Although Gromoff is expected to cross the Arctic regions, he probably will not follow the route of the three men who completed a nonstop jump from Moscow to Vancouver, Wash., June 20.

Lavenefsky Picked.

The other plane will be piloted by Sigismund Lavenefsky, who attempted a transpolar flight from Moscow to San Francisco in August, 1935, but was forced to turn back when the plane developed trouble.

Lavenefsky disclosed his plan on his return here from Sebastopol, where he tested an American-made plane. He told friends he intended to take off within a month but did not specify his destination.

The famed pilot took the opportunity to deny reports he had been arrested in the recent moves against alleged government enemies. Explaining his absence from the official reception for Dr. Otto Schmidt, leader of the north polar scientific expedition, when Schmidt returned to Moscow in June, Lavenefsky said he had been busy flying.

Has Record of Bravery.

Lavenefsky attracted world attention in 1933 when he rescued James E. Mattern, American round-the-world flyer who was forced down in Siberia and missing for several days.

In 1934 Lavenefsky aided in rescuing 101 Russians adrift on the ice off Kamchatka after their ship, the famous Chelivuskin, had been crushed. He then won the coveted title, "Hero of the Soviet Union."

Last year he piloted a plane from San Pedro, Cal. to Moscow.

Senate Talkathon

"We must take action to save the constitution from the court and the court from itself."—FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, March 9, 1937.

"We recommend the rejection of this bill as a needless, futile and utterly dangerous abandonment of constitutional principle."—SENATE COMMITTEE REPORT, June 14, 1937.

THUS heralded, "the constitutional battle of the century" got off this week to a rip-roaring start. Democratic Leader Robinson told the senate the recently revised plan for changing the Supreme Court would be kept before the upper house until acted on.

The plan now provides for appointment of one extra justice to the high court for each of the four sitting justices over 75 years old, but not at the rate of more than one new justice a year.

Administration forces have boasted they can muster 54 votes for it, ample for passage. But a filibuster has been threatened. Warhorse Robinson dared them to try it.

An Old Roman Custom

FILIBUSTERING is an attempt to prevent a vote by prolonging the argument. Julius Caesar and the younger Cato did it in the Roman senate. Edmund Burke and Charles S. Parnell were experts in dilatory tactics in the House of Commons.

American senators took up the art in 1841, and in previous talkathons have hung up such records as these: Nebraska's Senator Allen, 14 hours; Wisconsin's "Old Bob" LaFollette, 18 hours; Utah's Reed Smoot, 11 hours; and Louisiana's Huey Long, 15 hours.

An old senate rule says no member shall make more than two speeches on one day. After the first day's Supreme Court debate, July 6, the Senate recessed rather than adjourned. That meant it still was July 6, as far as the rule was concerned, when they met the next morning and resumed the argument. Such tactics are a handicap even to an expert troop of filibusterers.

First-Round Slaps

SQUARE-JAWED Joe Robinson and Cornhusker-Lawyer Edward Burke staged a verbal duel early in this battle that delighted the gallery.

Slim, fast Burton Wheeler, another active opponent of the plan, was quoted as having told the President to his face: "I am your friend and this will kill your popularity."

It is the difference between you coming out as a great President or a bad one.

Stocky, Ex-Judge Logan of Kentucky charged, however, that administration opponents were using the issue to "destroy" the President. To Wheeler's protest, he snapped back: "If a man is shot accidentally, he is just as dead as if he were shot on purpose."

Pennsylvania's Joe Guffey emphasized a long view, citing history to show "conclusively" that the court always "has been enmeshed in partisan, party politics... openly hailed as the last bulwark of reaction."

This was a Democrat-vs.-Democrat scrap and the Republicans didn't mind.

Hydro-Elocution

Democratic Representative May, serving a Kentucky coal-producing district, coined a word this week with which to brand President Roosevelt's proposal of a national system of regional planning authorities. He told a senate subcommittee the project would "hydro-electrocute" the coal industry.

Public power advocates in the house protested against "the proposed contract between TVA and the Arkansas Power and Light Company under which it is planned to sell TVA power to the latter concern to be re-tailed for profit without applying the yardstick."

Representative Rankin said a storm was brewing in administration ranks "which threatens the President's entire power program."

The Farm Fight

President Roosevelt urged enactment of "general farm legislation" at this session of congress. Pending is the Wallace-Farm Bureau "ever normal granary" measure which authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture, when farm surpluses are in excess of a given percentage of "normal," to impose rigid quotas on the national output of crops.

Representative Jones of Texas, chairman of the house agriculture committee, would make the present soil conservation act the basis of any permanent measure. He is opposed to a provision of the Farm Bureau plan which would discontinue federal benefit payments for performance of soil conserving practices.

Hope

Government departments have been asked to impound 10 per cent of their newly appropriated funds. The President hopes to save about $400,000,000 this year and balance the budget.

Pendergast Record

Tom Pendergast succeeded his brother, James, in 1911 as a Democratic boss in Kansas City. Aging and ill last November, he let his nephew, James, run his powerful political machine.

Scores of persons have been indicted in recent months at Kansas city, and 46 convicted on various vote fraud charges. Money for their defense and surety for their bonds, a federal grand jury has found, has been coming from the Pendergasts.

The veteran monarch of votes admitted it, and added: "The Pendergast record in the past has been to help the unfortunate and we will continue to do it in the future. If there is anything wrong about it, why don't they say so?"

Twice In 68 Years

In 1869, Thomas Bram, mate of the bark Herbert Fuller, was found guilty of the murder of the captain, the captain's wife and the second mate. Not since then has a trial involving a major crime on the high seas been held in Boston.

But this week Edward Brennan, seaman of the freighter West Lashaway, sailed to Boston in irons. He was accused of attempting to kill the captain and burn the ship while the vessel sailed the "high seas"—in this case, the African Congo river.

Atlanta

First official confirmation that approximately $3,000,000 additional revenue will be required to finance the state's enlarged program of activities was made by Senate President John B. Spivey on his return from Los Angeles where he conferred with Governor Rivers.

Arriving from California two days later, Downing Musgrove, executive secretary to Governor Rivers, declared the state may possibly find a way to meet the $20,000,000 appropriation bill.

Sit-down strikes were declared "indismissible" by Judge William H. Black, of the New York supreme court, on a visit to his brother here this week.

Strict enforcement of the state prohibition law, a complete and thorough investigation into relief activities and gambling conditions in Atlanta were demanded by Judge Paul S. Etheridge, of Fulton superior court, in his charge to the July Fulton grand jury.

Charles A. Bickerstaff, prominent insurance executive, was killed Sunday afternoon by lightning while playing golf at East Lake.

Directors of the Thomas E. Watson Rural Free Delivery Foundation met in Thomson to discuss plans and the progress already made in their drive for funds with which to buy and restore the estate of the late "Sage of McDuffie."

St. Simons Island's Fourth of July celebration was marred by the explosion of a fireworks display, in which several persons were injured, and the burning of the King and Prince clubhouse and the King and Prince Surf hotel, at a loss estimated at more than $100,000.

Baldwin county denied reports of discord over the state social security program and prepared to certify applicants for aid.

Steel Smoke

The National Labor Relations Board reported this week that it had "terminated" 103 strikes in May. But the seven-state strike called May 26 by CIO against independent steel companies still wasn't settled.

Except for Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. mills in the Chicago area (which owners said would not operate again until civil authorities provided "ample protection"), most of the affected plants again were spouting smoke. CIO leaders doubted, however, that there was much steel-producing fire behind that smoke.

Except in Inland Steel's case there had not been even a semblance of a truce.

Republic Steel opened Cleveland mills Tuesday after national guardsmen had arrived to keep "all quiet" at the gates. In nearby Akron more Ohio troops stood ready for duty anywhere in the state's steel district.

At Johnstown, Pa., Bethlehem Steel plants ran with little violence, and Strike Chairman Philip Murray told a rally of his followers CIO would fight on "a week, a month, a year—yes, ten years."

More Charges

Against Youngstown Sheet & Tube, CIO counsel filed charges with the NLRB.

A grand jury investigating strike disorders at Youngstown, Ohio, indicted more than 200 persons, including two men recently dismissed as union organizers.

At Detroit 15 men were accused of assault, after a one-man grand jury inquiry into the scrap at Ford's main plant in May. The NLRB held a hearing, meanwhile, on a complaint against Ford and union officials testified his employees had slugged and kicked them.

More Casualties

AFL Drummers

AFL had 50 additional organizers out this week, competing with CIO. Their sales talk was reported to include this bid for employers' help: An AFL closed shop will protect you from CIO "irresponsibility." CIO, meanwhile, ordered nationwide organization of maritime workers.

Geography

"Of all the regions of Siberia," says an old geography, "the basin of the Amur and the neighboring coast are those which promise to have some day the greatest political importance."

That day has come. Over petty Amur river islands, Japan and Russia clashed last week and again this week. Protests flying back and forth on diplomatic cables failed to stop shots across the river. Japanese boasted Tuesday of defeating a sizeable Russian detachment near Chien-shan in an all-day battle.

The Amur is formed by the union of the Shilka and the Argun rivers. Up between those two streams is gold, silver, lead, tin, iron and asbestos. Beyond the Amur, too, are mountains that might be safer than a river bank as a frontier for Manchukuo, Japan's puppet land.

History

The Amur basin has been a frontier zone ever since a Cossack adventurer named Yermac Timosoff gave Siberia to the czars. That was about the time the rest of Europe began to take an interest in America, but the czars did little with their new country—save dump convicts in it and argue with China about the boundary. Now the Soviets hope to develop Siberia the way America was developed.

But Japan would like to do big things in Asia, too. In 1931, while the rest of the world was busy with a depression, Japan wrested Manchukuo from wobbly China. Now the rest of the world is busy again, with European war scares, and Russia looks wobbly. Hence viewers-with-alarm suspect Japan of planning to get some of Russia's Asia. Chinese resentment at Japanese policies, meanwhile, has lived on. Fighting between the mikado's men and local boys west of Peiping raged on this week.

Abroad

Holy Land Surgery

Moe Schultz quit his job driving a truck between Tel-Aviv and Haifa, Palestine, and came back to Brooklyn because Arabs kept shooting at him. Moe's discomfort typified that of thousands of Jews who flocked to the Holy Land to make it a homeland.

Not all Arabs are as poor marksmen as those who sniped at Moe. In six months last year, 314 persons died and 1,651 were injured in Arab-Jew clashes. A British Royal Commission report this week recommended a "surgical operation" cutting Palestine into two parts: One for Jews, one for Arabs, and one to remain a permanent British mandate area.

Britain supervises Palestine under the League of Nations authority. By a 1924 treaty the United States became a party to the Jewish colonization scheme.

American Zionists two weeks ago began asking Uncle Sam to prevent partition of Palestine. Joining in the plea this week, the Pro-Palestine Federation of America warned President Roosevelt the division would mean "Balkanizing" of the little country.

The present commission was the seventh to investigate Palestine; few recommendations of the earlier groups have gone into effect.

Bad Guess Remembered

"Jefferson Davis and other leaders of the South... have made a nation," Britain's great Gladstone thought in 1862, when America was in a fix like Spain is today.

Italians this week reminded the British of their conduct then. "You granted belligerency rights to the confederacy in the American war," the fascists argued in effect, "why not do the same for Insurgent General Franco?"

Presumably such action would help Franco's business along.

Frenchmen talked of giving him "limited" belligerency rights, as a possible compromise in the quarrel over neutrality policies between Anglo-French and Anglo-German diplomats. The French also suggested they might abandon their patrol on the Pyrenees border, and thereby help the loyalists, unless a compromise was made.

Some system of stationing neutral observers in Spanish ports, just to preserve a semblance of non-intervention, was considered.

England's Anthony Eden, who has been aging fast recently, told Commons that all German ships had left the Mediterranean and, although he had nothing to suggest, he would consider any "just and fair" idea.

The Spaniards went right on fighting—hot and heavy around Madrid.

Indian Decision

India's Congress party wants independence from Britain. In six of the country's 11 provinces, it has won legislative majorities. But leaders could not decide for quite a while whether their representatives would accept or declining to fill their seats. The party's working committee decided this week that the legislators should accept the offices.

Tomb Of Toads

Because science sacrifices animals its wonders to discover, Buddhists pray for the creatures' souls. Rites were held last Sunday in Japan for 100,000 toads' departed spirits. At Keio University, a granite monument called "The Tomb of Toads" was dedicated, in the presence of 60 eminent scientists.

Losers' Complaint

Mexico held a congressional election Monday. An independent coalition strove to defeat President Lazaro Cardenas's national revolutionary party, but won only a handful of seats, and yelled "Fraud!" Cardenas, however, was assured of ample support for another three years.

The Irish Free State voted for President De Valera's proposed constitution, but did not give his party a parliamentary majority.

France's financial reforms got under way; an overtime arrangement partially pacified hotelkeepers and employees quarreling over a 40-hour week.

Flight's End

PATRONS of a New York basement restaurant called "The Better 'Ole" often have turned to gawk at a tall, distinguished couple striding toward a rear table. The woman had viking eyes and boyish swiftness, the man the spectacles and high forehead of a business executive. Each would unfold a newspaper and disappear behind it to dine.

They looked too efficient ever to be characters in a drama. But their names, Amelia Earhart and George P. Putnam, flashed in bold headlines this week, telling a story that had more suspense than any novelist dares tax his reader's patience with—a narrative that kept hope bobbing up and down like a harbor buoy.

Miss Earhart's flight around the equator ended when she and Navigator Fred Noonan missed their mark in the Pacific—Howland Island. Husband Putnam's advice guided an international battle fleet, as humanity pitted 4,000 men against the sea to find her.

Mystery In The Ether

RIGHT after the plane vanished, Los Angeles radio operators heard strange sounds. Amateurs and professionals everywhere soon were snatching more signals of antennas, hour after hour, day after day. That some were from Miss Earhart and Noonan seemed irrefutable. But all were mystifying. "291 North Howland," one read, "above water... shut off."

First to search the South Seas was the Coast Guard cutter Itasca. From somewhere near the blue wa 281 miles north of Howland, it was heard radiating: "We can see your flares; are coming toward you." But the flares turned out to be a meteor.

Putnam, in California, insisted all along that his wife must be on an isle or coral reef because her radio would not work if the plane were in water. So searchers turned to the sea southeast of Howland, known to be dotted by land within 281 miles.

Typical American Family Declares That It Needs $30 a Week

$1,560 a Year Is Held
As Necessary for Decency

Public-at-Large Also Names $1,950 Per Annum for Average Comfort Standard.

BACKGROUND

President Roosevelt said in his Second Inaugural that the welfare of the "lower-third" of the American nation is to be the immediate concern of his second administration. Government statisticians estimate that at least a third of the nation is "ill-housed, ill-clad and ill-nourished." How much income does a typical family need? Today's Institute poll shows how much money the people themselves think necessary (1) to live with minimum decency, and (2) to live with health and comfort.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, July 10.—At a recent press conference President Roosevelt revealed that he plans to go on the air shortly to discuss the problem of raising the income of poorer families in the United States.

Often since his re-election the President has spoken of that "one-third of a nation, ill-housed, ill-clad and ill-nourished" for lack of adequate income, and his forthcoming radio talk will show what remedies the President has in mind.

Millions of Americans, it is agreed, are living below the so-called "American standard of living."

But what should the "American standard" be? Few of the people who are studying the problem agree exactly. The government considers that a typical family in most sections of the United States needs at least $1,250 a year for "bare subsistence." On the other hand, New Deal planners believe America should set an objective of $2,400 or $2,500 a year for a family of four. William Green of the American Federation of Labor, meanwhile, has named a goal of $3,600 for the workingman.

Today, as the result of a nation-wide survey, the American Institute of Public Opinion has learned what the people themselves believe the U. S. standard of living needs to be. The results disclose:

1. That actually far more than one-third of the country is living at levels below what public opinion deems necessary for living "decently."

2. That almost two-thirds of the country are living at standards below what the voters think is necessary for "health and comfort."

The actual figures for family income in the United States today depend upon existing surveys, notably one being conducted for the Department of Labor under the direction of Dr. Isador Lubin. The opinions on what family income should be—of course—come from today's Institute poll. Together with the Lubin survey, the poll contributes a picture of a fundamental problem that was never available before.

Voters Eager To Express Themselves to Interviewers.

The Institute's investigations were conducted through its staff of more than 500 special interviewers, who cover every state in the Union. In each state a pre-established number of ballots go to farmers and city dwellers, to representatives of the lower, middle and upper income groups, to skilled and unskilled workers, to professional people and so on.

The vote reflects the attitude of a typical cross-section of the population.

Institute investigators found the voters in all groups eager to answer the questions. The first question asked:

"What is the smallest weekly amount a family of four must have to live decently in this locality?"

No sums were suggested. Voters wrote in whatever figure they wished. The average (median) sum among thousands of such opinions was $30. In other words, exactly as many persons indicated sums above $30 as named sums of less.

This means that public opinion considers that the minimum annual income compatible with a "decency" standard is approximately $1,560.

The government's research, however, shows that the typical four person family now earns substantially less than that figure. The actual figure is in the neighborhood of $1,300. Almost one family in three has an income below $1,000.

Even in the peak year 1929, millions of Americans were living below the standard which public opinion sets today for decency. According to the Brookings Institute, nearly 6,000,000 families had less than $1,000 in 1929; and 12,000,000 families (or more than 42 per cent) had less than $1,500.

Professional Workers Place Figures Higher—Farmers Lower.

Professional workers, business men and skilled laborers name a higher figure needed for decency than other groups. Farmers, who frequently enjoy a non-cash income in farm produce and other things, name a lower figure. Similarly, city dwellers name a higher amount than small-town dwellers or rural dwellers.

Typical persons living in the "ill-housed, ill-clad and ill-nourished" lower-third give $23 as the weekly sum needed, or approximately $1,200 a year.

Here are median amounts named by important population groups throughout the United States:

In the Opinion of	Median Weekly Amount For Decency	Same on Yearly Basis
Professional and white-collar workers	$35	$1,820
Merchants and business men	$35	$1,820
Skilled laborers	$35	$1,820
Farmers	$23	$1,200
"Lower-Third"	$23	$1,196
U. S. Average (median)	$30	$1,560

Second Institute Question Sets "Health and Comfort" Scales.

The second question in the Institute's income survey asked:

"How much income a year do you think the average family of four needs for health and comfort?"

Nationally, the voters set the health and comfort scale at $1,950. Again the figure is a median figure. It is far above the standard of living now enjoyed by the typical family, according to Dr. Lubin's statistics, and it is likewise well above typical family income in 1929. Observers may see in these cold figures the explanation of a great deal of the present discontent with "the system" and the willingness to follow new leaders and new experiments.

President Roosevelt says that he will shortly go to the people with a plan for spreading income and "human comforts" to a wider group of Americans than now shares such things. Today's poll indicates that the people may be ready and eager to listen to his plan.

National Weekly Poll of Opinion

Statesmen like Woodrow Wilson, Theodore Roosevelt and James Bryce for years had expressed the need of machinery capable of measuring public opinion.

And now the American Institute of Public Opinion—Solves the problem stated by Lord Bryce in 1891. Devises a practical method of putting into effect Theodore Roosevelt's political philosophy of 1908.

Furnishes the guiding facts asked for by Woodrow Wilson in 1911. Invents, creates and organizes the machinery of knowledge desired by government officials and the public. The Constitution takes pride in providing this information for its readers.

What Weekly $30 Buys for Family Of Four Persons

By INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION.

NEW YORK, July 10.—If a family of four has a weekly income of $30—the "decency" standard established in today's Institute poll—what does the money go for?

The largest part goes for food. The typical family spends about 33 cents out of every dollar for nourishment, and a $30 income allows just about $10 a week for feeding four persons.

The next largest amount goes for the home, including rent, light, heating and furniture. The family with $30 a week has about $9 a week to spend on its home.

This leaves 10 or 12 cents out of every dollar for clothing and 10 or 12 cents more for transportation. When these slices have been taken out, a family with a $30 income has between $4.50 and $6 left for everything else: for medicine and doctor, for books and education, for entertainment and insurance and savings.

If a family has $38 a week it earns about what public opinion considers necessary for a "health and comfort" standard.

This standard allows about $12 for food, and proportionately more for the home, clothing, transportation and so forth.

Regional differences in income and differences in the price of food cause wide fluctuations in these standards. A contemporary survey by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the Department of Labor points out, however, that "in some cities a third of the employed workers' families do not have enough money to buy the foods that are necessary for a minimum adequate diet."

Two Measures To Raise Income Now in Congress

Public Opinion Favors Principles of Farm-Tenancy, Wage-Hour Bills.

By INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION.

NEW YORK, July 10.—President Roosevelt has given little inkling of what kind of a plan he will shortly propose for raising family income at the bottom of the economic pyramid, but at least two bills have already been sent to congress which aim at the same thing. One is the farm-tenancy bill to enable farmers to own the land they rent, and another is the bill to establish federal minimum wages and maximum hours in industry.

Previous Institute polls show that the American people are in favor of both.

Last December the Institute asked a cross-section of voters throughout the country: "Would you favor government loans, on a long-time and easy basis, to enable farm tenants to buy the farms they now rent?" Nationally, the vote was more than four to one "Yes" (83 per cent to 17 per cent).

Farm tenancy has increased decade by decade in the United States, until at the 1930 census about 42 per cent of all American farms were operated by tenants. Government surveys indicate that some of the most depressed income areas in the country are the agricultural communities where tenancy is greatest.

Wages Bill: Public opinion also supports the principle involved in the Black-Connery bill: That the government ought to set the lowest wage employees shall receive, and that the government should limit the number of hours employees shall work.

Both features won by a vote of approximately three to two in an Institute poll reported June 6. If public opinion continues in its present mood the new wage and hour bill will represent merely a first step in a long struggle for a wider distribution of income.

$2,500 a Year: A specific proposal to raise the typical United States income to $2,500 a year is embodied in a new bill by Representative Amle, of Wisconsin. Amle's bill adopts a plan drawn by the Agriculture Department's economist, Mordecai Ezekiel, and would require new federal legislation similar to the AAA to adjust industrial production.

The Ezekiel plan would provide an "American standard of living" substantially above the people's basic minimum in today's poll.

Family Income Poll Concludes In Next Report

Where is the greatest need for an increased standard of living today—in the north, east, south or west? What do the voters in the different sections of the country regard as necessary for a decent living?

The Institute of Public Opinion has been sounding the viewpoint of citizens in all sections of the country and in every state in the union on this point.

The desired income figures for each section will be reported in The Constitution next Sunday.

In addition to setting the lowest possible figure compatible with a "decent" standard of living for a family of four, voters have been asked to name the amount necessary for a "health and comfort" standard.

Spirit of Free Press

Polls of the American Institute of Public Opinion are made possible by leading metropolitan newspapers representing all shades of political belief.

Results of these polls on issues and candidates often have been at variance with the political views of the newspapers which underwrite this project. Yet not a single paper has attempted to influence the Institute's policy of strict impartiality.

Survey Reveals the Cause Of Present Unrest State

Half of People in United States Live Below Desired Standards.

Today's Institute poll explains much that has happened in the United States since the depression began. With a large share of the population living at standards they themselves regard as inadequate, there has been an unprecedented amount of experiment in government, unrest in labor relations and shifting in politics. The following article spotlights a few of the things the poll explains.

By INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION.

NEW YORK, July 10.—What happens in a democracy like the United States when about half of the families are getting less than the income they consider necessary for a "decent" standard of living?

How far does this fact go toward explaining the rush of workers into the CIO? The epidemic of strikes? The militant disposition of labor in general? Its growing class-consciousness?

These become acute social and political questions today as a result of the Institute of Public Opinion's findings on what constitutes—in the mind of John Q. Citizen himself—a decent standard of living.

The poll shows that the public considers $1,560 a year necessary for decently supporting a husband, wife and two children in the United States today; and a supplementary part of the poll shows that the public thinks approximately $1,950 is needed for a standard of "health and comfort."

Government figures indicate that the typical U. S. family actually has an income of about $1,300, and that millions of families are getting along on less than $1,000.

What happens?

In the United States the result has been a succession of election triumphs for the Democratic party—the party of the "New Deal"—in 1932, 1934 and 1936. Spurred on by the "mandate" of these victories, the Democrats, under President Roosevelt's leadership, have launched one administration for the benefit of "The Forgotten Man," and they are now launching another for the benefit of the underprivileged lower-third.

The motivating objective of the second Roosevelt administration, as the President himself describes it, is more income for the ill-housed, ill-clad and ill-nourished lower-third.

Lower Income Groups Back President Roosevelt.

Last November the majority of Americans with substantial incomes went for Governor Landon, but the overwhelming majority of Americans with small incomes or no income at all voted for Roosevelt and the New Deal.

The Institute's polls foreshadowed this result fully a year ahead of the event. In poll after poll, the Institute found relievers approximately six to one for Roosevelt and other members of the "lower-third," economically speaking, more than four to one for Roosevelt.

So skillful was the President that, at least after the death of Huey Long, no other leader succeeded in winning an important section of the potential "discontent" vote. After the Union party groups nominated William Lemke at Cleveland last summer, Institute polls reflected a general rousing of third-party sentiment. But 10 days later

"I see one-third of a nation ill-housed, ill-clad, ill-nourished."—President Roosevelt, in his second inaugural address, January 20.

Roosevelt delivered an acceptance speech at Philadelphia that was belligerently leftist in tone, and third-party voters began to trickle back to the President in the Institute's polls.

Back in August, 1935, just before Huey Long died, the third-party vote reached its highest point on Institute charts. Even a vigorous "soak-the-rich" tax bill from the White House failed to stop the growth of sentiment for Huey's offer to "share the wealth." Today's poll explains how easily a "share the wealth" plan could take root and grow.

Poll Explains Strikes, Labor Unrest, Too.

Last year the laboring man's average weekly earnings, as indicated by figures for 25 leading industries, fell just short of $25 a week. The amount varied with the industry, of course. Automobile workers averaged well above that figure, steel workers slightly above it. But the average weekly earnings of the ordinary breadwinner in industry did not equal his idea of what a family needs for a standard of minimum decency.

Labor on the March—Organization drives and strikes mark 1937 as labor drives for a larger share of the national income.

Today's Institute poll shows that skilled workmen name $35 a week as the minimum sum necessary. Standards of living that represent "health and comfort" to these Americans are of course higher. The skilled worker's median figure for the latter standard is approximately $40 a week.

A Famous Football Coach Becomes A Country Boy Again!

He stopped the car and looked. It appeared to be a horseshoe pitching match. Something stirred in his mind. He parked the car. At last he could endure it no longer. He got out of the car and walked over.

FRANK THOMAS

But say, times have changed. I pitched out there all afternoon and at last some fellow from Gainesville beat me. He was good. They've got fellows who can really make those shoes go places."

Thus did one of America's better-known football coaches spend his Saturday afternoon in Atlanta. Today he leaves for a fishing trip on the gulf coast. He will return to Atlanta later for a stay of a week or so.

"Football? I don't know. I think there should be more good teams in the Southeastern conference this year than ever before. But I can't pick any winners. There will be a lot of tough ones."

LIKE LAWN SPRINKLERS.

On Tuesday next, down in Augusta at the Hill course, the boys will begin perspiring like lawn sprinklers in the annual Georgia state golf tournament.

The tournament manages to coincide each year with the most horrid temperatures of the summer season. And annually some rather torrid golf is the result.

Augusta's Bill Zimmerman comes back to the tournament this year. He won the championship in 1935 when the Coosa Club at Rome was host. He defeated Atlanta's Dr. Julius Hughes in the finals that year.

Last year he couldn't enter. This year he will be back on his home course seeking to regain the championship. He may. Reports have it his golf is good. Bill Zimmerman never had a golf lesson. It was a visit to Augusta by Bobby Jones in 1930 which interested Zimmerman in golf. Most of his golf was played with his father. He kept, as best he could, a mental picture of Bobby Jones' swing. And his idea about it was good enough to win the championship at Rome.

The Yates family of Atlanta will be represented by Dan and Alan Yates. Charley Yates will not attend. The Yates golfers manage to score well. And they are not selfish. Charley Yates made a hole-in-one some time ago and, after waiting a brief period, the two kid brothers each made one. They share things. Even holes-in-one.

Crawford Rainwater and a cortege of some 37 fellow Atlantans will represent the city in the tournament which has no defending champion. The ubiquitous Kid Brown, who won last year, is now a professional. The Hill course would have the boys perspiring even in January with chill winds blowing. It is one of the finest courses in the south, which is a land of fine golf courses.

And while the championship will be the chief item on the program, it is quite possible the flight for golfers of 50 years and over may steal the show.

If Big Bob Jones will simply gather his cronies together and go to Augusta, the galleries will be quite puzzled as to which show to see.

CANTON'S TOURNAMENT.

Canton's new golf course is to have formal dedication with a two-day invitation tournament the latter part of this month, the dates being July 24 and 25.

Indicative of the thought being given tournaments in these years of planning, is the announcement that prizes will be awarded for the most erratic shot of the tournament, the best shot and the best alibi.

Thus, it will be possible to win a prize by the simple exercise of imagination in providing an alibi. Or to come home with silver by the mere placing of a tee shot in some weird spot on the course. Or off it.

AND AT NEWMAN.

Your Uncle Samuel's mail orderly was hardly out of the office, having delivered the Canton announcement, before—

Crackers Back Monday For Eight-Game Stand

The Crackers return home Monday for eight games with Chattanooga and Knoxville. There will be four games with each team. The Lookouts, led by Ray Mead Bill Rodgers, will be here through Thursday. The Smokies play here Friday, Saturday and Sunday. A double-header is scheduled Friday. Yesterday's loss to Memphis, the second straight, was rather severe. It meant the Chicks took a lead of nine-and-one-half games over the third-place Crackers. Despite five-hit pitching, the Crackers lost most valuable ground.

Charlie, Dan, Alan Yates Seek U. S. Amateur Title

Three Brothers Offer Unique Record in Sectional Qualifying at East Lake.

By ROY WHITE.

A record unique in the history of golf will be made Tuesday, July 27, on the East Lake course when Charlie, Dan and Alan Yates tee off in the sectional qualifying round for the national amateur championship golf tournament. It will mark the first time in southern golf, and probably in America, that three brothers have attempted to qualify for the nation's greatest amateur golf title.

Charlie, the eldest, has played in the National several times. Dan played in his first sectional eliminations last year and Alan will be entered for the first time week after next.

WILL SEEK WESTERN. And that is not all the big titles that Charlie is seeking for he is making plans to enter the Western amateur, a title he won several years ago.

Charlie first came into prominence when he won the Georgia state in 1931 at Sea Island Beach. He followed right back in 1932 to tie a record of two successive wins held by Gene Cook. Charlie went on to win the National Intercollegiate, the Western amateur, won the amateur medal last spring in the Masters tourney at Augusta and has many invitation cups which he has won in the past seven or eight years.

Dan was captain of the Boys' High golf team last year and has played in state, city and invitation tournaments for the past three years.

Alan was runner up in the recent Atlanta junior championship on the West End course for his major accomplishment in the few

Towns To Run Against Tomlich Today in Labor Athletic Meet

LANKY BULLDOG SEEKS REVENGE OVER CONQUEROR

Perrin Walker To Run in Century at Randall's Island.

NEW YORK, July 10.—(AP)—Headlined by Johnny Woodruff's invasion of the mile run against the event's specialty men Glenn Cunningham and Archie San Romani, the second annual world labor athletic carnival will be held tomorrow with records possible in almost every competition.

On the lightning-fast track of Randall's Island, the great negro star from Pittsburgh will get his first major mile test against Cunningham, world record holder at 4:06.7, and San Romani who beat the Kansas running machine at Princeton and led him in the nationals at Milwaukee only to fall.

Forest Towns, Olympic high hurdle champion from Georgia, is gunning for Allan Tomlich, of Wayne University, double national A. A. U. hurdle title, in the 120-yard barrier race. Tomlich handed "Spec" his first defeat in two years at the Milwaukee A. A. U. meet.

Ben Johnson, New York Curb Exchange flyer and Triple I. C. 4-A leader, wants to redeem himself against the gigantic L. Perrin Walker, Georgian representing the New York A. C. at 100 yards. It was Walker who whipped the field at Milwaukee, leading Johnson home by a foot. Walker, 6 feet 5 inches tall, has a 9 1/2-foot stride and plenty of what it takes in the century. He won the event last year.

Cornelius Johnson, Olympic high jump champ, and Dave Albritton, of Ohio State, also are slated to wage another thrilling duel. The two tie each other on almost every jump although Johnson won the Olympic title and Albritton gained some revenge by outjumping him at Milwaukee. Mel Walker, another Ohio State star who tied "Corny" at Milwaukee, also is entered. All three jumpers have done 6 feet, 9 3/4 inches.

Tremendous interest also centered in the pole vault with the nation's greatest pole men trying to shatter the world record. Bill Sefton, the 14 feet 11-inch performer from the University of Southern California, will face Cornelius Warmerdam, Fresno state runner-up in the Nationals, and George Varoff, of the San Francisco Olympic Club, which may see the first 15 feet pole vault ever made in competition. Varoff holds the accepted world's record of 14 feet 6 1/2 inches.

Denis Shore, of the South African Olympic team, will attempt to take honors in the quarter-mile against such crack runners as Ray Malett, of the Olympic Club, national champion at the distance, and Bob Young, his teammate, runner-up at Milwaukee. A trio of national champions are in the two-mile run—Floyd Lochner, of St. Louis, 3,000-meter steeplechase king; Joseph McCluskey, New York A. C., 5,000-meter champion, and Eino Pentti, of the Milwaukee A. A., king of the 10,000-meter runners.

Another feature—many experts believe it will produce the most thrills—is the 880-yard run with these stars: Charles Beetham, Ohio State; Elroy Robinson, Olympic Club of San Francisco; William Ray, New York Curb Exchange; Abe Rosenkrantz, Michigan Normal; Lou Burns, New York Curb Exchange, and Dick Scquires, Ohio State. Woodruff may decide to enter at the last minute.

Seeks Third Leg on Gold Cup in Lakewood Races

Emory Collins, Canadian speed king, will seek to win a third leg on the gold cup in the five-star auto races today at Lakewood. A fast field will offer Atlanta fans a drama of burning speed they won't soon forget. Time trials begin at 1:15. The regular program gets under way at 3 p. m. Gates will open at 12:15 o'clock.

Track Aces To Blaze Trail of Burning Speed

Eleven Events To Hold Fans' Interest at Lakewood Speedway This Afternoon.

Veteran speed aces and neophyte stars will mingle this afternoon at Lakewood in Atlanta's second race meet of a lengthened week for traction Monday and an 11-event card today.

A program of such proportions has never before been attempted at the mile oval and indications are that the largest nonholiday crowd in history will be on hand. An army of workmen has been preparing the course the last two days and Gus Schrader may be able to lower his own track mark and live up to the late Lloyd Viaux's prediction that Lakewood track can be turned under 40 seconds. Last Sunday Gus piloted his Riverside-Miller-Offenhauser to a new mark of 40.2, a full second under his former time.

GRABER ENTERED. Cotton Graber, who had such a sensational spill last Sunday, will be back with a bandaged neck and a new D-O Hal machine. Eddie

Perfect Game Wins Chess Tourney

Playing a perfect game, winning eight and losing none and drawing none, W. N. Woodbury, of Birmingham, won the Class A championship in the Southern Chess Association tournament completed at the Biltmore hotel Friday.

G. C. Yagodka, of Knoxville, won the Class B championship with 10 wins, one loss and one draw. Raymond H. Gaston, of Atlanta, was Class B runnerup with seven wins, four losses and one draw.

The runnerup in Class A was Major J. B. Holt, of Jackson, Miss. Among the outstanding chess stars who participated in the tournament are J. E. Jackson and Henry B. Thompson, both of Atlanta, and P. J. Walker, of Savannah.

The Southern Chess Association, with headquarters in Atlanta, conducts the tournaments. Charles Roberts, of Jacksonville, is president and Arthur S. Harris, of Savannah, is secretary of the association.

sacrifice and was doubled off second when Rose lined to Blakeney. The chicks were having just as much trouble with Leonard, if not more. Trip followed Grace's first inning blow with a single and went out trying to steal. Trip singled again in the fourth and was caught in a fast double play on Howell's grounder to third. Grace singled in the seventh and was forced at second when Trip's attempted sacrifice misfired.

The rest of the time Stewart and Leonard mowed them down in order. Neither the chicks nor the Crackers liked that slow stuff the pitchers dished out.

West End Gunners Hold Sherbet Shoot

West end gunners will hold a sherbet shoot of 100 birds registered today. Traps will open at 9 o'clock.

Complete information can be obtained on the state championship shoot to be held soon and shooters are urged to begin practice for these events.

FOUR DEADLOCK IN BLIND BOGEY AT DRUID HILLS

Club Opens First Round of President Cup Meet This Afternoon.

Four golfers, B. A. Carson, H. H. Ellison, J. E. Herbert and W. A. Holbrook shared first prize Saturday afternoon in the weekly blind bogey on the Druid Hills course. The winning score was 74.

Second place also was divided when Alan Ford, Dan Ramsey, Jack Haire, Sam Swilling, Dr. F. Free, M. K. Pentecost, D. Donaldson and J. A. McMurray finished one stroke away from the winners. Druid Hills members will open first round matches this afternoon in the annual president's cup tournament. One week will be given over to each round of play and handicaps will apply throughout the tournament.

Captain Horne Wins Black Rock Bogey.

Captain Horne won the weekly blind bogey at the Black Rock Country Club with a score of 80. Tied for second place with 77's were R. E. Brookshire, Rudy Lehman, Sid Reams, and G. A. Goddard. Seaborn Hawkins shot a 74 to win third place.

Two hundred and four players participated in this week's blind bogey.

T. B. Shropshire Wins Capital City Blind Bogey.

T. B. Shropshire Jr. was alone in winning the weekly blind bogey on the Capital City course Saturday afternoon. The winning score was 74.

Second place went to Sam Dorsey, T. L. Respass, C. W. McKinney, E. B. Adams, Oliver Healey, E. R. Paris and Berrien Moore Jr., one stroke away from the winner.

Two Golfers Share Ansley Park Bogey.

Some Ansley Park player missed a great chance Saturday afternoon to boost his golf supplies when the weekly blind bogey had to be divided between W. E. Daniels Jr. and F. A. Truan, who finished one stroke away from the winning score. The second places had 83's.

Tied for next low were W. T. Hanson, J. M. Ward, P. K. Marlow, R. L. Hendley and Ed Ansley. C. T. Ansley had a net 64, well below the range of the bogey and was included in the prize list.

Eleven Tie for Honors in East Lake Bogey.

Charlie and Alan Yates shared in the prizes Saturday in the weekly blind bogey on the East Lake courses. Charlie finished in a tie with 10 others for first place with net 72's, while Alan was in a tie with 16 others for second place.

The winners, in addition to Charlie, were: E. S. Humphries, L. R. Hunter, G. T. Freeman, J. A. Whitley, F. W. Rade, Frank Guy, Cliff Curry, Jr., C. L. Douglas, D. C. Lacy and A. R. Moore. Others in second place besides Alan were W. P. McDowell, C. Y. Smith, J. P. Wilhoit, A. J. Jones, Francis Spears, S. P. Thompson, J. C. Malone, Cliff Eley, William Johnson, O. T. Clark, T. E. SANDLOT TEAMS MEET TOMORROW IN ELIMINATION Winner To Meet American Legion Champion of Macon District.

Four Atlanta American Legion sandlot teams will battle Monday and Tuesday on the Warren athletic field to decide who will meet the winner of the Macon district tournament in the sectional play-off which will be held the latter part of July.

The Cardinals will meet the Inman Park Aces Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock and the Y Crackers will battle the Northwest Tigers at 4:30. The Atlanta championship will be decided Tuesday when the winners of these two games meet.

Thursday Macon meets Cedar-town, and the DeKalb Barons face Augusta. The winners of these two games will battle Friday to determine who meets the winning Atlanta team. The winner of this game will play the Gainesville champion a series of two out of three games, which will determine the champion of the state.

The schedule for the Gainesville eliminations follow:
Rome, bye.
Clarksville vs. Carrollton.
Dalton vs. West End.
Gainesville vs. Augusta.
Carrollton will be the scene of the regional meet, in which teams from North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida compete. The meet takes place August 13-15.

The Carrollton Farmers were the state champions last year.

CITY SWIMMERS IN TRIALS TODAY

Trials for the Atlanta swimming team will be held this afternoon at the Venetian Athletic Club pool. The meet is open to men and women in juvenile, junior and senior classes.

More than 75 Atlanta swimmers already have been signed for the event. All swimmers in Greater Atlanta are invited to participate in the affair. Those showing prospects will be given instructions by Harry Glancy, twice Olympic champion and one of the best-known tankmen in the entire south.

Among those who will take part in the program which gets under way this afternoon at 2 o'clock are Grady Ammons, Howard Duncan, Doyal Butler, Georgia Tech star; Ed Richardson, Margaret Richards, Ben Cogburn, R. C. Anderson, Elizabeth Adams, Taylor-Fort, Charlie Galbraith, W. R. Capps and George West Jr.

The events are not slated to start until 3 o'clock but all swimmers must report to Walter Baker at the Venetian pool at 2 o'clock. Fort McPherson's swimming team also will vie for places on the Atlanta swimming team. In addition, the Fort McPherson team will compete with the Atlanta swimmers in a dual meet.

Juvenile swimmers are scheduled for the 25-yard free-style, 25-yard back and breast-stroke, 50 and 100-yard free-style and the backstroke and breaststroke. The events for the seniors include the 50, 100, 200 and 400-yard free-style, the 100-yard backstroke, and the 100-yard breaststroke. There will be diving events for all entrants. No entry fees will be charged. The trials will determine the team to represent the city in future swimming events.

Walters Enters 3 Events Here.

TALLULAH FALLS, Ga., July 10.—Completely rested up after leading Georgia's freshman team through an undefeated season, Bill Walters, Atlanta's ace swimmer, will do his first competitive swimming in almost two months Sunday afternoon when he vies for honors in the annual Atlanta City A. A. U. meet at the Venetian pool.

Undeafed in a free-style race since last summer, Walters plans to enter three events Sunday. In addition to his specialties, the 50 and 100-yard free-style races, the Atlanta youth will vie for honors in the 200-yard event. He has participated in the longer event on several occasions, and is given almost as good a chance in that race as in the dashes.

Low Oehmig Takes Tennessee Amateur

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 10.—(AP) Low Oehmig, 19-year-old Chattanooga and University of Virginia junior, won the Tennessee state amateur golf championship here today with a brilliant final-round victory over Ed Falls, Memphis veteran, 6 and 4.

Atlanta Golfers Leave Today for State Tourney at Augusta

A Coming Event---The Georgia State Golf Tournament at Augusta---Casts Its Shadow Before

Four ranking stars who will seek Georgia's amateur golf crown this week at Augusta are shown above. Left, Crawford Rainwater, low-scoring amateur in the National Open

Savannah, who has a chance to set a new record of three state titles. McWilliams, Gene Cook and Charlie Yates are all square, with two successive state titles, and only McWilliams of this trio will play this week. Kid Brown, 1936 champion, has since turned pro and cannot defend his title. The field is wide open.

Atlanta Sends 37 To State Tourney

Strong Field Will Start Play on Tuesday in 20th Annual Golf Event at Augusta.

By ROY WHITE.

Thirty-seven Atlanta golfers will leave the city today and Monday for Augusta, where they will participate in the 20th annual Georgia amateur golf tournament Tuesday through Saturday. The tourney will be played on the tough hill course of the Augusta Country Club.

James (Kid) Brown, professional at the Black Rock Country Club course, won the championship last year on the Capital City Club course, but will not compete, since he has turned professional.

Qualifying rounds will be played Tuesday over the 18-hole route, with match play starting Wednesday and continuing through Saturday.

Fielding Wallace, of Augusta, president of the Georgia Amateur Golf Association and his board of directors at the 1936 meeting voted to include another division of 32 players for this year, making it possible for 160 players to compete. Only 128 were permitted to participate in the 1936 tourney at Capital City.

DECIDED INCREASE.

Georgia's young golfers have shown a decided increase in tournament play and it was due to the young group desiring tournament competition that the board of directors decided to enlarge the tourney.

Tommy Barnes, Atlanta's open and amateur champion; Dr. Julius Hughes, former open and amateur champion, of Atlanta; Crawford Rainwater, low scoring amateur in the national open eliminations; Scott Hudson Jr., former Atlanta champion; Stanley Holditch, the sensation of the recent national intercollegiate tourney for several rounds, and Jack Cook, twice former southern interscholastic prep champion will head Atlanta's

INVITATION SET AT CANTON CLUB

CANTON, Ga., July 10.—The Canton Golf Club will sponsor its first annual invitation golf tournament Wednesday and Thursday, July 21-22, it was announced here Saturday afternoon.

Canton's new clubhouse will be officially opened to the public at the beginning of the tourney.

Qualifying rounds will be played on or before noon July 21 with the first round scheduled for the afternoon.

Cracker Mound Staff Trims Leading Clubs

How the present staff of Cracker pitchers has fared against first-division teams proves a bit interesting when the figures are applied. For instance, Bill Beckman has beaten Little Rock four times, Memphis once and won none and lost two against Birmingham. The records of the other Cracker pitchers against the current teams of the first division follow:

other trudged in with an announcement from Newnan.

This announcement became a very definite argument against telepathy of the mental variety. When the tournament committees at Canton and Newnan put their skulls together to decide on dates, no waves of thought came down from Canton to Newnan or up from Newnan to Canton.

Because the committees came up with the very same dates. Thus, golfers of the state are invited to what will be two very excellent tournaments. And while it is unfortunate the dates collided, so to speak, there are enough golfers to furnish both clubs with representative entry lists.

THE WEEK'S SHOWS.

The Saturday visitors were around yesterday in great numbers. Each with a story. There was Bill Breitenstein, the dirt track man. Travel has broadened Mr. Breitenstein. He is now two yards high and a yard and a half wide. The dirt track auto racers will race this afternoon at Lakewood park.

Frank Speer was around about his fight which looks to be the best fight Atlanta has ever had, the Ben Brown-Texas Joe Dundee bout of Thursday night. No sooner had he departed than Brown's manager, Sam Sobel, came in and mumbled that Brown was going to kayo Dundee.

Jimmy Finley, an old-time middleweight whom Atlanta fight fans of some years back will recall, is associated with Speer. The added experience makes them a better promotional team.

SEABISCUIT 1ST IN BUTLER RACE

NEW YORK, July 10.—(P)—Mrs. C. S. Howard's Seabiscuit, winner of the Brooklyn handicap, today captured the mile and three-sixteenths of the $20,000 Butler handicap at Empire City for his fifth successive victory. B. M. Byers' Thorson trailed by a length and half for second money with Mrs. Emil Denmark's Corinto another three lengths back in third place.

Ridden by John (Red) Pollard, veteran Butte (Mont.) jockey, Seabiscuit took the lead soon after the start and never was headed. He turned into the stretch with a half-length advantage over Thorson and then pulled away to win easily.

The four-year old son of Hard Tack was the 9-to-10 choice to win the purse of $18,025 and run his earnings for the year to $82,025. Out of eight races, he has won six and placed second in another.

The time of 1:58 3-5, made with top weight of 126 pounds in the saddle, was only two-fifths of a second off the track record set by Good Gamble in winning the event last year.

Strabo Wins $7,500 Handicap.

WILMINGTON, Del., July 10.—(P)—Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin's Strabo, a three-year-old which has yet to finish out of the money this year, chalked up his third straight victory today in accounting for the mile and an eighth of the $7,500 Diamond State handicap at Delaware park.

Winner of the Kent handicap and Dwyer stakes the last two times out, the improved son of Pompey finished the journey in 1:53 2-5. Closer to the early pace than usual, Strabo got up in the final strides to beat Myron Selznick's Pasha by a neck. Fred Kahn's Little Sleeper trailed by five lengths to take third money in the field of five.

As the prohibitive choice to win the purse of $6,125, Strabo paid only $2.60 for $2 in the mutuels.

Pastor, John Lewis To Fight Next Month

NEW YORK, July 10.—(P)—Jim Mullen, Chicago boxing promoter, announced here he has virtually closed for a 15-round bout in Chicago between Bob Pastor, New York heavyweight, and John Henry Lewis, light heavyweight champion, next month, possibly August 9.

"We are all set except for the signing of contracts and the selection of a definite date," Mullen said. "We will sign the contracts after I go back to Chicago and talk with the owners of Comiskey Park, where the fight will be held."

Is Baldness Excusable?

THESE MACHINES GROW HAIR

Baldness used to be an affliction with ineffectual remedies. So did B. O., athlete's foot, and halitosis. But in modern times remedies have been found for these social faults. Now X-ER-VAC treatments are guaranteed to grow hair in all cases approved by Mr. Alverson. Baldness detracts from a man's appearance—do you think it's excusable?

Johnny Hill Current Battering Sensation in Southern League

Hot Corner Star Gains 25 Points, Again 100 Batters

JUMPING TO .350 Deal Remains in First Place; Rose Leads in Home Runs

Deal Remains in First Place; Rose Leads in Home Runs

Jim Asbell, Knoxville outfielder, hit safely in both games July 7 to run his hitting streak to 13 consecutive games. He is batting .419 for 44 games.

Lindsey Deal, of Little Rock, however, is the real leader with an average of .377. Deal lost six points during the past week according to Howe News Bureau figures, but his 80 hits now include 33 for extra bases, and this is the third straight week in which he has been the leader.

Coaker Triplett, Memphis outfielder, is second with .372 and leads in total number of hits with 123, and in total bases with 173.

Emil Malho, of Atlanta, is next with .359 and has scored one or more runs in his last 11 games. Stuart Hofferth, of Nashville, has .357, followed by Taft Wright, of Chattanooga, with .354.

A short time ago, Johnny Hill, of Atlanta, seemed on his way out. Now major league clubs are hot on his trail and right now he is probably the most dangerous hitter in the league.

During the past week, Hill climbed from .325 to .350, and has hit safely in his last 12 straight games. His sale is expected any day now, for good third-basemen are scarce.

Eddie Rose, whose Atlanta Crackers secured from New Orleans early in the season, took over the lead in runs batted in and has 67 to his credit. "Kit" Carson, of New Orleans, has hit safely in his last 14 games.

The Atlanta Crackers hung up a new Southern league double-play record on July 4 in the first game of a double-header. They turned in six with the first five coming in the first five innings.

Bob Porter, Little Rock right-hander, held Chattanooga to one single on July 3. He did not issue a walk and received perfect support. It was his fifth win against one defeat and his fourth shutout of the season.

Del Wetherell, of Memphis, is the real leader with 10 wins and 3 losses, followed by his teammate, Mike Martynik, with 11 and 4.

Joe DiMaggio Gains Lead in Home Runs With 20.

Lou Gehrig, iron-man first baseman of the Yankees, remained far out in front of other American league batters during the past week. Lou's average shrank three points, but remains at a robust .371, 12 points higher than the new runner-up, Charley Gehring, of the Tigers.

Gehring passed his teammate, George Selkirk, hitting .359 to .355 for his outfielding play. Bruce Campbell, of Cleveland, is next with .351, while Rip Radcliff, White Sox outfielder, has skyrocketed to .348.

Gehrig's total of 91 hits includes 23 doubles, three triples and 13 homers for 150 total bases, retained his place at the top of the effective sluggers, having batted in 74 runs. Joe DiMaggio, of the Yankees, ran his home run total to 20 to wrest the lead from Greenberg, of Detroit, and the idle Ben Chapman, of Boston, has stolen 18 bases to lead in that somewhat forgotten department.

With Monte Pearson and Johnny Allen still idle, Roxie Lawson, of the Tigers, paces the pitchers with 10 victories and two defeats. Lefty Gomez, of the Yankees, also have won 10, but have been charged with four and six defeats, respectively. Gomez has struck out 99 men.

Gabby Hartnett Is Second, W. A. N. E. Third; Bryant Leads Hurlers

Another week finds Joe Medwick, colorful outfielder and ace of the St. Louis Cardinals, still sitting at the top of the National league batting heap with a mark of .404, a gain of one point over the busy holiday rush. To make his leadership more emphatic, he leads in runs batted in, in doubles with 28, and is tied for the home run crown with Mel Ott, of New York. Each has 17 circuit blows to his credit. Medwick has driven home 82 runs.

The race around the 360 mark is exceptionally hot, with Pinky Whitney at .361, Arky Vaughan and Billy Herman at .360 and Johnny Mize at .358.

Hartnett, burly Cubs catcher, is in second place with .358, three points ahead of W. A. N. E. of the Pirates. Fourth place furnishes a surprise, as Bill Jurgens, of the Cubs, heretofore a weak hitter, has pounded the ball at a .362 clip to soar among the batting elite.

Clay Bryant, of Chicago, with six wins and one loss, is the pitching leader. Lon Warneke, of the Cardinals, has won 10 and lost three, while Lou Fette, of the Bees, has won nine and lost three. The circuit's most famous stars, Carl Hubbell and Dizzy Dean, have won 11 and 12, respectively.

The Cardinals and Cubs set a record for durability on July 5 when they battled six and one-half hours before the Cubs were declared winners in both ends of a holiday double-header.

INCLUDE GAMES OF THURSDAY, JULY 8.

Cherokee From Cartersville Wins His Spurs at Third Base.

Maybe it's an old tribal feud. At any rate, Rudy York, the Cherokee from Cartersville, has been putting the Indian sign on the Cleveland tribe in the last week.

Last Saturday he socked a homer with the bases loaded against those Cleveland Indians. And Friday, less than a week later, he rammed another into the stands with two runners on base. Between times—on Independence Day to be exact—York slammed a home run with two on against the Chicago White Sox in the second game of a double-header to put the Tigers in second place. The week before he hit a homer with one on to beat Lefty Gomez and the Yankees.

And, due largely to his terrific hitting, they're staying around second place.

York, an all-star first baseman in the Texas league and American Association, seemed out of luck when Hank Greenberg reported fine shape and with his batting eye as sharp as ever.

There wasn't any room for Rudy York, it seemed.

But York refused to be convinced. There had been some talk, but few would believe he could displace Marvin Owen.

Then they sent York away to Montreal. But he was only gone two days. Owen was injured and York was back.

Former Atlantan Succumbs After Extended Illness; Burial To Be Here.

Mrs. S. H. Askeiw, 74-year-old former resident of Atlanta, died in a private hospital in Washington, D. C., Friday night after an extended illness.

Mrs. Askeiw, a native of Dayton, Ala., had lived in Atlanta for 30 years prior to last September, when she went to live with her daughter, Mrs. H. N. Clark, in Washington. She was the wife of the late S. H. Askeiw, expert accountant.

An enthusiastic religious worker, Mrs. Askeiw had been for many years a member of the North Avenue Presbyterian church.

She is survived by six daughters, Mrs. M. Clayton, of Atlanta; Mrs. Z. V. Myers and Mrs. Rufus Morrow, of Vitacuro, Mex.; Mrs. Edward Winslow, of Atlanta; Miss Sadie Askeiw, of Trenton, N. J.; and Mrs. H. N. Clark, of Washington, D. C.; three brothers, James M. Reeves, of Atlanta; Horace Reeves, of Lakeland, Fla.; and Catlin Reeves, of Birmingham, Ala.; and two sisters, Mrs. James Moore and Mrs. Frank Hayse, of Selma, Ala.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. R. M. Clayton, of 585 Ashby street, S. W., with the Rev. Harry Wade and Dr. Richard Orme Flynn officiating. Burial will be in West View cemetery, under the direction of H. M. Patterson & Son.

KILLED, 2 INURED IN SMASHUP HERE

Myrtle Massy Dies After Auto Hits Tree on Wieuca Road.

A young woman was killed and her three companions were injured, two seriously, about 12 o'clock last night when the car in which they were riding crashed at high speed into a small tree at the junction of Wieuca and Stratford roads.

The dead girl was Miss Myrtle Massy, apparently between 20 and 25 years of age, of 332 Clifford avenue, N. E. She sustained head and internal injuries and was pronounced dead on arrival at Crawford Long hospital.

Admitted to Crawford Long hospital was William A. Fleming, of 969 Longly avenue, who at 1:30 o'clock had not regained consciousness; Miss Lois Wilson, 21, of 913 Underwood avenue, described by attendants as having been "practically scalped," was semi-conscious. Fleming was said to have been the driver.

Crover, Stagg, of 253 Jones avenue, fourth occupant of the car, was admitted and then dismissed after doctors had examined a bump on his head.

Condition of both Miss Wilson and Fleming was described by attending physicians as being critical. Both sustained possible skull fractures.

FIRST HEAT VICTIM IN CITY HOSPITALIZED

The city's first heat stroke victim of the year—William Parks, 59, of 430 Capitol avenue—was admitted to Grady hospital in a serious condition last night.

Physicians said the suffered a cerebral concussion and heat stroke. Parks is reported to have collapsed about noon yesterday, but was not taken to the hospital until night.

SPIVEY TO ADDRESS EDUCATION PARLEY WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Notable Speakers Listed To Appear at Conference at University.

ATHENS, Ga., July 10.—John B. Spivey, president of the senate, will deliver the opening address at the fifteenth annual conference on education at the University of Georgia Wednesday night, when the state's educational leaders will meet to discuss various phases of the new school law and the development of an educational program for Georgia.

Following Mr. Spivey's address, Chancellor S. V. Sanford will discuss the contributions of institutions of higher learning to the state.

Harris Will Speak. Thursday morning, Roy V. Harris, speaker of the house of representatives, will outline a modern system of taxation for Georgia; President B. M. Grier, of the Georgia Education Association, will explain the association's educational program, and President T. J. Lance, of Young Harris College, will discuss the place of the junior college in the state program.

The powers, duties and responsibilities of county superintendents under the new law will be defined by State Superintendent M. D. Collins. Clifford McBride, of Montgomery, will explain the position of the county boards of education under the law, and J. Scott Davis, of Floyd county, will discuss the function of school trustees.

In the more technical part of the program Dr. John T. Wheeler, of the University of Georgia College of education, will outline the system of state school transportation; J. I. Allman, of the state department of education, will explain the regulations governing the school budget, and C. S. Hubbard, of the same department, will tell how the free textbooks are to be distributed and accounted for.

Virginia on Program. Among the highlights of the conference will be an address Thursday night by State Superintendent Sidney B. Hall, of Virginia, whose subject will be "Schools at Work on the Problem of Living."

The conference will be followed by the institute on curriculum and guidance. Others taking part in the conference are President Harmon W. Caldwell, of the University of Georgia; Superintendent Andrew Avery, of Decatur county; Superintendent J. E. Wells, of Fulton county; M. E. Thompson, of the state department of education; Margaret W. Boutelle, Miss Kate Hicks, Dr. Morris Mitchell, Miss Mildred English, Dr. Mildred Dawson and Superintendent Ralph Newton.

2 ENTER DUBLIN RACE FOR OFFICE OF MAYOR

DUBLIN, Ga., July 10.—A lively city campaign was assured today with announcement of two candidates for mayor in the July 28 primary. Dr. C. A. Hodges and Ned Sessions, to fill the office now held by Mayor M. A. Chapman.

Mayor Chapman has made no definite announcement in regard to his plans, but is not believed he will offer again. There is indication that at least one other candidate will enter the race, however, before entries close July 14.

Dr. Hodges and Mr. Sessions are now city aldermen.

Four aldermen are also to be elected in the July 28 primary, and several candidates have announced for those places. Alderman P. C. Hutchinson is opposed by M. R. Scarborough; Martin Willis has announced for the place now held by Alderman E. F. Moxley, and Alderman M. Z. Claxton has also announced for re-election. No candidate has yet declared for the place now held by Dr. Hodges, whose term expires this year, while Alderman Sessions' term does not expire until 1939.

GROCERS TO CONVENTION IN SAVANNAH JULY 19

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 10.—Members of the Georgia Retail Grocers' Association, representing every section of the state, will gather here Monday and Tuesday, July 19-20, for their 14th annual convention.

Among the prominent speakers listed to address the convention are Gene Flock, trade relations counsel of a nationally known company; J. W. McDonald, Jr., of Augusta; and Alton Harvey, of Thomaston, association president. The annual banquet and dance will be held Monday night at the Savannah hotel.

MOTORCADE TO MARK OPENING OF HIGHWAY

THOMASTON, Ga., July 10.—Thomaston road enthusiasts will sponsor a motorcade to be held Wednesday, July 21, in celebration of the opening of the new paved highway linking the two cities.

James R. Davis Jr., motorcade chairman, announces the motorcade will assemble in Thomaston, proceed to Barnesville, where a band concert will greet their arrival, and then return to the Rock, where a barbecue will be held.

A street dance will be held in Thomaston later, with Dr. John Blackburn, C. B. Short and Miss Marietta Stephens in charge.

Crash Victim Suffers 17 Fractures; Doctors Face Humpty Dumpty Task

Skull, Both Legs, Hips, One Arm and Other Breaks Shown by X-Ray in Marietta Hospital, But William Crowe Is Likely To Survive.

MARIETTA, Ga., July 10.—Doctors were preparing Saturday to "put Humpty-Dumpty back together again"—the patient being an auto wreck victim who sustained 17 fractures—in virtually all parts of his body—and appears likely to survive.

After William Crowe, 21, was brought to the local hospital, X-rays showed he suffered a fractured skull, several breaks in the right leg, two hip fractures, a broken arm, a broken left leg and several breaks of a lesser nature in the abdominal region. Possibility of other broken bones in the chest area was also seen, since technicians had not yet covered that area with the X-ray equipment.

Placing splints on all the breaks is an impossibility, but the man will be put in a plaster cast which will cover almost all the body, after steel pins have been put in holes drilled in the bones to hold them together.

Crowe, riding with a companion northward on Atlanta road near Smyrna, was hurt when the automobile overturned on a sharp curve, rolled down an embankment, and struck a telephone pole. The car was demolished. Crowe's companion, Clarence Brooks, sustained minor cuts and bruises and has been released from the hospital.

Waycross Records Sharp Postal Gain

Waycross, Ga., July 10.—Postoffice receipts set a new all-time record in Waycross during the past fiscal year, figures released today by Postmaster A. O. Johnson and Assistant Postmaster Sherod Collins disclose.

The fiscal year from July 1, 1936, to June 30, 1937, brought receipts of $56,833.85, as compared with $50,111.94 for the previous year. This represents an increase of 11.418 per cent for the fiscal year.

As an indication that business conditions are continually improving, it is shown that the increase for the past quarter was 15.334 per cent over the corresponding quarter of last year, and that the increase for the month of June was 20.056 per cent over the same month of last year.

VALDOSTA BUILDING IS BOUGHT BY BANK

Property Transfers, Construction Set Steady Pace in Last Week.

VALDOSTA, Ga., July 10.—Property transfers and construction plans this week claimed the limelight on Valdosta's stage of progress.

The Citizens & Southern National Bank this week acquired from the estate of the late Dr. A. Griffin the building adjoining its property on Patterson street. The building is now occupied by the Georgia Public Utilities.

It is unofficially stated that the building eventually will be added to the bank's present quarters, to meet a growing demand for more room.

The bank exchanged a business building on Ashley street, now occupied under a long-term lease by a chain grocery company.

Thomas Young Ashley and other heirs of the late Dr. C. Ashley sold a two-story brick business building at Patterson street and Hill avenue to J. E. Mathis, Valdosta contractor, for an unnamed price. It is reported Mathis bought the property as an investment.

A large automobile sales building is nearing completion at the corner of Ashley and Valley streets at a cost of approximately $16,000. Leonard Leffles also is extending his automobile sales plant on Ashley street, in the same block, with a $7,000 addition.

Work is being rushed on a new tobacco warehouse—the sixth for this city. It is expected to be completed in time for the opening of the tobacco marketing season July 29. Another warehouse expected to be completed during the coming week.

SINGING CONVENTION TO MEET IN JACKSON

JACKSON, Ga., July 10.—The Georgia State Singing Convention's quarterly session will be held here Sunday. Sessions will be held at the Jackson school auditorium, beginning at 10 a. m. with a picnic dinner served at noon, and singing in the afternoon. Singers and music publishers from Atlanta, Macon, Dallas, Texas; Lawrenceburg, Tenn., and other cities will be present. Several widely known quartets also will be here to take part in the song services.

GEORGIA'S PRISONERS TO RECONSTRUCTION BOOKS

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., July 10.—A complete printing plant will be installed at the new Tattall county prison for reconstruction school books, George Fisher, head of the industrial department of the state prison farm here, announced.

The state will distribute the books to students free. The automobile tag plant now at the prison farm here also will be transferred to the Tattall prison.

4-H GROUP ON TRIP. DOUGLASVILLE, Ga., July 10.—Eighty Douglas county 4-H Club members left today for a visit to Berry schools, Chickamauga park and Lookout mountain.

SCHOOL ELECTION CALLED. MARIETTA, Ga., July 10.—School trustees will be elected in each of the 19 school districts in Cobb county at special elections to be held July 24. F. T. Willis, school commissioner, said today.

COBB CAMPGROUND PLANS CENTENNIAL WEEK OF AUGUST 6 BEHIND 1936 MARKS

Indian Springs 47th Annual Session Also To Be Held Soon.

MARIETTA, Ga., July 10.—One of north Georgia's best known camp meeting grounds—the Marietta campground, located four miles south of this city on Roswell road—will celebrate its 100th anniversary the week of August 6 to 11.

Outstanding features of the centennial will include special homecoming programs, a historical pageant by descendants of the founders and sermons by leading Georgia preachers.

The Rev. W. M. Jones, presiding elder of the Marietta district of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and the campground board of trustees are completing detailed plans for the celebration.

Mrs. W. E. Kemp, historian, has written a pageant and a history of the 100-year-old gathering place, in which will be recounted many of the interesting events which formerly made camp meeting time the high spot of the year in this section.

INDIAN SPRINGS PLANS AUGUST 5-15 MEETING

JACKSON, Ga., July 10.—The 47th annual session of the Indian Springs camp meeting will open August 5 and continue through August 15. Preparations are being made for the opening and some cottage owners are moving in and will remain until the close of the services. Reservations being received indicate a record attendance.

Religious workers for the 1937 session will include Dr. H. C. Morrison, of Louisville, Ky.; Rev. John F. Owen and Dr. C. H. Babcock and Rev. Homer Jenkins, of Atlanta, director of music. Young people's work will be in charge of Dr. J. M. Glenn, of McAfee, who is also vice president of the board of trustees.

A successor to the late R. F. Burden, Macon, who served as president of the board of trustees, is named when the trustees meet August 10 to elect officers for the ensuing year.

Biscuit Success All in Kneading, Says Extension Food Specialist

ATHENS, Ga., July 10.—(P)—Grandma knew her business when it came to making biscuits. Miss Katherine Lanier, food specialist for the Georgia Agricultural Extension Service, said today laboratory tests have confirmed the household tradition that light handling of biscuit dough results in better products.

"With just enough stirring to moisten the ingredients, biscuits dough dropped on the baking sheet produces tender, crisp biscuits," Miss Lanier said. "The United States Bureau of Home Economics determined this in recent studies of quick breads."

The same dough spread on a board and cut and baked resulted in even, crusty, flat biscuits, she said. Dough which received 15 to 18 strokes of kneading produced tall, light, flaky, tender biscuits, but too much kneading resulted in tough, flat, close-grained biscuits, she added.

Miss Lanier offered a standard recipe:

"Three cups of sifted flour, four teaspoons of baking powder, one teaspoon of salt, six tablespoons of fat and one cup of milk or enough to make a soft dough. Bake at 450 degrees Fahrenheit." She said folding and rolling the dough several times resulted in better biscuits than kneading it on the board.

COBB PLACES CURB ON DANCE HALLS

Drive To Dry Up County Is Spurred; Raids Are Reported.

MARIETTA, Ga., July 10.—Commissioner Charles M. Head today revealed that he had issued licenses to 14 dance halls, each subject to revocation if any criminal violation of law occurs at the night spot. Thirty roadhouses, in all, have been licensed to operate in Cobb, the commissioner said, and 70 places have permits to sell beer.

Two permits have been revoked since they were issued. Meanwhile, city, county and sheriff's officers had counted heavily in their drive to "dry up Cobb." During the past week three stills have been destroyed and two establishments raided. Friday night, officers captured a bootlegger's auto after a short chase in the city, and confiscated a small amount of liquor. They later arrested a negro in connection with the case.

Six arrests are listed by sheriff's officers in connection with the raids. They are as follows: J. H. Duncan, 25; J. F. Duncan, 50, his father, and Tommy Hay, all released under $500 bonds after deputies located two stills in a thick patch of woods in Howell district, near the Chattahoochee river. In this raid 1,500 gallons of mash, 16 gallons of liquor and other paraphernalia were destroyed, and a quantity of sugar and malt confiscated.

ROAD SURVEY BEGUN.

MARIETTA, Ga., July 10.—Final survey of a 3.5-mile stretch of Powder Springs road, which links Marietta with Powder Springs, is one of the most important unimproved routes in the county, was started Saturday by state highway engineers. Commissioner Charles M. Head said the highway would be improved from the end of present paving to Mt. Zion church and that work is expected to start within about two months.

MORE WAREHOUSES BEING ESTABLISHED IN MARKETING ZONE

Growers Curing Bright Leaf, Preparatory To Selling, Beginning July 29.

By the Associated Press. Favorable weather conditions during recent weeks have brought from the tobacco belt encouraging reports of expected good prices for the Georgia leaf crop this year.

At Douglas, a leading market last year, Coffee County Agent H. J. France said: "I see no reason why tobacco sold on the Douglas market should not bring a good price."

Ware County Agent M. Gordon Nessmith, at Waycross, another market, said the quality of this year's crop gives promise of good prices.

Throughout the belt growers were busy packing tobacco into curing barns preparatory to the market opening July 29.

New Valdosta Warehouse. At Valdosta, workmen were busy completing an additional warehouse, the sixth there. The warehouse will be operated by Frank Yancy, of Clarksville, Va.

The Nat Smith brick warehouse recently was completed at Valdosta. Four warehouses operated there last year. Valdosta reported curings in Lowndes county well advanced, with much of the leaf expected to be ready for sale when the market opens.

A series of barn dances was launched at the Waycross warehouse last night and will continue throughout the marketing season. County Agent Nessmith, who has just completed a tour of the Ware county tobacco fields, said: "It looks good in the fields, and it is curing out fine. Weather conditions in most communities have been favorable."

Coffee's Acreage. Coffee County Agent France, at Douglas, said acreage in that section is about the same as last year, but the yield will be off about 10 per cent since the leaf is curing out light.

Favorable weather conditions have vastly improved the crop in this section and the late tobacco looks good at this time," he said. At Metter, R. G. Daniell, president of the Kiwanis Club, said plans are being made for the biggest opening day festival in the market history. Two warehouses, the same as last year, will be operated at Metter.

Growers reported a good quality crop is expected in Candler county.

At Tifton, leading Georgia market for the past six years, tobacco men reported the crop in good condition and predicted satisfactory prices for the best grades of the leaf. Doubt was expressed as to demand for common grades.

Five Houses in Tifton. Five warehouses, the same as last year, will operate at Tifton. The warehouses include 290,000 square feet of floor space.

Warehousesmen have arrived at Pelham and are well pleased with the prospects for the season. They state the tobacco being cured out is of the best quality in several seasons. Mitchell county acreage is estimated to be about 25 per cent more than that of last year.

Pelham has two of the largest tobacco warehouses in the state, and a third warehouse will be leased within the next few days by warehousemen from North Carolina, thus giving Pelham three large houses.

In Richmond, Va., yesterday buyers said the United States Tobacco Association had taken no action on a request for establishment of a leaf market at Quitman, Ga.

The official list of Georgia markets announced by the association includes Adel, Baxley, Blackshear, Douglas, Hahira, Hazlehurst, Metter, Moultrie, Nashville, Pelham, Statesboro, Tifton, Valdosta, Vidalia and Waycross.

NATIONAL LEAF CROP SHOWS SHARP GAIN. WASHINGTON, July 10.—(P)—There is an indicated increase of 23 per cent in tobacco crop production over last year, the crop reporting board of the Agriculture Department said.

The indicated production for this year is fixed in the report at 1,420,943,000 pounds. The estimate is based on the condition of the crop as of July 1.

Although acreage planted to tobacco is 17.6 per cent more than harvested last year, no increases were reported for Georgia and Maryland.

The board reports the indicated production is not above the production during the 1928-32 period.

The acreage planted to tobacco was reported to total 1,689,700. This is 10 per cent less than the five-year average acreage and about 20 per cent less than the record acreage harvested in 1930.

SAVANNAH MERCHANT FOUND SLAIN IN STORE. SAVANNAH, Ga., July 10.—(P)—A merchant identified by Savannah police as M. Center was found dead in his store on West Broad street early this morning, the police reported. He had been slain, beaten in the head with a blunt instrument.

The police say Center opened his store at 6:45 o'clock this morning, and was found dead by a customer at 7:50 o'clock.

There are 15 million dogs in the United States, according to an estimate and over two million are pedigreed animals.

Miss Cortez Wilson To Wed Mr. Lomas At July Ceremony

COMMERCE, Ga., July 10.—Of interest is the announcement by Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Wilson of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Cortez Wilson, to Clarence Harmon Lomas, of Columbia, S. C. Miss Wilson is a graduate of the Teachers' College in Athens and attended the University of Georgia and Duke University. During the past two years she has been a member of the faculty of the John de la Howe School at McCormick, S. C. The bride-elect is the sister of Mrs. Charles E. Dupree, of Atlanta; Mrs. O. W. Jones, of Lincolnton, and Thomas K. Wilson, of Athens and Baxley. Mr. Lomas is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Lomas, of Columbia. He received his B. S. degree from Clemson College and his M. S. degree from the University of Missouri. He is the assistant superintendent of the John de la Howe School at McCormick. His brothers are T. C., R. D., H. The marriage will be solemnized at the home of the bride-elect's parents the latter part of July, the date to be announced later.

Miss Cox Weds James N. Oglesby.

The marriage of Miss Ruth Everett Cox to James Morris Oglesby, took place June 26, at the Druid Hills Baptist church, with the Rev. Louis D. Newton officiating. Those attending the nuptials included only the families and a few friends of the bridal couple.

The musical nuptial was presented by Mrs. Gertrude Johnson, the organist, and Mrs. Edith Peterson, as soloist.

The bride's only attendant was Mrs. Jack Crenshaw, matron of honor, who wore shell pink lace, fashioned along graceful lines. Her accessories were white and she carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

The bride was modishly attired in powder blue lace, and her hat was of French felt in matching shade. Purple orchids, in a shoulder bouquet, completed her costume.

Mrs. Thomas Marvin Everette, mother of the bride, wore blue chiffon and a corsage shoulder bouquet of gardenias.

Mr. and Mrs. Oglesby are spending their honeymoon in Florida. After July 12, they will reside at 236 Washington street, in Macon.

Unique Doll Wedding To Feature Marilyn McNaughton's Birthday

By Sally Forth.

THE impressive ceremony uniting two little dolls, named Princess Elizabeth and Prince Charming, will be an important event on the social calendar next Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The dolls belong to Marilyn McNaughton, and were once the prized property of Marjorie, her eight-year-old little sister, whom the angels carried to her heavenly home several years ago. The dolls were gifts of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Orr to their deceased granddaughter, and have lain away in tissue paper ever since Marjorie went away, but were given to Marilyn just recently.

The wedding, to which engraved invitations have been issued, takes place on Marilyn's sixth birthday anniversary at the Peachtree Battle avenue residence of Mr. and Mrs. E. Lee McNaughton, her parents. About 50 little friends will attend the service to be performed in the drawing room by a doll named Rev. John Stafford, attired in black ministerial robes.

The miniature improvised altar, banked with palms and ferns, centered with a white basket filled with white gladioli and baby breath, and flanked with seven-branched brass candelabra holding tiny white candles, will be erected before the fireplace. White pedestals entwined with white satin ribbon and topped with valley lilies tied with white satin streamers, will outline the white crash aisle through which the bride party will pass when the Lohengrin wedding march peals forth from a phonograph record. Jimmy and Andrew Williamson, who live across the street from Marilyn, will usher the guests to their seats.

The bride personnel will include the maid of honor, Dorothy Forrest, a doll given Marilyn by Dr. and Mrs. Forrest Barfield, her uncle and aunt. She will wear pale pink tulle, a pale pink poke bonnet trimmed with blue ribbon, and carry a bouquet of pink gardenias showered with valley lilies. Two little doll flower girls, Nancy Haynes, the daughter of Mrs. Eugene W. Haynes, Marilyn's godmother, and Shirley Temple, a present from Mr. and Mrs. John C. Orr, her uncle and aunt, will precede the bride. Pink organza will fashion their costumes, blue ribbon bows will adorn their curly blond tresses, and they will carry baskets filled with sweetheart roses. Another doll, Jack Orr, dressed in a white satin suit, will carry the ring on a white satin pillow.

When the pretty brunette bride enters the drawing room, she will be garbed in a white satin gown with a long and graceful train. Her lace-edged tulle veil will be adjusted to her bobbed brown hair by a coronet of orange blossoms. White roses and valley lilies tied with white satin ribbon will compose her bouquet, and she will meet the groom-elect and his best man at the altar. Prince Charming, whose name is Samuel Alexander, will wear gray-striped trousers and a black cutaway coat. Edward Davis will be best man, and his attire will be like that of Prince Charming.

Margaret Camilla Wood, one of Marilyn's best friends, will keep the bride's book, and after the ceremony those lifting tunes, "Wedding of the Painted Dolls" and "The Wedding of Jack and Jill," will be played on the phonograph to enliven the attitude of the little guests. Virginia Anne Harkness and Margaret Sanders will assist in entertaining, and the lace-covered table in the dining room will be beautified with a three-tiered birthday cake topped with a miniature bride and groom and ornamented with six pink candles. The cake will contain such symbols as rings, buttons, thimbles, wishbones and dimes. The girls will receive dolls dressed as brides for souvenirs, and policeman outfits will be presented as favors to the boys.

Marilyn's pale blue chiffon dress will enhance her loveliness, for she has red-gold curls all over her head and an exquisite complexion. She will don blue satin slippers and wear pale blue ribbon on her hair, and will be assisted in receiving her guests at the birthday party by Mr. and Mrs. McNaughton.

WHEN Sarah Dobbs was in Europe last summer she, like everyone else, had several names of "friends of friends" to meet. And she, again like everyone else, took the procedure calmly. If she met them it was all right, too. That is, she took it calmly until she got to London and there she changed completely.

Instead of sight-seeing, and taking in museums and theaters, Sarah developed a sudden and alarming attachment for phones and mail boxes in a frantic attempt to contact two of these perfect strangers. Her friends didn't understand her frenzy then, but they sympathized anyway because there really was an excessive number of phone calls.

Miss Evelyn Davis Weds W. C. Stewart

Mrs. Evelyn Neidlinger Davis, of Savannah, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Lyle Bryan, of Atlanta, announce the marriage of Miss Helen Davis and Winfred Conway Stewart, of Athens and Atlanta, which was solemnized on Sunday afternoon in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan, on Peachtree Hills avenue, Rev. A. Lee Hale officiating.

The music and dining rooms were decorated with gladioli, shasta daisies and white tapers. On the living room mantel were silver candlesticks holding white tapers and silver bowls of shasta daisies. Queen Anne's lace and ferns, banded in front were palms, which formed a background for white floor baskets filled with Queen Anne's lace, and tied with tulle bows. The couple stood under a white wedding bell and dove, under which brides of several generations in the bride's family, have been married.

A musical program was presented by H. W. Scott, pianist; Mrs. Edith Heidt and Hubert Davis, brother of the bride, soloists. Miss Mildred Davis, sister of the bride, gown in pink chiffon, over pink satin with pink roses in her hair, was maid of honor. Mrs. Ernest Schuster, another sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore Wallis blue satin with rhinestone trimming. Both carried colonial bouquets.

Little Miss Betty Schuster was flower girl and she wore flowered tulle, with blue sash and hair ribbon. The bride entered with her cousin, W. Lyle Bryan, who gave her in marriage and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, his father, R. A. Stewart. She wore white satin made princess style with puffed sleeves. The train and silver lace panel were from the wedding dress of Mrs. W. L. Bryan, the former Miss Anne Arden, of Guyton. The long tulle veil belonged to her aunt, Mrs. W. C. Neidlinger, the former Miss Anne Armstrong. She wore an old bracelet given her by her grandmother, Mrs. Catharine Elizabeth Davis. Her bouquet was of white roses showered with valley lilies.

Mrs. Evelyn Davis, mother of the bride, wore pink crepe trimmed in blue with corsage of pink sweet peas. Mrs. R. A. Stewart, mother of the groom, was gown in blue lace with a corsage of pink sweet peas.

Miss Blasingame To Become Bride Of Paul Benson at August Rites

The cordial interest of a host of friends is centered in the announcement made today by Mrs. Claudine Blalock Blasingame of the engagement of her daughter, Ethelyn Jean, to Joseph Paul Benson. The marriage takes place on August 14 at Grace Methodist church.

The bride-elect is a lineal descendant of two of Georgia's most prominent families. She is the maternal granddaughter of the late Judge Eugene M. Blalock, prominent Atlanta attorney and financier, who founded College Park, and was an extensive real estate operator. Judge Blalock married Miss Ida Byrd Dorsey, member of an old and aristocratic family of Lovejoy.

The bride-elect has two sisters, Mrs. John Aldredge Moore and Miss Ida Byrd Blasingame, both of Atlanta.

Mr. Benson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer J. Benson, of Sylvestor, and a brother of M. Garland Benson, of Lake City, Fla., and H. Stanley Benson, of Columbus. He received his education at Tech High and Georgia School of Technology, where he was a member of Delta Sigma Pi fraternity, later becoming associated with the American Telephone & Telegraph Company. Mr. Benson has achieved recognition in radio and musical circles during the past few years for his singing over local radio stations and a national network.

Miss Mary Walker, William Fox Wed

The marriage of Miss Mary Walker and William Fox Wed was solemnized yesterday at noon at the St. Mark Methodist church, the Rev. Dr. Lester Rumble, pastor of the church, officiating. Prior to and during the ceremony Carroll Ramsey, organist, played a program of nuptial music.

Palms and ferns banked the altar in the center of which were placed three seven-branched candelabras holding white tapers. In front of the center candelabra arrangement was a floor basket holding white gladioli and madonna lilies, flanked by a pair of candelabra. The chancel was entwined with southern smilax.

The ushers were James W. Setze Jr., Nesbit Tilly, John R. Durham and Clarence Stubblebine.

The junior bridesmaids were Miss Lida Murphy Walker, sister of the bride, and Miss Ruth Middlebrooks. They wore white dotted pink tulle frocks, fashioned over pink tulle with wide collars trimmed in Irish crochet and puffed sleeves. Their bouquets were tiny nosegays of pastel flowers tied with yellow ribbon.

The bride entered with her father, Lloyd A. Walker, by whom she was given in marriage, and was met at the altar by the groom and his brother, Charles Fox, of Memphis, his best man. She wore a gown of navy tucked sheer over sky blue tulle, with a fitted dressmaker coat of the same material. She wore a hat of navy felt trimmed with white and blue chiffon streamers which reached to the hemline in back. Her bouquet was an old-fashioned nosegay of white roses and valley lilies tied with white satin ribbon.

Mrs. Lloyd A. Walker, mother of the bride, wore navy sheer over matching tulle, with a navy hat trimmed with blue cornflowers, and a bouquet of gardenias. Mrs. Willie Lyon Fox, mother of the groom, wore black chiffon and a black straw hat. Her corsage was of gardenias.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Walker entertained at a luncheon at the Atlanta Athletic Club for the bridal party, out-of-town guests, and a few close friends.

Following the luncheon Mr. and Mrs. Fox left by motor for their wedding trip. Mrs. Fox chose for her traveling ensemble a hand-

National D. A. R. Chairman of Real Daughters Will Visit Foreign Countries

By Mrs. T. J. Sappington, of Eastman, State D. A. R. Assistant Editor.

Mrs. Julian McCurry, national chairman of Real Daughters, with a party of friends, sailed from New York on June 29, on the S. S. Rotterdam for Europe. She will spend several months in sightseeing in Iceland, Norway, Sweden, Finland, Denmark, Holland, Russia, Scotland, France and England.

Mrs. McCurry is an outstanding leader in state and national D. A. R. activities. She is honorary state regent, past vice president general N. S. D. A. R., national chairman Real Daughters, and national vice chairman of Constitution Hall finance.

With her native ability and ready humor, Mrs. McCurry will be an asset to any chapter that can secure her as guest speaker on D. A. R. programs during the coming year. After her return, begin at once to make engagements with her to visit your chapter meetings, and request her to present a travelogue on your program. Mrs. Peter W. Godfrey, of Madison, past state regent D. A. R., is also a member of the travel party.

Mrs. John S. Adams, Dublin, state regent, has returned home after a much needed rest in the mountains. Though her grasp on the D. A. R. reigns has never relaxed, since her vacation she is even more alert than ever; and now she is sending an S. O. S. to all chapter regents: "Please send at once any changes in officers to Mrs. Stewart Colley, of Grantville, state D. A. R. recording secretary. This is very necessary if officers listed in proceedings are correct. And all material must be in the hands of printers at an early date."

Bible story-telling and recreation. Each year, for the past 15, a Bible school has been held at this center. At the closing exercise Friday evening, diplomas were given to those attending every day. Dr. W. H. Knight was the guest speaker.

This school was sponsored by the W. M. U. of Atlanta with Mrs. J. W. Awtry, superintendent, through the Goodwill Center. Miss Carrie Bockelman is the efficient director. Mrs. E. G. Jackson is the supervisor.

Goodwill Center Closes Bible School

The Daily Vacation Bible school of Kate P. Dawson Goodwill Center, which has been in progress for the past two weeks, has come to a close. The attendance was large, and a group of teachers representing different churches of the city, did a lasting piece of work, consisting of handwork,

Miss Stephens, Mr. Jacobsen Will Be Wed

ATHENS, Ga., July 10.—Of interest is the announcement made by Dr. and Mrs. R. P. Stephens of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mabel Chadwick Stephens to Robert Parker Jacobsen, of Boston, Mass., the marriage to be solemnized in August.

Miss Stephens graduated from the University of Georgia in 1935, where she was outstanding in campus activities and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa. She took graduate work in history at Radcliffe College, and for the past year has served as an instructor in the history department of the University of Georgia.

She is descended from distinguished families of the south, being related on her mother's side to the Chadwicks, Bells and Shepherds of Virginia and North Carolina. On her paternal side she is related to the Browns and Stephens, of Georgia. Her father is dean of the graduate school and head of the department of mathematics at the University of Georgia.

Mr. Jacobsen is the son of Mrs. Ella Gillette Jacobsen and the late Mr. Jacobsen of Crete, Neb. He took his master of arts degree at George Washington University, and his doctorate of philosophy from the University of Maryland. For the past two years he has held the du Pont research fellowship in chemistry at Harvard University.

At the right is Miss Lucy Lanier, of West Point, whose marriage to Otis Florence Nixon Jr., of LaGrange, will be an important event of early fall.

Miss Dobbs Is Betrothed To Mr. Blanc

Enlisting cordial social interest is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Sarah Virginia Dobbs and Louis Alec Blanc, of San Leanders, Cal., formerly of Trinidad, British West Indies, which is made today by the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willis Dobbs. The wedding will take place in the early fall.

Miss Dobbs is the only daughter of her parents, well-known residents of Atlanta. Her mother is the former Miss Virginia White, of Villa Rica, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Archibald White. The paternal grandparents of the bride-elect are the late Mr. and Mrs. Cicero Chappell Dobbs, of Woodstock.

Miss Dobbs attended North Avenue Presbyterian School, where she was crowned Napsionia in her senior year. She was graduated from William and Mary College in Williamsburg, Va., where she was president of the Woman's Pan-Hellenic council and a member of the Mortar Board and the Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. She spent the summer following her graduation traveling abroad.

Mr. Blanc is the son of Mrs. E. G. Blanc, of Trinidad, and the late Dr. Blanc. His mother is the former Miss Evelyn Anderson, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Louis Philip Anderson, of Trinidad. The groom-elect's paternal grandparents are the late Mr. and Mrs. Henri Blanc, of Trinidad, and his brothers are Gerald Blanc, of England; Dr. Norris Blanc, of Tabago, B. W. I.; Cecil Blanc, of Kilgore, Texas, and Cyril and Hugh Blanc, of Trinidad. He has

Miss Fleece Weds James Halverstadt

Centering wide social interest and characterized by beauty of appointment was the quiet marriage ceremony at which Miss Fleece became the bride of James Halverstadt yesterday afternoon at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Hugh C. Fleece, on Fifteenth street.

The Rev. G. Allen Fleece, of Chattanooga, Tenn., brother of the bride, officiated, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian church, in the presence of the two families and a few close friends. Miss Emily Parmalee, organist, and Mrs. D. C. Adams, soloist, gave a program of nuptial music prior to and during the ceremony.

The vows were said in the living room in front of an improvised altar of palms and ferns. Tall floor baskets placed at intervals were filled with white calla lilies and cathedral candelabra held gleaming white tapers. Throughout the house the bridal color motif of green and white was carried out.

Miss Eloisa Alexander was the bride's maid of honor and only attendant. She wore an afternoon model of blue mousseline de soie fashioned on graceful lines with puffed sleeves and a picture hat to match and she carried an old-fashioned bouquet of talisman roses and blue delphinium.

The lovely bride entered with Henry A. Wise, of Craddockville, Va., a close friend of her father, the late Hugh Fleece, by whom she was given in marriage. They were met at the improvised altar by the groom and his best man, Albert Halverstadt, of Cincinnati, Ohio, his brother. She was becomingly gowned in her mother's wedding dress of ivory liberty satin. The model was fashioned with long shirred sleeves and the front of the gown featured a wide panel of duchess lace. She wore an ivory tulle veil, the Juliet cap of which was caught to her dark hair with orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Fleece, mother of the bride, was gowned in white marquisette with a cluster of gardenias. Mrs. Herbert Halverstadt, mother of the groom, wore flesh-colored chiffon and lace with a corsage of gardenias.

There was no reception, the couple leaving immediately for a trip to Maine. Mrs. Halverstadt traveled in a smart ensemble of navy blue triple sheer, trimmed with chartreuse worn with a navy and chartreuse hat and navy accessories. Her corsage was a cluster of orchids. Mr. and Mrs. Halverstadt will establish residence at 136 Eighth street upon their return and will be cordially welcomed as acquisitions to the younger married contingent.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Halverstadt, of Cincinnati; Miss Catherine Alexius, of Wilmington, N. C.; Miss Lucile Cairns, of Gainesville, Fla.; Miss Virginia Caldwell, of Danville, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. G. Allen Fleece, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; William Johnson, of Birmingham, Ala.; and Henry A. Wise, of Craddockville, Va.

Child Friendship Program Offered For Consideration of Clubwomen

The child welfare division of the General Federation of Women's Clubs presents Indiana's "Child Friendship Program" for the consideration of other states. The plan is to look forward with the backward with the delinquent. It efficiently put into operation over any state, this program will immensely save money by lessening the ravages and wastages of crime and by reducing our future prison population. It will make society more safe by preventing underprivileged children from developing into criminals. It will save for useful and happy lives thousands of little ones who are now headed for disaster. We are not asked to burden ourselves with many children, but merely be a friend to one. To save a child is our duty.

The friend is not expected to adopt the child, to take him into her home to live, nor to spend any considerable amount of money on him, but simply to be a real friend. If you are the friend, you will get acquainted with the child and his family in some natural, casual way. Study the needs of the child—his habits, likes and dislikes, strong and weak points, the conditions of his environment which should be changed, and what he needs for normal development—and then, when you have thus diagnosed his case, make out a program of help for him. Indiana offers this program to check things to do for the child you befriend: 1. Personal. Get acquainted; win confidence; do favors; take riding, to ball game, to church, to movie. Remember his birthday; have physical examination; correct defects; stimulate cleanliness. See that he has proper food and clothing. Talk with to correct ideas and ideals.

2. Home. Be neighborly with family. Help some member get a job. Encourage mother, help with child training, housekeeping, budget. Encourage child to assume some responsibility toward his family. Lead family to take larger part in community activities. 3. School. See that child continues education; that teacher and course are suited to child; that teacher takes special interest in child; that child takes part in school activities. 4. Public library. Arrange that child can borrow books; that librarian becomes interested in him; that child receives direction in his reading. 5. Recreation. Arrange for child to belong to some helpful organization. 6. Friends. See that child has wholesome associates and friends. 7. Industrial. Help child get after-school job; see that he learns work habits; that he trains for a position. 8. Religious. Put the child in contact with church and Sunday school.

Mrs. W. W. Stark Pays Tribute To Juniors of Georgia Federation

In a message from Mrs. W. W. Stark, of Commerce, chairman of Bible literature in the General Federation of Women's Clubs, is included the following tribute to junior clubwomen: "There never has been an age or country when women have been given the privileges and opportunity of the young women of our own day. Our junior clubwomen have learned that one of the happiest things to learn is their obligation to other people in the world. The Bible's beautiful woman possessed these virtues, for we are told that she stretched forth her hands to the poor, yea, she reached forth her hands to the needy. She responded to their calls and pleaded for them. One reason we may be sure why God gave us junior clubwomen, is because He wanted them especially to spread the gospel of His love and kindness abroad in the world today. All about us are the lonely, sick, discouraged, and distressed who need to be lifted by the love they can show in gracious ways.

"No other organization of young women in the world has responded to the world's needy call as have the Junior Clubwomen of America. Go forth in the greatness of your mission to love, to inspire, to heal, to comfort, and to make the world more beautiful and more blessed and 'Thou shalt be a crown in the hand of the Lord, and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God.' The Bible contains the most beautiful, the most majestic, the most powerful, the most brilliantly illuminated teachings that have ever been enshrined in literature."

Mrs. Stark offers a prize of $10 to the junior clubwoman who writes the best essay of not less than 500 words and not more than 700 words on the subject: "What the Bible in the 'Education for Living' program means to junior clubwomen." Requirements for Bible essay prize: The essay must be based on Scriptural teachings and contain vital spiritual lessons, in the "Education for Living" program of junior clubwomen. Essays must be typewritten, signed with a non de plume. The writer must be a member of a Junior Woman's Club with membership in the General Federation. Name of club, date of joining the General Federation must accompany all essays, enclosed in a separate envelope. Essays must be judged first in the state of the writer. Send to state chairman of Bible literature, Mrs. Kate Green Hess, 230 Howard street, Atlanta, Ga. Essays will forward the winning essay to Mrs. Stark not later than February 1, 1938.

The Bible contains the finest drama of any book ever written. Its philosophy has an application to our everyday life which gives us drama that challenges the artistic genius of the ages." Mrs. Stark offers a prize of $15 for the best Bible pageant based upon the Scriptures. This prize is for senior clubwomen, and the requirements are: The pageant must be based on Bible theme, and not require more than 30 minutes for its presentation. The pageant must be typewritten, signed with a non de plume. The writer must be a member of a club with General Federation membership. Name of club, date of joining the General Federation, must accompany all pageants, enclosed in a separate envelope. Pageants must be judged first in the state of the writer, and sent to the state chairman of Bible literature. The state chairman will forward the winning pageant to Mrs. Stark not later than February 1, 1938.

Mrs. J. A. Dyar, former president of the Franklin County Federation of Women's Clubs, says the recently established club market in Lavonia is already filling a long-felt want. She quotes Rush Burton, editor, as saying, "This was not a Santa Claus. It will take time and patience and disappointments, but eventually everyone will be benefited." At the market forum held Saturday, one of the main points brought out was that every person who expects to sell produce or foods of any kind should have a physical examination, and get a report from a physician. All present pledged their full co-operation.

Asked what makes for club leadership, federation leaders have designated the following requirements: Consecration to the work that is undertaken. Initiative.

of the military department of North Georgia College of Dahlonega, gave an interpretation of international relations from the military point of view. Other guest speakers were Mrs. A. G. Mickel, of Robertstown, and Mrs. Charles White, of Helen, Ga.

Mrs. Mickel, as district treasurer, stressed the value and importance of dues being sent in promptly. Mrs. White, as secretary of international relations, spoke on that phase of club work.

On Saturday evening the club sponsored an old-fashioned square dance which served both as a source of entertainment for members and friends of the club, and as a means of raising funds for carrying out club projects.

Mrs. Wallace Heads Club at Douglas

Officers elected at the June meeting to serve the Douglas Woman's Club for the ensuing year are Mrs. J. W. Bronson; treasurer, Mrs. John D. Adams; editor, Mrs. J. Rod Davis; parliamentarian, Mrs. B. W. Gray; auditor, Mrs. A. W. Haddock; custodian, Mrs. Hoke Davis.

Mrs. W. T. Cottingham was chairman of the nominating committee composed of Mrs. J. L. Cochran and Mrs. A. W. Haddock. The retiring president, Mrs. Alice B. Longino, presided, hearing reports from various chairmen. Complete reports were requested for the October meeting. Mrs. W. L. Stovall reported for the library committee and stated that 8,000 readers had been served during the time the library had been kept open, and 100 new books bought. Mrs. T. H. Johnston made a splendid health talk and members pledged co-operation in promoting health projects. Hostesses were Mesdames A. F. Coffee, George Saunders, Raymond Vickers and J. A. Tomlinson.

Chatsworth Juniors Hold Meeting

Chatsworth Junior Woman's Club met Friday afternoon with Misses Raney, Ruth and Maga Lynn Goswick, at their home which was attractive with varicolored flowers. The meeting was called to order by the president, Miss Willellen Brooks and the minutes were read by Miss Maga Lynn Goswick.

An interesting discussion on "The purpose and plans of Junior Clubwomen" was led by Miss Raney Goswick. During the business session plans were arranged for the house party which the Good judgment, perseverance, sense of humor. Speaking ability. Being fully alive to the ethical qualities of leadership. Putting home first and club leadership second. Being one selected, and not one who seeks. Recognition that she is only a part of the federation, and that the federation does not exist for her alone. Big vision. Ability to choose the right woman for the right position. An open mind and an understanding heart. Loyalty to the work and workers. Personal integrity and a square deal. Sympathy. Courtesy, tolerance. Sense of justice and friendliness. Hard work. Not self-aggrandizement. Courage in the face of opposition.

Upon Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar, candidate for the office of president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, has been conferred the honorary degree of doctor of humane letters, by Linfield College, Oregon. In this citation the speaker characterized her as a "humanitarian; educator in public health; leader in women's organization; dauntless warrior against tuberculosis; defender of children; exponent of homemaking; pioneer of public health nursing; a woman of ability and dedicated life; demonstrator of woman's capacity for citizenship; with skill and courage making the world about her safer from the threat of disease and happier for all."

Independence Day, 1937, has passed into history. This anniversary commemorates our birth as a nation, and it demonstrates that only through government instituted to secure such freedom, can a country progress and endure. By proclamation of the President of the United States, the period beginning September 17, 1937, and continuing to September 30, 1938, has been set apart for the celebration of the framing of the Constitution of the United States. A main objective of the department of American citizenship of the G. F. W. C. is that women be brought to a realization of the obligation on their part to share the responsibility and privilege of safeguarding the fundamental principles of the Constitution. Copies of "Know Your Constitution" may be secured from the secretary of Georgia federation headquarters.

members will give at Cohutta Springs. The club was divided into two groups which will vie with each other in a membership drive for a month when the losing group will entertain the winning group. A social period followed and the hostesses served delicious refreshments.

State Publicity Chairman Reviews Club Institute Activities in Athens

By Mrs. Harvey Jordan, State Publicity Chairman.

More than 100 clubwomen from various sections of Georgia attended the 15th annual session of the club institute of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs in Athens on July 7 and 8. Mrs. Lamar Rucker, state chairman of club institutes, introduced the program and explained the chosen theme: "Club Structure and Uses." A choral selection by a double quartet from Washington Woman's Club opened the session.

To cordial welcome extended the visitors by Dr. Harmon W. Caldwell, president of the university, and Chancellor S. V. Sanford of the University System of Georgia, response was made by Mrs. A. B. Conger, president of Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. E. D. Paisley, member of the committee on club institutes, presented Mrs. H. B. Ritchie, general federation, for Georgia, who introduced the leader, Mrs. Hampton Fleming, of Richmond, Va.

A parliamentary drill on "Elections" was conducted. Mrs. Fleming and Mrs. C. W. Heery, state treasurer, discussed "Dues," the groundwork of the federation structure.

Mrs. John K. Ottley led the discussion of "Our By-Laws," which are the framework of the structure of the federation. During the period devoted to "Our Foundations," Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick announced the official opening of the silver anniversary of the Ella F. White Memorial Endowment and gave the suggestions which had been approved for the celebration to begin in the autumn.

The afternoon session opened with a round-table discussion of the individual clubs, led by Mrs. Fred Harris, president of the Wyndham Club, of Valdosta. Topics included the problems of small clubs; finances, community service, clubhouses.

chairman, and already the committee has brought four young

South American women to the United States colleges, while the Ohio federation has trained five young women under its Pan-American Fellowship. Clubs in the general federation have an investment of $1,300,000 in educational and gift funds by means of which 15,000 students have been trained. Celebration of the 150th anniversary of the United States constitution, civil service and its reform, taxation, immigration, law observance and the preservation of governmental forms are projects of the American citizenship department for the coming year, according to Mrs. J. D. Atwood, of Roswell, N. M., chairman of American citizenship in the general federation. Mrs. Atwood suggests that women acquire a workable knowledge of the constitution, of governmental management, and of laws peculiarly affecting the status of women and children, thereby creating a more informed electorate. That every woman shall exercise the privilege of voting. That greater emphasis be placed on law observance. That a more careful study be given to immigration problems and to the training of prospective citizens. Letter Carriers Plan To Make Watson's Home National Shrine

"Hickory Hill," the home of the late United States Senator Thomas E. Watson, father of the rural letter carrier, may soon be the shrine ruralists revere with the same avidity as most Americans do George Washington's "Mount Vernon."

The men who carry mail to rural Georgia have begun definite plans for the purchase of the Watson home and the making of it, and its 171 acres, into a national shrine at which the ruralists of America can pay their respects to the memory of the man responsible for their daily mail service.

Sitting on a hill midst giant hickory trees, near Thomson, Ga., is the two-story colonial structure which was home to one of Georgia's greatest statesmen, Tom Watson. Pictures of the home are in today's rotogravure section.

Today the house and grounds are run down, much to the chagrin of the rural carriers for whose jobs the senator was responsible.

They have organized the Thomas E. Watson Rural Free Delivery Foundation, chartered last November in McDuffie county, which seeks to raise $40,000 with which to purchase and renovate "Hickory Hill."

While most of the contributions are being sought from the rural carriers themselves, provision has been made for others, persons who have benefited by the rural mail service, to contribute to the fund.

A period of recreation followed and at 6:30 the Athens Woman's Club entertained the visitors with a garden party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lamar Rucker.

Thursday's program featured discussion of "Club Uses" and was opened with chord numbers by members of the Winder Woman's Club. An instructive parliamentary drill was conducted by Mrs. Fleming, and there was an open forum on the departments and divisions, the windows of the federation structure. Mrs. Ralph Butler, first vice president of Georgia federation, told "Our Aims" and had a presentation of the aims of clubs. Taking part were Mrs. John D. Carter, president of Buford Woman's Club; Mrs. Leo Browning, of Cochran; Mrs. W. A. Bailey, of Athens; Mrs. Stewart Brown, of Royston.

"Are We Builders for a Better Georgia?" was the subject of a fine talk by Mrs. Herman Watson, executive secretary of the state department of public welfare, who explained the various divisions of the department and told how women could co-operate in their development to help build a better Georgia.

Mrs. J. W. Gholston, of Comer, former state president, spoke on "Our Complete Structure," and presented the future in "Our Juniors." Several groups of juniors were present and told why they came into the federation.

A thorough parliamentary drill on "Motions," by Mrs. Fleming, was an instructive feature of the closing session. Mrs. Fleming is an authority on parliamentary law and wrote a splendid pamphlet dealing with this important subject.

Miss Smoak Weds J. D. Barnes At a Quiet Ceremony at Home

Of interest is the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Perry M. Smoak of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Frances Elizabeth Smoak, to John Daniel Barnes. The ceremony was solemnized Saturday at the home of the bride's parents, the Rev. John Brandon Peters officiating.

The lovely bride wore an ensemble of beige and luggage tan with matching accessories, and a shoulder bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

After the ceremony the couple left on a wedding trip to New Orleans and the gulf coast. The bride, who is a popular member of Atlanta's young social set, is the younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Perry M. Smoak and the sister of Mrs. Edwin D. Eubanks. On her maternal side she is the granddaughter of the late Professor T. A. E. Means, noted southern educator, and Mrs. Means. Her mother was Miss Aline Means before her marriage. On her paternal side she is descended from the Smoaks and Dukes of South Carolina and Georgia. Her paternal grandparents were Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Perry Smoak, of Perry, Ga. Since graduation from Girls' High school the bride attended Greensboro College for Women at Greensboro, N. C., and Emory University, where she received her A. B. degree in 1936. During the past year she was a member of the faculty of West Side school.

Mr. Barnes is the son of Mrs. Daniel F. Barnes and the late

MRS. JOHN DANIEL BARNES.

Daniel F. Barnes, of Wilmington, N. C., and the brother of Mrs. Frank H. Bailey, of Greensboro, N. C. He attended the University of North Carolina, receiving the degree of B. S. in commerce in 1932. He is at present connected with the Chevrolet Motor Company in Atlanta.

Miss Margaret Weaver Will Wed John Ray Faisan in Sumner

LAFAYETTE, Ga., July 10.—Miss Margaret Weaver, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac L. Weaver, of Lafayette, is engaged to John Ray Faisan, of Franklin, N. C., and their marriage will be an event of midsummer.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Berry College, Rome, and for the past year has been connected with the Resettlement Administration at Newnan as home supervisor.

Mr. Faisan is also a graduate of Berry College and is connected with the Resettlement Administration in Franklin, N. C. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Faisan, of Wendell, N. C. couple will reside in Atlanta. Out-of-town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. J. Roy Proctor, of Thomasville, N. C.; Miss Mamie Proctor, of Rocky Mount, N. C.; Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Burch, of Louisville, Ky.; and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Long, of Savannah.

Miss Martha Hiers Weds Mr. Proctor

The marriage of Miss Martha Hiers and William J. Proctor was solemnized at a quiet ceremony on Thursday at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hiers, on Ridgecrest road. The Rev. R. Wiley Scott, pastor of the Central Congregational church, officiated, in the presence of the immediate families.

Mr. Proctor is a member of the faculty of the Georgia School of Technology. After September 1 the

State W. C. T. U. Editor Stresses Membership in Today's Comment

M. Frances Meadows Burghard,
Macon, State W. C. T. U.
Editor.

There is probably no other organization in the whole world that touches so many nations, none that is so united in purpose and methods than the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, its badge is a bow of white ribbon and all round the world the white ribbon is twined. All round the world, the glorious light has shined, all round the world our cause has right of way, we'll raise the anthem, swell the victory some glad day. It's coming! It's coming! The morn for which we pray. We'll take the world for Christ's own kingdom some glad day.

The noontide hour of prayer is the W. C. T. U. trysting hour, when each White Ribboner the world over is expected to lift her heart to God in prayer for His blessing on the work and workers, and the overthrow of the liquor system and its allies. "It is always noontide somewhere, and across the awakening continents from shore to shore somewhere, our prayers are rising evermore."

A woman is not a member of the W. C. T. U. until she has signed the pledge "to abstain from all distilled, fermented and malt liquors, including wine, beer and cider, and to employ all proper means to discourage the use of and traffic in the same," and until she has paid her annual dues of one dollar. The dollar is so divided that it pays the members' local, district, state, national and world dues.

At the recent World W. C. T. U. convention in Washington, to give visitors from 43 other lands an opportunity to get an insight into membership gains in the United States during the short membership campaign, a clever demonstration was arranged by the national corresponding secretary, Mrs. Anna Marden DeYo.

A huge map of the U. S. A. had been built on the stage as each state president brought a colored replica of her state and announced the number of new members gained during the campaign. Mrs. DeYo's plan of each state acting as hostess to one of the member-countries came into play here also as the guest from afar walked onto the stage with her hostess to learn how many new members had been won in honor of the visitor.

When Mrs. Mary Scott Russell added Georgia to the great map she was accompanied by Miss Idelle Perrelet, of Paris, France, Georgia's special guest. Georgia W. C. T. U. won 522 new members in the given time and there were 26,478 in all.

Writing in the July W. C. T. U. Bulletin, the official paper of this state, Mrs. R. L. Miller, state membership director, enumerated "some of the extra activities carried on during the membership campaign—securing 60,000 petitions to the legislators in behalf of prohibition, arranging illustrated lectures on alcohol education by Dr. Gilbert White, raising the state's share of the temperance education fund, mobilizing and working and praying for the election June 8, to say nothing of collecting hold-fast dues, attending district and local meetings, and carrying on regular departmental activities."

"There is no substitute for membership," declared Mrs. DeYo as she led a round-table discussion, saying "Many women will be glad to join if invited to help change the devastating social conditions that are due to liquor." She declared that members can be won by presenting the positive program which the W. C. T. U. has to offer. She told the following story for the woman who hesitates:

Mrs. Miller requests Georgia members to win 500 more members by state convention this fall.

NEWS of STAGE and SCREEN

'Slim' Melodrama at Paramount Is Story of High Tension Linemen

A class of American workers whose trade has never before been touched by the movies, those adventurous and hardy lads who string electrical power wires across the remotest waste places, is depicted in the Warner Brothers melodrama, "Slim," which opened at the Paramount theater Friday, with an added attraction, this month's "March of Time."

The popular Henry Fonda carries the title role of "Slim," a young farm lad who, fascinated by the work of a wire-gang crossing his father's land, becomes one of them, with the aid of "Red," a jovial and gallant wire-stringer who is portrayed by that perpetual favorite, Pat O'Brien.

They are both in love, after a while, with "Cally," a hospital nurse, who is none other than the lovely Margaret Lindsay. But there's no enmity between them; they're great pals and comrades, each willing to offer his life to save the other's, and that's what it comes to in the end.

"Slim" was made from a best-selling novel by William Wister

Haines. It has what are described as breath-taking scenes, with the high-tension gang building towers 100 feet high, scrambling up and down them, and stringing wires across them, sometimes in the face of blizzards and dust storms. It's no easy life, apparently, these linemen lead. They're always on the move, town to town, state to state.

One of the pals of the two boys is Stuart Erwin who never fails to win laughs. The boss of all the gang is J. Farrell MacDonald who in this picture turned in his one-thousandth performance before the cameras. The cast includes such excellent supporting players as Joe Sawyer, Jane Wyman, John Littel and Craig Reynolds.

The authenticity of the picture as a story of linemen's activities is vouched for by the producers, who used in it several crews of real experts in that line who were loaned by the contractors building the transmission wires connecting the famed Boulder Dam and the city of Los Angeles.

Rialto's 'Married Before Breakfast' Is Held Second Week by Request

The current program at the Rialto theater, featured by the romantic comedy, "Married Before Breakfast," and now in its second week, rather took the city by surprise. The high entertainment value of the feature film wasn't anticipated by the average theatergoer and it was only when reports of those who had been lucky enough to see it began to percolate around the city that the rush on the box office began.

However, before the end of the first week of the picture's showing, the growing size of the crowds and the great enthusiasm of every audience convinced Manager W. T. Murray the picture should be held for a second week, at least. Now well into that second week, the attendance continues to increase, vindicating the managerial judgment.

In addition to the feature Manager Murray had a group of short subjects that had elicited so much praise he decided to hold the entire program without change for this second week.

"Married Before Breakfast" is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, directed by Edwin L. Marin and co-starring Robert Young and Florence Rice. It moved at a fast tempo throughout and the clever story and brilliant dialogue came from the typewriter of Harry Ruskin.

Its plot is hilariously funny and involves all sorts of unexpected factors in the night and early morning life of New York.

In addition to the two stars, the cast includes many popular players, such as June Clayworth, Barnett Parker, Irene Franklin, etc. Among the short subjects is one of the best Mickey Mouse cartoons ever filmed and a Charley Chase comedy of top rank. There is also a brilliant song and dance number and a charming musical about the River Danube, to say nothing of the last-minute world events in the newsreel.

The program, in toto, will remain at the Rialto through next Thursday.

BUCKHEAD'S FILM IS 'LOVE IS NEWS'

Comedy Romance Is Billed
Two Days.

Tyrone Power, Loretta Young and Don Ameche are three of the stars showing at the Buckhead theater today and tomorrow in "Love Is News." Slim Sumnerville, Walter Catlett and Stepin Fetchit are included in the comedy cast of a romance concerning newspaper publicity and an heiress who was tired of it all.

"Criminal Lawyer" showing on Tuesday, features Lee Tracy and Margot Grahame in a fast drama based on the hurricane love life of a legal trickster.

Marking a radical departure from previous aviation pictures of the World War, "The Woman I Love," playing Wednesday and Thursday, emphasizes human drama rather than action drama. The chief interest lies in the human relationships of Paul Muni, Miriam Hopkins, his wife, and Louis Hayward.

Julius Verne's novel, "Michael Strogoff," is the inspiration for "The Soldier and the Lady," the Friday attraction at the Buckhead. The picture serves to introduce Hollywood's new star, Anton Walbrook. Featured with Walbrook are Elizabeth Allan, Margot Grahame, Akim Tamiroff and Eric Blom.

A savage battle between four men in the cockpit of a plane sinking in midocean is the punch scene of "Crack-Up," scheduled for Saturday. Peter Lorre and Brian Donlevy are the stars. Also another episode of the chapter play, "Jungle Jim."

'SWING TIME' MUSICAL AT FAIRVIEW THEATER

The Fairview theater, at 657 Fair street, presents as its first feature of the week, today and tomorrow, "Swing Time," delightful musical comedy with Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers. "Get That Venus," with Jean Arthur and Ernest Truex comes Tuesday.

Hoot Gibson is in the rollicking western, "Lucky Terror," supported by Lena Andre, on Wednesday and on Thursday, Jean Harlow appears in "Hell's Angels," with Ben Lyon.

"Mighty Trene," the story of the love a young boy shows for his dog, with Noah Beery Jr. and Barbara Read, plays Friday.

'LOVE IS NEWS' BILLED AT FAIRFAX THEATER

Outmaneuvering his roles in previous successes, Tyrone Power plays opposite lovely Loretta Young in "Love Is News" today, tomorrow and Tuesday at the Fairfax theater. It has for its setting a newspaper office where Don Ameche, another outstanding star, plays the part of a blustering managing editor.

Two giants in a battle of fists is the thrilling climax of "Conflict," Wednesday. John Wayne and Jean Rogers are the stars. Sally Eilers and James Dunn have teamed together again in the sparkling comedy, "We Have Our Moments," Thursday. David Niven

For Your Entertainment This Week on Atlanta's Leading Picture Screens

At the Paramount is a film story of the high tension linemen who string and maintain the power lines of the nation. Henry Fonda, Margaret Lindsay and Pat O'Brien shown.

So delightful did "Married Before Breakfast" prove to Rialto audiences it is now in its second week there. Robert Young and Florence Rice are the stars of the gay comedy.

HOPKINS AND MUNI NOW AT CASCADE

'The Woman I Love' Story of War Fliers.

Today and tomorrow the Cascade theater offers Miriam Hopkins and Paul Muni in "The Woman I Love," with Louis Hayward. The story concerns the activities of a war-time French observation squadron. The crisis comes as two fliers roar over the front at the Second Battle of the Marne.

"We Have Our Moments," starring Sally Eilers and James Dunn, is the featured attraction for Tuesday. Wednesday brings another Hopalong Cassidy picture, "The Hills of Old Wyoming," with Bill Boyd and George Hayes. Josephine Hutchinson and George Brent will be co-starred in "Mountain Justice" on Thursday and Friday. Denied the right to love, child brides are sold to the highest bidders in this thrilling outdoor drama from the mountain tops.

"Racing Lady," with Ann Dvorak and Smith Bellw is the feature picture for Saturday. There will also be the serial, "Robinson Crusoe," selected shorts and at 8:15 o'clock the weekly amateur contest.

'KING AND CHORUS GIRL' PLAYS TENTH STREET

"The King and the Chorus Girl," today and tomorrow at the Tenth Street theater, introduces a new star to the American screen, Fernand Gravet. Gravet plays the role of a wealthy ex-monarch who becomes a Paris playboy. His titled aunt and uncle try to put his royal feet on the straight and narrow path. The cast includes Joan Blondell, Edward E. Horton and Kenny Baker.

"Criminal Lawyer" for Tuesday has a legal background, with a triangle of a brilliant and unscrupulous attorney, a spoiled society girl and a stenographer who falls in love with her legal employer. Margot Grahame and Lee Tracy lead the cast.

Lawrence Tibbett and Wendy Barrie supply the romance in the famous baritone's newest feature, "Under Your Spell," Wednesday.

"Internes Can't Take Money," Thursday and Friday, with Joel McCrea and Barbara Stanwyck, is the story of a young doctor who is forced to return a gift from a patient which would make it possible for him to wed the girl he loves. The cast also includes Lloyd Nolan.

"Don't Tell the Wife," Saturday, features Guy Kibbee, Una Merkel and Lynne Overman.

And Warren Hymer are in the supporting cast. "Three Smart Girls," featuring Deanna Durbin, the screen's newest singing find, is to be shown Friday. Supporting Miss Durbin will be Charles Winninger, Binnie Barnes, Ray Milland and Nan Grey.

A group of foreign spies attempt to learn the secrets of American commercial aviation in "The Crack-Up" Saturday. Brian Donlevy, Peter Lorre and Helen Wood head the cast.

Many stars of tomorrow are to be seen and heard in the musical extravaganza at the Fox entitled "New Faces of 1937." Above, Harriet Hilliard and William Brady.

The new feature picture starting a week's run at the Capitol theater today is "Hollywood Cowboy" with George O'Brien as the hero and Cecilia Parker as the heroine.

HILAN PRESENTING FIRST RUN FILM

'Michael O'Halloran' To Play Two Days.

Today and tomorrow the Hilan theater presents for the first time in Atlanta Gene Stratton Porter's most loved story, "Michael O'Halloran." Wynne Gibson and Warren Hull head the cast and are supported by two of Hollywood's most popular child players, Jackie Moran and Charlene Wyatt. Others in the cast are Sidney Blackmer and Hope Manning.

Tuesday and Wednesday brings another double program. "Mysterious Crossing," with James Dunn and Jean Rogers heading the cast, and "Murder With Pictures," with Lew Ayres and Gail Patrick. Thursday and Friday offer "Ready, Willing and Able" with Ruby Keeler and Lee Dixon, the dancing team that is ready, willing and able to bring the thrill of a lifetime.

Saturday bills "North of Nome," a story of seal hunting in the primitive Bering sea. Heading the cast are Jack Holt, Evelyn Venable and Big Boy Williams.

Marx Brothers at Loew's Grand In Latest, 'A Day at the Races'

From hospital to racetrack, from night club to the boudoir of a designing blond vamp, Groucho, Harpo and Chico Marx lead their audiences the merriest chase in "A Day at the Races" at Loew's Grand theater. Perhaps their most ambitious film, and certainly among the funniest, this irresistible combination of slap-stick humor, spectacular musical scenes and romance. The lovers in the piece are Allan Jones and Maureen O'Sullivan, with Jones singing several songs to the girl, and with Harpo, speechless but eloquent withal, playing harp accompaniment.

"A Day at the Races" reaches the screen only after nearly two years of preparation, for the Marxes have weighed their laughs carefully, selecting only proven comedy scenes, which include an examination in a hospital operating room, to the horror of established doctors; a combat with a scheming blond (Chico and Harpo, disguised as paperhangers, eventually glue her to the wall), and most important of all, a horse race like none ever seen before, with Chico as jockey, and with Harpo lending invaluable aid. Groucho is encountered as a horse doctor who has won the favor of the wealthy Mrs. Upjohn (Margaret Dumont). Mrs. Upjohn's influence has had Dr. Groucho made head of a big hospital, where he proceeds to scandalize the medical profession. At the hospital is a pretty nurse (Miss O'Sullivan) who turns a deaf ear to her sweetheart's love songs because he (Allan Jones) has spent his money on a race horse, instead of using it to train his voice, as the two of them have planned. The Marx trio become interested in the romance and lend their insane assistance, bringing about the lovers' happiness, and providing for audiences an unforgettably hilarious experience in the theater. Here are the Marxes at their best and in perhaps their best film. Don't overlook it.

DEKALB'S FEATURE IS 'LOVE IS NEWS'

Tyrone Power, Loretta Young, Don Ameche in Cast.

The romance of a thrilling threesome whose kisses crash the headlines and whose escapades sell extras, with handsome Tyrone Power, lovely Loretta Young and Don Ameche provides hilarious excitement in 20th Century-Fox's "Love Is News," which will be featured at the DeKalb theater tomorrow and Tuesday.

Treating its basic theme of the take stock racket from a light-hearted angle, RKO-Radio has evolved a delightful comedy drama in "Don't Tell the Wife," for Wednesday with Guy Kibbee, Una Merkel and Lynne Overman as the featured players.

The conflict of human hearts and the wrath of outraged nature supply the romance and drama of "John Meade's Woman," a gripping love story, starring Edward Arnold, Francine LaRimore and Gail Patrick, which will be shown Thursday.

Together with its grand romantic cast and its unusual and absorbing story, "Now and Forever," has been booked for a return engagement at the DeKalb Friday. Shirley Temple, Gary Cooper and Carole Lombard are the three who play out this tale of a reckless young international crook, his light of love, and the child who changes the whole course of their lives.

Buck Jones will appear Saturday with Muriel Evans in his latest adventure film, "Boss Rider of Gun Creek."

Extravaganza, New Faces of 1937, Funny and Musical on Fox Screen

Sparkling with originality and freshness of treatment that makes it one of the most entertaining musical films of recent years, RKO-Radio's "New Faces of 1937" opened at the Fox theater on Friday.

Radio celebrities and vaudeville and stage favorites through the distinguished cast and offer an amazing variety of talent to the jaded palates of filmgoers. Three of the four stars, Joe Penner, Harriet Hilliard and Parkyakarkus, have already made their bows to motion picture audiences; the fourth, Milton Berle, makes his speaking screen debut in the film, along with scores of the supporting players.

Five glittering production numbers and eight catchy songs are deftly blended into the picture, together with a wealth of comedy and an unusually interesting plot. The story hinges on the activities of an unscrupulous show producer, who makes a handsome living by deliberately putting on worthless plays. The seeming paradox is explained by the gentleman's financial maneuvers, which consist of selling the show to various "angels," and pocketing the difference between the actual cost of the production and the sums he has received.

When his girl friend finally exposes him, one of his backers takes charge and produces a show which is a glittering success.

Several romances are woven into the story, the principal one being between Miss Hilliard and Bill Brady, a remarkable new-comer with a fine tenor voice, who respectively play a chorus girl and a playwright. Joe Penner has a love affair with Lorraine Krueger, and Jerome Cowan, the crooked promoter, another with Thelma Leeds, the leading lady of one of his " flop shows," while Berle plays the part of the "angel" who takes over the show and is Brady's rival for Miss Hilliard's affections.

Penner and Parkyakarkus have a running feud throughout the story which supplies the highlights of the comedy, but they have a wealth of assistance from the scores of funsters in the cast. Dozens of intriguing dance routines, the engaging specialty and chorus numbers and the tuneful songs all combine with the hilarity of the film in making it a brilliant achievement and one that can be heartily recommended to theatergoers. Director Leigh Jason and Producer Edward Small have done a splendid job in weaving their material into a compact and entertaining picture—and one you simply must go and see.

George O'Brien on Capitol Screen In Thrilling 'Hollywood Cowboy'

Set in the rugged cattle country of Wyoming, where snow-mantled mountain peaks form a background of splendor and contrast, George O'Brien's newest outdoor film is a story of fast action, romance and scenic beauty.

This picture, "Hollywood Cowboy," opens a week's engagement at the Lucas & Jenkins Capitol theater today, with Cecilia Parker playing opposite O'Brien.

The story concerns the exciting experiences of a film cowboy star who becomes involved in a real range war that rivals in thrills his own movie plot.

Posing as a regular cowpuncher, O'Brien accepts work on a large ranch, the owner of which, a middle-aged woman, is being victimized by a band of city racketeers who have moved into the range and are intimidating cattle-men.

Although engaged to a wealthy dude, a niece of the ranchwoman falls in love with the handsome cowboy after he saves her from the crooks and rescues her fiancé during a stampede.

The jealous suitor, however, discovers a reward poster tacked to a tree, which was left behind by the movie company, describing O'Brien as "Black Malone," a bandit wanted for murder. He immediately notifies the sheriff where he can apprehend the desperate character. This causes added complications to the story but all works out well before the last action scene has faded from the screen.

On the stage, also starting today, the Capitol offers eight acts of vaudeville as presented by the road show unit, "Comedy Stars of Hollywood," starring Browne and Lavelle, famous radio stars heard often on a national commercial program.

Added acts with the unit includes The Three Rolletettes, thrills on roller skates; Lester "The Pester," in novelty offerings; Virginia Vance, complicated contortion dances; Bhebe, Bruce and Betty, variety stars; Roma Noble, the "female Caruso"; R. Patrick Sutton, master of ceremonies, and several other high-class vaudeville entertainers.

Automobile accidents caused 4,252 deaths in 125 major cities of the United States during the first 24 weeks of 1937, compared with 3,592 auto deaths in the same cities during the corresponding period of 1936.

FAMOUS DIRECTOR
REACHES ATLANTAWalter Armitage To Produce
'Dr. Faustus' for Federal Theater.

Walter Armitage, who will direct the forthcoming Federal Theater production of Christopher Marlowe's 'The Tragical History of Doctor Faustus,' arrived in Atlanta last week from New Orleans where he has just closed a brilliantly successful production of the play.

Mr. Armitage is internationally famous both as an actor and a director, having directed productions in New York, London, Paris and South Africa. He starred in London with Herbert Marshall and Edna Best in 'The Swan,' and there also appeared in the leading male role of 'Grand Hotel.' He has been featured in eight Hollywood productions and in the leading roles of such Broadway hits as 'Melo,' 'Dangerous Corner,' 'Cain's Sister' and 'Experience Unnecessary.'

In an extensive road engagement, Mr. Armitage recently starred in Al Jolson's sensational 'Wunderbar.' Since February, 1937, he has been one of the top directors for Federal Theater.

FINAL HARLOW FILM
TO SHOW JULY 23'Saratoga,' Completed Since Star's Death, To Play
Grand Theater.

Atlantans who have expressed a desire to see Jean Harlow's final picture, 'Saratoga,' will welcome the announcement that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has finished the picture and is releasing it on July 23. On that date Loew's Grand theater plans to present it in Atlanta.

'Saratoga' was almost complete when Miss Harlow was stricken with her fatal illness. The producers, once they were assured the public urgently desired to see 'Saratoga,' found it a simple matter, through a clever twist in direction, to finish the picture and retain all of its high entertainment value.

'Saratoga' is an exciting story by Anita Loos and Robert Hopkins, who authored 'San Francisco.' It provides rich roles for Miss Harlow, Clark Gable, Lionel Barrymore, Frank Morgan and others in the important cast. The management of Loew's Grand theater expressed the belief yesterday that moviegoers will find keen enjoyment in 'Saratoga.'

'GIRL FROM PARIS' AT PONCE DE LEON

Lily Pons and Gene Raymond Top Cast.

Today and tomorrow the Ponce de Leon theater presents 'That Girl From Paris,' starring Gene Raymond and Lily Pons. It is the story of a little French diva, who sheds her mantle of operatic fame and pursues romance in America.

Tuesday 'Flying Hostess' stars William Gargan and Judith Barrett.

On Wednesday 'Girl Overboard' brings Gloria Stuart and Walter Pidgeon.

Thursday and Friday 'When You're in Love,' with Cary Grant and Grace Moore, tells a story of an Australian opera star who is forced to leave America when her passport expires. Going to Mexico in a desperate attempt to arrange her way back in order to sing at an important festival, her scheme falls through. Also in the cast are Luis Alberni and Aline MacMahon.

Saturday 'The Case of the Black Cat' has Ricardo Cortez and June Travis.

FIRST-RUN PICTURE BILLED AT CENTER

'Michael O'Halloran' To Show Three Days.

'Michael O'Halloran' opens at the Center theater for three days beginning today. The Center is proud to announce this first showing in Atlanta, as much time and money was spent to make it an adaptation worthy of the Gene Stratton Porter original. Readers of the delightful novel will recall it deals with the power of a small boy to regenerate his foster parents and bring happiness and contentment to everyone whom his life touches. Jackie Moran takes the part of the orphan waif; Charlene Wyatt portrays his little invalid sister; Wynne Gibson, the thoughtless, giddy mother who thinks only of herself until her love is put to a test. Others in the supporting cast include Sidney Blackmer, Hope Manning and Warren Hull.

Wednesday brings 'Broadway Hostess,' with two Broadway musical stars, Wini Shaw, the torch singer, and Phil Regan, the 'singing cop' of radio. The story treats of life on the Great White Way, particularly the night clubs and gambling halls.

Thursday and Friday, 'Anthony Adverse' offers Fredric March and Olivia de Havilland in a magnificent piece of screen entertainment. For colorful and picturesque backgrounds, for dynamic action, for the glamour of its romance, its human interest and sheer, unadulterated entertainment this picture is unsurpassed.

Saturday, 'The Magnificent Brute' stars Victor McLaglen, winner of the last Academy award for the outstanding screen performance. The screen story tells the adventure of a great big fellow, attractive to women, who is a fool about blondes. The cast includes Binnie Barnes and Jean Dixon.

Urban League.

By JESSE O. THOMAS.

President J. W. Holley, of Albany state normal, called a group of citizens to Albany last Monday, to lay plans to enhance the economic welfare of negroes in Georgia.

Persons attending the conference were the guests of the college and spent the entire day in open discussion on means to increase employment for negroes in all parts of the state.

The discussion revealed the disproportionate number of colored people unemployed and on relief compared to other race elements. Consideration was also given to the desirability of negroes organizing their own capital and encourage establishment of small business units within the race as one outlet. Emphasis also was given education for employed negroes as well as those seeking employment, to increase efficiency.

Lack of trade schools in Georgia where the negro youth might receive vocational training was deplored; also the lack of opportunities for negroes to receive apprenticeship training on jobs. One reason given for the disproportionate number of negroes found on relief rolls was the practice of giving most employment opportunities to white workers. It was brought out that in some communities while general employment is on the decrease the ratio of unemployed negroes to the general unemployed population is on the increase.

This practice is occasion for great alarm among negro leaders. Public officials, including members of city councils, boards of aldermen as well as Department of Public Welfare, frequently observe the large percentage of the unemployed population representing negroes, become impatient and by failing to analyze the reason therefor get the impression that negroes are unwilling to work.

It was shown that in some communities other people were taken off relief rolls and placed on jobs in private and public industries three and a half times as fast as negroes. As long as this practice is sustained by public policy, negroes will not only suffer because of lack of employment, they will also become victims of such unsocial practices as characterized by the work or jail edict issued by chiefs of police of Bibb county, Milledgeville and Americus.

It was generally conceded that the economic status of negroes in the state was precariously uncertain. It is the hope of those heading up this new agency that it shall become so decentralized in its influence and contact that a working relationship will obtain between negro leaders in every community and the job giving element in this community.

At the conclusion of the discussion a permanent organization was set up with B. T. Harvey, from Morehouse College, as president; B. F. Hubert, of Savannah, as vice president; J. H. Lee, of Albany, as treasurer; Dr. J. W. Holley, of Albany, as secretary.

The program adopted provides for a congressional organization in each congressional district parallel to the state organization and a similar organization in each large city or industrial community.

The delegates follow:

M. F. Adams, Albany, Ga.; J. D. Anderson, Americus, Ga.; Rev. A. Bell, Albany, Ga.; Ernest F. Brown, Thomasville, Ga.; A. S. Clarke, Cordele, Ga.; Rev. O. M. Collins, Macon, Ga.; J. M. Georgia's New National Monument Now Open to the Public

Historic Cockspur Island was called by Sir James Wright, early Royal Governor of Georgia, "the key to our province" because of its strategic position at the mouth of the Savannah river. General Bernard, Napoleon's chief engineer, surveyed the island in 1827, and within two years the construction of Fort Pulaski began. Robert E. Lee, after graduation from West Point in 1829, went to the new post on his first assignment. The fort is now a national monument. Under supervision of the National Park Service, the CCC have carried forward a renovation program at Pulaski since 1934. The 106-year-old defenses, outstanding among Georgia's historical sites, have been made accessible without cost to visitors. Cockspur Island is reached by free ferry across the south channel of the Savannah river from the Tybee road. Above is a picture of the moat which surrounds the old fort.

MANY OF THE SHELLS fired by federal artillerymen in 1862 still are embedded in this wall of Fort Pulaski and are clearly visible.

THE ENTRANCE to the fort was protected by a wide moat, a drawbridge (partly raised) and a portcullis. The narrow slits in the 32-foot-high wall accommodate riflemen.

BEYOND THE IRON GRILL on the left Confederate military prisoners were held in 1864 and political prisoners replaced them in 1865.

MAKING "HAY-HAY"

LUCKY is the public servant who has mastered the knack of wearing a ten-gallon hat at that rakish angle which stamps him as a "man of the people." For there's more to the art of being a law-maker than just making flowery speeches and stalking staidly through Washington's marble halls in frock-coated splendor.

This is the time of year when every congressman's eye is alight with a burning zeal to prove he's a man of the soil. And the men who top the lists when the votes are counted are those who've learned a lesson from the quick-change artists of the good old vaudeville days. A Senator or Representative worthy of the name can doff his silk topper and don a straw bonnet with an easy grace that's good for a flock of votes in any league.

And, on occasion, your really top-flight legislator can rise to wondrous heights of versatility, displaying rare skill at such gentle arts as hog-calling and elephant feeding.

Rep. Bob Montan, above, demonstrates his love for farming by his hog-calling prowess.

Sen. Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, at left, holds fear for the rural vote by skill at making "hay-hay." And what is that in his hand?

But when did farmers start raising elephants—or is Pennsylvania's Democratic Senator, Joseph Guffey, trying to lure the C. O. P.?

Romance for Mrs. Sloane? No!

--all she wants is horses,

Horses!

Cavalcade wins! Mrs. Sloane at right.

"QUEEN ISABEL" AND HER DODGE MILLIONS SAFE FROM ANOTHER MARRIAGE BECAUSE SHE CRAVES A CHAMPION LIKE HER CAVALCADE

By POLLY PLAYFAIR

DON'T get the notion that romantic rumors about the fabulously wealthy Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloane, heiress to the Dodge auto millions, mean the lady is abdicating as Queen of the Turf. No racing is complete, you might say, without some man being played up as the Queen's probable consort—but it's always a gentleman close to the turf, one way or another, and wedding bells or not, the dynasty of the Brookmeade Stable is on firm foundations.

One of these romantic interests of the First Lady of the Turf was Milton W. Holden, whom rumor once elected for that middle-aisle canter, an "ex" of Fifi Widener, from the horsey Widener family. Again it was Hugh Fontaine, described as a typical Southern gentleman, with an advisory spot in the management of Brookmeade. This season, it's Jim Bush, whose first wife was the now Mrs. Harrison (best-dressed) Williams, and who is a racing enthusiast.

Mrs. Jock Whitney, known as "Liz" in horsey circles, has been the other leading aspirant for the head woman job in turfdom; but now she is Gone with the Wind, to Hollywood on horseback, and the coveted title rests uncontested with Mrs. Sloane.

To be sure, Brookmeade's owner has had amazing luck with her horses, but after all Queen Isabel has something which Liz never had—to wit: A huge fortune to play any way she likes. She could pay $7,500 for a colt, and has done so—which is gambling in a generous way on horse-flesh hunches. Her fortune is one of the biggest, inherited from her father, John F. Dodge, and her uncle, Horace Dodge, automobile magnates.

Brookmeade could supply its aristocratic equines with diamond-studded nosebags, if she wished.

But Mrs. Sloane's ambitions for 1938 don't mention any diamond circlets for nosebags or wedding ring fingers:

"I'm just going ahead with everything I've got for a more successful stable. That's the thrill of owning horses. The real fun in having a stable is the breeding of your strain, and one day watching the results performing with the best—maybe leading the best."

"We know our own horses, of course; the gamble lies in finding the proper 'girl friends' for them."

Mrs. Sloane even permits her turf interests to guide her choice of wearing apparel. She is partial to blue, her racing color, in every item of her costume. "What could be a better or more appropriate color?" she asks with a winning smile.

It's true that Mrs. Sloane has sober blue eyes, and firm lips that are prone to a stern repose... but you ought to see her face when she is talking about horses! The lady loves them for themselves and what they can do, doesn't care a bean about performing along with them in the show ring.

Cavalcade, of course, is the horse which first made Mrs. Sloane famous, when he won the Kentucky Derby in 1934. Cavalcade, when a colt, cost the owner $1,200, which is supposed to be cheap. He brought her back $111,235 which is a lot of money by anybody's income. High Quest, which beat Cavalcade for the Preakness Stakes in Pimlico, later on, brought no tears or dismay to Mrs. Sloane, however. She'd had the forethought, and then the luck, to have that horse in Brookmeade, too. Time Clock is another famous Sloane horse, not to mention Psychic Bid, Black Gift, Special Agent and Okapi. Amongst them all, the Sloane colors, royal blue crossed white silks, extend to every class and category in horse pastimes. And if Mrs. Sloane's title has cost her over a million dollars, at least the horses have tried to square her for it, bringing home vast bundles of money.

In 1930, Mrs. Payne Whitney was acknowledged generally as the leading woman in racing.

One of the most beloved figures among the racing gentry, her name brings up that of Mrs. Ambrose Clark, another pioneer sportswoman.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt (Sonny) Whitney is an ace horsewoman. Her's is a familiar face both at the track and at the swanky shows attended by Mayfair's equine-minded set. Gwadlys and Sonny are past masters of the art of rooting home winners carrying their colors. They have elaborate training stables in Kentucky, and every Spring finds Gwadlys in her lovely Colonial mansion in the Blue Grass State, supervising the handling of the long Whitney string of thoroughbreds.

The young Whitneys, Jock and Liz, who was Miss Mary Altemus, of Philadelphia, before her marriage to the Whitney heir in 1930, are probably the horriest couple on the globe. Liz has 77 horses in her own string, and no show of any equine type is complete without her.

In 1933 her colt Singing Wood romped home with the $103,000 Futurity prize at Belmont, and in that not so distant day, Liz certainly was Queen of the Turf. The society scribblers describing that occasion gave Mrs. Sloane third place in the turf notables recorded.

But the past four years have changed matters. Society, track touts, jockeys—even the horses, themselves, "like" Mrs. Sloane, to use the race track term. She is Queen of the Turf now, and the crown sits pretty.

Stage Door Prowlers Can't Remember

—AND THAT'S WHY THE FLO ZIEGFELD ALUMNAE OF LOVELIES RESCUED MARY NOLAN—AND OTHERS WHO WERE EQUALLY UNLUCKY

WHEN Mary Nolan, sick, broken and unwanted, lay delirious on the cot of her cheap room just a few weeks ago, a dispossess notice tacked on her door, the luckless ex-beauty hit the bottom of her fast-careening slide.

And who do you suppose came to her aid? The moneyed maharajahs who had wine and diamonded her when she was the glamorous Imogene Wilson of "The Follies"? The princeling playboys who had smothered her with orchids and furs when she was capable of earning enough to buy them herself? The sapling scions who once paid a small fortune to bask in her smile?

Not on your life. Stage door prowlers have poor memories.

What saved Mary Nolan from being thrown into the streets were a group of her old Ziegfeld buddies.

The Ziegfeld Girls' Club, it must be reported in all accuracy, was not formed with such high humanitarian purposes in mind at first. It happened quite accidentally, in the April of '36. Mary Alice Rice, a blonde Ziegfeld doll of '32 and Neva Lynn, an alumna of the same class, happened to meet in a fifth Avenue beauty shop. When the girls recognized each other they let out a whoop and a shriek.

"Darling—!"

"—what's new with YOU?"

Then began the gab fest. Neva was married to Ted Baldwin, a wealthy stock broker, and Mary Alice admitted she was still in a stage of single bliss. That got them talking about the old days.

"Remember when Paulette Goddard used to take dramatic lessons secretly and would always come late for rehearsals?" said Mary Alice.

"And remember," giggled Neva, "when Ziggy bawled out Joan Burgess for cutting a show. She said she was ill, but she had really taken the night off to elope with Nicky Blair. Remember?"

The upshot of it was that the girls dug up their old programs, got in touch with as many "ladies of the ensemble" as they could, and invited them to a hen party at Neva's swank Beekman Place apartment. Beryl Halley, the famous nude of '31 arrived, bundled up in silver foxes, a gift from her wealthy husband Chet Falkenhainer. Louise Andrews, a willowy "third from the left" in the '29 lineup, was now married to "Bugs" Baer and bubbled over with news of her six-year-old son. Eileen Wenzel, the almond-eyed brunette who won some thousands of dollars last year from George Ehret because of an automobile crash, Marian Martin, Betty Real, Vera Milton and Gypsy Rose Lee, showed up. Old and young—Mrs. Francis

They discovered that she now has three children, her husband was desperately ill and had been out of work for four years. The club paid up her back rent, bought the children new clothes, sent the husband to Saranac Lake and got her a job.

Flo Ziegfeld if he can see his "babies," must be very proud of them, for they're proving that the only one who sticks by a Ziegfeld girl when luck, beauty are gone is—another Ziegfeld girl!

in London.

Above is a reproduction from an oil painting of Mrs. Louise Stuart Wallace who writes in the accompanying article of sharing her tea with a tramp in St. James' Park, London. At the left is a section of St. James' Park showing tea houses typical of the one to which Mrs. Wallace makes reference.

Mrs. Wallace, who sends this story from London, is the former Miss Louise Todd, of Atlanta. Previous to the last six years during which time she has made her home in London and Paris, Mrs. Wallace was a leader in the social and cultural life of this city.

By LOUISE STUART WALLACE.

AN ENGLISH statesman, Sir William Harcourt, said some 40 years ago, "Nothing ever happens," but for me something is always happening in London-town.

My little flat, near Queen Anne's Gate, is midway between Buckingham Palace and Westminster Abbey; right at my doorstep, as it were, are constant processions, ceremonies and pageants. Across the road is St. James' Park with its expanses of green, banks of flowers, massive trees and a lake such as one could call his very own where ducks, swan and a variety of ornamental waterfowl swim up and down in pairs, in families and "en gros."

Among the lupins, playing hide and seek, are golden pheasants resplendent in their unrivaled plumage. It is a most pleasant place in which to indulge in thoughts of the beauties and blessings that lie about us, alas! only too often unseen, unnoticed. Why is it that we poor mortals seem to long for the thing that is not ours instead of holding to our hearts possessions that if we took account are far more priceless than the rainbow's end we chase in breathless pursuit?

I can but be happy in St. James' Park where all is "glad and bright," and besides I desire to be happy. I steadfastly refuse to be cheated by looking on the material side of life. The stars are more attractive to gaze upon than the mud and like that great Frenchman, Chateaubriand, was wont to do, even if there isn't a moon, I put one in.

In the park this afternoon I had tea with a tramp. When Big Ben had struck "four," I went to the teahouse and bought a cup of tea, sat on a bench by the lake where the ducks come boldly up, are chased by the pigeons, the sparrows and starlings beg for crumbs (and get them).

I noticed at the other end of my bench sat a man who from all appearances was a tramp but a decent blighter for all that, probably one of Tom Kromer's pals. (Since reading "Waiting for Nothing," my heart goes out to tramps.) I invited him to have a cup of tea. He didn't understand but replied in a language that was unfamiliar to me and I then addressed him in French.

He was a young Hungarian musician out of work. We talked as we sipped our tea, of gardens in other lands, of music, of poetry, only of the richer things in life, never touching on poverty, war, ruin, hatred or greed.

We might have been in my salon in Paris with the faithful Francine serving us from silver platters, so natural was our conversation. My tramp was a man of education and taste. I hope we meet again.

What matters it who he was? I might have chosen instead to have talked to the smartly dressed woman sitting in a chair to my right, but I liked the tramp and the woman! She was intently reading from a book, taking no notice of garden or sunset. I became curious about that absorbing book and glanced at the title, "Cream Custard!" A cook book, mon Dieu!

When I had said au revoir to M., the Hungarian, I crossed the Mall to Green Park and thence to Hyde Park, where the sheep-shearing season has begun. It is all done by the most modern electrical machinery, so very incongruous and even more shocking in the presence of a large cinema van with talking picture equipment. The sheep said, "Bah!" and so do I.

"I like walking aimlessly in a strange town, I encounter such happy surprises, and have "discovered" the parks on foot, and I retain my "girlish figure," maybe a bit too many curves for England (observing the many flat-chested women), but just right for France and Italy.

Leisurely I strolled around the Serpentine where shadows fall and sunshine glistens on the rippling waters and lovers glide by in little love-boats and the sound of their joyous laughter is wafted to the shore.

"Like hues and harmonies of evening—
Like clouds in starlight widely spread—
Like memory of music fled—
Like aught that for its grace may be
Dear, and yet dearer for its mystery."

And with these thoughts I retraced my steps homeward; as I crossed the bridge over the lake the bells of three clocks sounded the hour in a melodious harmony, Horse Guards, Wellington Barracks and Big Ben. After a moment's silence, a British guard called in a voice as soft as it was strong, "All out!"

"La vie est belle," for those of us who look at the stars and not the mud and put "Cream Custard" in the dust bin—also we must not be afraid to live and to be happy, so many are just turnips, and don't know what it is all about until, alas! it is too late.

Musket of Revolutionary Soldier Found in Antique Collection

Old Gun Calls to Mind Stories of Pioneer Days

The old Neal homestead in Happy Valley, Columbia county, as it stands today. It was built in 1780 by Basil O'Neal, who came there from Virginia and established the family, now known as Neal, which has lived in the home ever since. The picture is from an etching by Mrs. J. Victor Jones, of Atlanta, a granddaughter of Basil O'Neal.

At right, Basil Llewellyn Neal, son of Basil O'Neal, who migrated to Georgia in 1780 from Virginia, with the old musket "Buckaneer" his father carried in the Revolutionary and Indian wars. Basil Llewellyn took the same gun, shortened and modernized, with him when he volunteered at the start of the War Between the States. He is shown wearing his Confederate uniform.

IN THE Emory University loan collection of Georgia antiques there is an old musket, which once belonged to Basil O'Neal, whose name was later simplified to Neal. The story of that old musket is the story of Georgia. It is the story of the pioneers and of the free men who established this state upon the foundation of their rock-hewn independence. It is the story of a Georgia home, built from the soil and the forests of the state and sanctified with the spirit of family love. It is the story of a home that still stands and under whose hand-shaped beams still live the descendants of that Basil O'Neal who founded it.

Basil O'Neal came to Georgia after the War of the Revolution had been in progress five years. He came by packhorse, the almost universal mode of travel at that time, all the way from Virginia. He had been a soldier of the revolution and he brought his musket with him. It was necessary if a man was to survive in the Georgia of those days. The state was infested with Indians and Tories and to be a settler was to be a soldier, or to die.

Basil O'Neal settled, in 1780, at Happy Valley, in Columbia county. He acquired 400 acres of bounty land, pay from the new republic for his services in the Revolutionary and Indian Wars. And there he built the Neal homestead, the home as rooted to the soil and as sturdy in its simple strength as the soul of its builder. Today the home still stands and Neals, descendants of old Basil still live there. It is not far from the highway from Washington, Ga., to Augusta.

The 400 acres of the O'Neal homestead was covered in virgin forest in 1780. Basil O'Neal cut the first piece of timber and used it as part of the material for his house. That original timber is still there, still in good repair.

The house was erected of hewn logs, 15x18 inches in size and dovetailed together at the corners, then sealed and weather-boarded. The nails were hand-forged. Originally it was 62 feet long, with a broad piazza for its full length and three large chimneys. The intervening years have brought some changes but, mostly, it is still the same house that Basil built.

But, about that musket—

It is called "Buckaneer," because of the deer it shot when venison was a staple diet of the Georgia pioneers. Undoubtedly it shot two-legged Bucks, too. A man could not live in the wilds of Georgia in those Indian-periled days unless he could shoot, and shoot straight.

It was said of Basil O'Neal that once, when he was old and forced to spend his days in an easy chair upon the piazza of his home, he sent his overseer out to shoot squirrels. The gun was a single-barrel, flint-and-steel shotgun.

The old man heard six shots from the near-by woods. When the overseer returned he had five squirrels and "Where is the other squirrel?" old Basil inquired. The overseer admitted he had missed with one shot.

"Put that gun up," commanded Basil, in disgust, "until you can learn how to shoot."

Old Buckaneer, however, the musket at Emory, was six feet long, with flint and steel lock, when Basil O'Neal brought it from Virginia. It had, later, a broken place on the end of the stock, caused when O'Neal hit an Indian on the head, while he was guarding him as a prisoner. O'Neal himself helped to forge the barrel at a blacksmith shop in Maryland, before he moved to Georgia.

In 1861, Basil's son, Basil Llewellyn Neal, took the old gun, had 16 inches cut off it, the stock shortened and a percussion cap put on. With this weapon he marched away to join the Georgia volunteers called out by Governor Joseph E. Brown, at the beginning of the War Between the States. Later, when he was made color-bearer for his regiment, he sent the musket home for safe keeping.

There is a story told of an incident that happened before the War of the Sixties. Mrs. Basil Llewellyn Neal used the old gun, with its flint and steel, to strike fire when she had no matches.

One day she placed the old firearm in her lap, with powder and cotton to catch the blaze and, pulling the hammer back, pressed the trigger. She had done this many times before.

But this time there was a deafening roar and a load of buckshot crashed into the opposite wall. Her children were all around her at the time, but none was hurt.

Basil O'Neal married twice and had 12 children. Basil Llewellyn Neal, the son to whom he left the old homestead, was born when the old pioneer was more than 80 years old.

Basil O'Neal died in his 92d year, in 1849. His grave stands in the Neal family burial ground with the simple inscription "Only Waiting."

Basil Llewellyn Neal, his son, died at the same age, to the day, as his father. He was the last surviving son of the American Revolution.

Today the Neals still live in Happy Valley, in the house that Basil O'Neal built from the virgin timber of his forests. A daughter of Basil Llewellyn Neal is Mrs. J. Victor Jones, of 561 Park drive, N. E., Atlanta.

And, in the Emory University museum are the inanimate relics of those ancient days which tell the silent story of the founding of Happy Valley and the Neal family.

There is the old musket, "Buckaneer." There are swords, one a four-footer used in the Revolutionary and Indian Wars by the first Georgia O'Neal and the shorter, more modern sword, used by his son in the War Between the States. There are tomahawks, Indian arrows, a tall Seth Thomas clock. There are the swords used by the two brothers of Sarah Hull Green, wife of Basil.

They should speak inspiration to the sons and daughters of modern Georgia who, if the state is to fulfill her destiny, must emulate the love of freedom, the independence and the reliance upon their own strong arms that enabled their grandsires and grandmothers to conquer the wilderness and establish in the hearts of the forests the homes that are the true foundation of the Georgia of today.

EXCITABLE MME. DE FONTANGES FIRED A SHOT HEARD 'ROUND THE WORLD, BUT SHE COULDN'T BREAK THE SILENCE OF IL DUCE, WHO, LIKE HITLER AND STALIN, IS A SPHINX IN MATTERS OF THE HEART use the airplane ticket immediately; leave Rome.

"They poisoned his mind against me," the actress cried.

"She's crazy," was the wounded Count de Chambrun's somewhat ungallant reply, as he denied he had ever attempted to come between the actress and Il Duce. He said he doubted she ever was more than a casual acquaintance of Il Duce, if that, but she says that when they met, Mussolini declared:

"Now that I have you, Ethiopia means nothing to me!"

Early in Il Duce's reign as Dictator, his name was connected with that of the British sculptress and authoress, Clare Sheridan. She is a kinswoman of the great Irish playwright and is related to Marquess Curzon. She married, successively, two huge Chicago and Argentine fortunes.

Miss Sheridan's social and diplomatic connections were such that she was able to prevail upon the British Embassy in Rome to ask Il Duce to pose for her, and the Dictator consented. The Vigorous, powerful Mussolini is a target for romantic women.

SANS the glories and pomp of luxurious court life, what manner of women react to the supposedly cold, austere and flameless emotions of dictators? What are the influences? Are they as powerful and as whimsical as the glamorous court women of other centuries?

One wonders!

Mme. de Fontanges, whose name was linked with that of Mussolini in what she described as a "glorious" episode, was whimsical, it seems, and formidable, for she knew how to use a gun. She aimed it, some few weeks ago, at the aristocratic Count Charles de Chambrun and shot him in his noble thigh because, she claimed, he had broken up her alleged romance with Mussolini, Il Duce of Italy. Mme. de Fontanges is only one of many women whose names have been forced upon Mussolini during the long years of his rise from an obscure publisher of a sickly Socialist newspaper to the Dictatorship of Italy, but she is one of the few who has proclaimed her affection for Il Duce so violently, and so publicly.

"He was as tender and sweet to me, the last day he saw me," she said, "as he had been at all our other rendezvous over those glorious months from April until July (1936)." But the next time the beautiful actress called on Il Duce, she lamented, he wouldn't let her in. She swears that Count de Chambrun, and others high in the diplomatic corps went to Mussolini and told him she had plotted against his life. Only a few years ago an English woman fanatic, Violet Gibson, fired at Mussolini as he stood on the steps of the Capitol in Rome. The bullet pierced his nose, and had it been an inch or two to the right, probably would have killed him. Five other known attempts upon his life have been made and he once said that several other would-be assassins had "been thwarted."

Mme. de Fontanges told newspapermen who talked to her that after Mussolini so abruptly terminated their friendship, she took poison at the Hotel Quindol, in Rome. "They told him I plotted to kill him," the actress said, weeping. "I would have given my life for him, and when he turned from me, I wanted to die."

Perhaps the actress also hoped that the Dictator might relent when he learned of her desperate act, but more likely such news would only have confirmed in his mind that such a woman was dangerous. But, says Mme. de Fontanges, he did send his private secretary to visit her at the hospital daily while she was recovering from the effects of the poison, and when she was well, she says, the secretary gave her an airplane ticket to Paris, and nearly $1,000, but he insisted she embassy was considerably embarrassed later when the sculptress wrote a book, called it "The Naked Truth," and told some things about herself and Mussolini which everyone in official circles felt would have been much better untold.

She wrote that Mussolini locked himself in a room with her, after telling her that if she published anything about him he would know it. "Even from China the news clippings would be sent me," she quoted the Dictator as saying, "and if I ever come across any of them signed by your name, my Fascist police will pursue you and there is not a country in the world in which you would be safe."

The threat didn't seem to worry Clare Sheridan much, for she went ahead and wrote the book. She said Mussolini loved youth, and shuddered at old age. He once told her, "Women make men suffer."

Il Duce may have changed his ideas with the passing of the years—he's 54 now—but he once told Emil Ludwig:

"Women's influence is to me an unsolved problem...At eighteen everyone writes verses. In early youth we are phrase-slaves. For a young man, a phrase is like a pretty woman with whom we fall in love. At 40, one faces the facts of life."

He told the famous German writer that companionate marriage was "a mere fallacy. It does not solve the problem. A great puzzle, and neither civil nor ecclesiastical marriage answers the riddle. Still, taking it all in all, the old way is the best."

Perhaps the Dictator was thinking of Donna Rachel, his patient wife who has become second only to the Queen of Italy in her land, but who was a servant girl when Il Duce married her during his poverty-stricken, Socialist days. Donna Rachel has never attempted to take the place in society she might, however. She has been content to remain in the background, the mother of Mussolini's five children.

"I can't have any friends," Mussolini told Ludwig. "I have no friends. First of all, because of my temperament, secondly because of my view of human beings. That is why I avoid both intimacy and discussion."

Such a statement might seem to rule out any such intimacy as Mme. de Fontanges claimed, but later on in his discussion with Ludwig, Mussolini remarked:

"I have never had any inclination to fancy myself a god, but I have always been keenly aware that I am a mortal man with all the weaknesses and passions proper to mortality."

Another woman whose name has been closely linked with Mussolini was Irene Desler-Alboni, a beautiful Italian girl whom Mussolini met in Trento while that city still was in Austrian territory. If a document filed with Notary Camillo Tappati in Turin, and bearing the registration number, 51,413, purporting to be Irene's confession, can be credited, she was a friend of Il Duce for more than two years.

The fascination Mussolini exercises over

Exotic Mme. De Fontanges used a gun to avenge the breaking up of her alleged friendship with the Dictator.

women is undeniable. Clare Sheridan, in her famous book, said, "I suppose force, leadership, a commanding personality please me more than any other masculine virtues." Il Duce himself in his conversation with Ludwig remarked: "The crowd loves strong men. The crowd is like a woman." Ever since his march on Rome in October, 1922, Il Duce has been pestered by requests for interviews from beautiful women all over the world.

Of the women who have really influenced the Fascist leader, Signora Margherita Sarfatti, a statuesque, red-haired Venetian aristocrat, stands out. Margherita, who was married to a wealthy Milanese lawyer, was Il Duce's art critic on the Avanti!, the struggling Socialist newspaper he edited in his early days. Both she and her husband aided him liberally with funds and although he deserted Socialism to preach intervention of Italy in the World War and later turned to Fascism, Margherita has stuck by him. Her biography of Mussolini, entitled "Dux" has sold more than a million copies.

Margherita had that same extraordinary lack of personal fear which has always marked Mussolini. One instance of that occurred years ago in Mussolini's office. The room held just his desk, two chairs and a bookcase. The bookcase more often held bombs than books, for at that time Mussolini was in danger of attack at any time. When a police visit threatened, the bombs were hidden in an old stove, but that practice later was changed when an unlearned office boy lit a fire in the stove and blew the office and himself to bits.

On one warm afternoon when Margherita was sitting in the office, talking to Mussolini, Il Duce lit a cigarette, an unusual indulgence for the Spartan-like man. Talking quietly, he balanced the cigarette on an article on his desk. Around it were match boxes, letters, half written articles, and the inevitable cup of milk that is always in the vicinity of Il Duce. But most important of all was the object on which Mussolini had balanced his cigarette.

"Do you think," remarked Margherita with a glings for recognition were Professor Regina Teruzzi, whose post in the Milan Technical Institute was saved by Mussolini when the frankness of her views had almost led to her dismissal; Ester Lombardi, an authoress and journalist, and the Marchesa Piccolomini, once an ardent suffragist. The Marchesa is said never to have forgiven Mussolini for having denied Italian women the right to vote.

Oddly enough, Mussolini has always expressed contempt for those of his followers who have become involved in romantic interludes, particularly with foreign women. If his career diplomats, soldiers, sailors, or airmen marry other than Italian women they usually are exiled to far off posts, or reduced in rank in the Fascist party. It is reported that his original break with Balbo, one of Italy's greatest aviators and at one time Mussolini's right-hand man, came because Balbo showed interest in a French woman. This attitude on the part of Il Duce led to amusement in some quarters when Mme. de Fontanges made her spectacular revelations.

Mussolini himself has said little about the statements made by the actress, except to say once that "one of the usual storms is blowing against Italy. It is a storm of printed paper, an inundation of turbid ink." Another time, when repercussions of his alleged affair with the French woman cropped up in England Mussolini remarked that "I associate certain hypocritical, hysterical Angelican pulpits which noted the mote in the eye of another while their own eyes were blinded by heavy, centuries old beams."

"Barbecue Andy" Serves Piece-de-Resistance

By AL LEITCH.

HE STARTED cooking barbecue when he was eight, more than 50 years ago, down in Butts county and on yesterday, July 10, he put on a 'cue for the du Ponts at the opening of their magnificent new racing plant in Wilmington, Delaware.

That's nothing unusual though, because he's gone to Africa, to China, to Nicaragua, to every state in the union to cook barbecue. Along with the barbecue one time, he cooked the biggest pot of coffee ever served. It provided a cup for each of 45,000 persons.

That's Andrew J. Plunket, of Atlanta, Ga., and the world, but everyone knows him as Andy.

The du Ponts wired to Andy:

"Don't spare any expense—put on the best."

"Those folks up there haven't any idea what real southern barbecue is," he said, upon receipt of the wire, "but, we'll show them all right. I want to go up there by plane, but Malvern, my son, doesn't, so we'll go by train."

"I asked a porter I knew up at Brookhaven station how he could get me down to the train. I can't walk very well, you know, since I was crippled. He told me he'd get me down to the train all right. Said he'd take me down on the freight elevator."

Andy served 800 invited guests at the du Pont racing plant. The menu was comparatively simple: barbecued beef and pork, Brunswick stew made with capons, rye and white rolls, pickles, sweet gherkins, dill relish, slaw and potato salad.

There were two bars out in the open, and the barbecue pits adjoined these—where the guests worked up their appetites savoring the sizzling meat.

It was a barbecue they'll all remember to their longest day. That's the case with Andy's barbecues.

Andy and his son left Atlanta July 7. The barbecue was staged Saturday, July 10, and they will probably leave Wilmington on Monday to return to Atlanta.

The du Pont barbecue eaters included some of the most illustrious names of the nation, but in size that crowd didn't hold a candle to the one on hand when Andy served his big pot of coffee.

That was a number of years ago—Andy doesn't remember the year, and it was in Dallas, Texas. It was the biggest barbecue ever served in the west.

There were 30,000 Confederate veterans present, and there were 15,000 additional guests.

The barbecue was just an ordinary barbecue on a grand scale. They used two freight car loads of meat, but the coffee proposition was unique.

The coffee pot was a 12-foot railroad water tank. They scoured it spotless. They got a sawmill engine and boiler and scoured the boiler. They got a bunch of crocus sacks and sewed them together. They put the sacks across the top of the water tank and dumped on the coffee grounds. Then they got their fire going under the boiler and when the water was piping hot they pumped it up onto the coffee and let it seep through.

The water tank was provided with spigots all around and they called: "Come and get it."

Forty-five thousand persons "came and got it" and it was good coffee and it was good barbecue and it was something the old timers still talk about in Texas.

Another time, Andy went to Nicaragua because the Spellman Lumber Company, of Boston, Mass., had a crew of 150 men down there getting out mahogany logs—and that's no child's play. The job had been well done and the company wanted to show its appreciation.

They sent for Andy and he went down to Bluefields, Nicaragua—thousands of miles—just to cook a barbecue for 150 Americans away from home.

Andrew J. Plunket, popularly known as "Andy." Standing beside him is his son, Malvern Plunket, who accompanied the barbecue king to Wilmington, Dela.

That time, Andy did something a little out of the ordinary even for him. He barbecued five monkeys for the native members of the crew.

"It was a great delicacy to them," he said, "but I didn't try any of it myself."

There was another time though that Andy ate some barbecue he wouldn't have eaten had he known what it was.

He was in the west and had been invited to a gathering of an Indian tribe, he doesn't recall which one, as the guest of the chief.

With great ceremony the chief personally served Andy, and Andy ate with relish some very good barbecue he believed to be lamb.

When he had finished, another white man asked him if he knew what he had eaten. Andy replied, "No."

"Ask the chief," the white man suggested, Andy did.

"Bow-wow," replied the old warrior.

Andy was staging a big barbecue at Thomasville, Ga., when he met Harry Payne Whitney. The barbecue hit the spot so well that several years later when Whitney went to Africa he took Andy along to cook for the camp. Whitney had his own personal cook, but he knew that Andy could handle things on a big scale and well.

Andy was sitting at the entrance to his own personal tent in Equatorial Africa one morning and the aroma of his own sizzling breakfast was wafted on the air.

Whitney walked by.

"Andy," he said, "that breakfast looks very good. I didn't eat what my chef prepared this morning."

"Sit down and try this," Andy invited.

"It looks very appetizing," said Whitney, "but that's your breakfast."

"I can fix some more," Andy replied.

Whitney didn't need any further urging—and he licked the platter clean.

Andy was paid $3,700 and all expenses for that six-month trip. He liked Africa very well.

"The days were hot as hell," he said, "but the nights were cool. Sometimes elephants got in the near-by banana fields and raised havoc, trampling down the banana trees. That made things exciting. I liked Africa, but then, well you know I'm a native Georgian and so nothing would look as good to me as Georgia."

At Wilmington Racing Plant of du Ponts

For seven years Andy traveled over the world with a partner, Pat Whelan, who was later killed in an accident. He and Pat staged barbecues everywhere they wanted them—sort of barbecue ambassadors. The Chinese went for barbecue in a big way and they staged several in that nation.

Ten years ago Andy came to Atlanta, and he's been here ever since, with the exception of time spent going to other places to stage 'cues.

Barbecue and travel isn't the only exciting thing that's happened to Andy.

On August 23, 1934, he stopped his car for a red light at North avenue and Luckie street. Three men jumped on his car. They were the men who later killed Max Sjöblom. Andy was forced into the rear of his machine.

They drove him to Powder Springs road where they took him from the car, robbed him of $180, then hurled him bodily down a steep embankment. Andy hit on the right side of his head in gravel. Both his legs were fractured and his right shoulder broken.

He lay there all day partly conscious. Nearby, a youth plowed a field. The boy heard low moans through that day but he was unable to locate their source. When he had finished his day's work he began an intensive hunt. He found Andy unconscious. In Andy's pocket was a membership card in the B. P. O. E.

The youth called the Elks' Club and was instructed to send Andy at once to Grady hospital. A group of Elks met him at the hospital and arranged for his care.

The doctors told Andy's friends that death was only a matter of 24 or 36 hours off.

"They're crazy as hell if they think I'm going to kick off," retorted Andy. He ordered the doctors to set his fractures and refused anesthetics.

"I can take it," he said. "I won't yell and I won't move. Just go to work on me like you were working on a piece of wood." They did.

Four days later Andy called a private ambulance.

"Roll me over like a log," he ordered the stretcher bearers. "It won't hurt me."

He weighed 386 pounds and had too much sugar in his system. They were afraid that would kill him if the injuries didn't. He went on a diet and just got off of it four weeks ago, with the doctor's orders. Now he weighs 244. The doctor says he's in good shape except for his legs.

His hobby is feeding folks, but in particular, it's feeding kids who can't feed themselves. He's got plenty of letters of appreciation from Hillside Cottages. One little Irishman out there said:

"Uncle Andy, do you know why you weren't killed?—God spared you to feed us."

Andy fed the Catholic orphans at Washington, Ga. "I'm a Presbyterian," he said, "but that doesn't matter. They like to eat as well as other folks."

Andy was hardly out of bed, and still in his plaster casts, when Mrs. Daniel McDougald telephoned him. Her cousin, a Mrs. Legett, was here and Mrs. McDougald was staging a real southern barbecue for her guest.

"I've simply got to have you to supervise it," she said.

"They loaded me in a car, took me there, set me up in a chair and I supervised," he said.

"Graham Jackson's negro orchestra was there. They're going with me to play for the du Ponts."

FOUR M.-G.-M. BRITISH-MADE PICTURES.

Production of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer British-made films will begin in August, when Louis B. Mayer will leave for London to supervise personally the first group of four pictures to be made abroad. The initial production will star Robert Taylor in "A Yank at Oxford," adapted from an original story by John Monk Saunders. Other films in this first group will comprise "Finishing School," by Tennyson Jesse, "And to Victoria," by Vaughan Wilkins, and "Good-Bye Mr. Chips" by James Hilton.

Back pay for Wives

By GERALDINE SARTAIN

ILLUSTRATION BY STUART HAMILTON

HOW YVONNE PRINTEMPS REVIVED AN AGE-OLD WAR

WHAT a turn some of these pay-for-wives agitators could give the sainted Amelia Bloomer and Emmeline Pankhurst. Amelia craved the boon of pants for women and Emmeline was satisfied with votes. Now here comes a new feminine crop—married women about to set up the biggest fight of all for wages.

The whole subject of how much a wife is worth has been tossed into the ring by two such antithetical personalities as Yvonne Printemps and Eleanor Roosevelt.

The flashing Yvonne, once the toast of Paris, London and Manhattan, has halled her former husband, Sacha Guitry, before a tribunal to collect her "back pay" covering the years she was his leading woman in the home and on the stage.

What consternation! It's all coming true just the way the old diehard opponents of suffrage said it would. "If we let 'em vote, they'll be suing us for their rights instead of just hollerin' for them."

And Eleanor Roosevelt has given the feminists the greatest plug of all by coming out unqualifiedly for regular, stated wages for wives who stay at home and look after the house and the babies.

Even Bloomer and Pankhurst would be brought up short by these manifestations of an emancipation of which they never dreamed. Once women picketed, marched, sang, waved flags and went to jail in order that the lordly male might condescend to extend the right of the ballot box to his wife, mother, sister and sweetheart.

Now, Lord bless me, he is being repaid by having that same parcel of ungrateful females turn upon him and demand a new concession. This time he will probably work up a fine lather of resistance, for what man is willing to trade that time-honored custom, the rifling of his pockets by his better-half, for a fixed weekly stipend to be paid the little woman every Saturday night?

Magistrate Anna M. Kross, noted New York woman jurist, is of the opinion, however, that if he would make the trade, there would be fewer divorces.

"In my experience," she says, "I have found that a great percentage of the marriages which end up on the rocks do so because of economic reasons.

"I think that the embattled women who are advocating salaries for wives, display a profound knowledge of economic and social problems. When a man marries he does not give up his economic independence. But a woman does. The modern girl works and earns her own living right up until the day she marries. After that, she is dependent financially upon the whim of her husband. This should not be so.

"If the job of being a good wife is as important as we are always stressing, it should be worth more than occasional 'hand-outs' dependent upon male generosity.

"It is nothing but silly sentiment that keeps modern American couples from discussing their financial situation before marriage. A girl should know definitely before she marries, just how much her husband earns, how much he can afford for household expense and how much he can afford to give her as compensation for her duties. A fixed salary for wives, depending, naturally, upon the husband's earning capacity, would give a woman a better perspective of her own status in the partnership—and would also go a long way toward teaching her the value of money. After all, marriage is a partnership. And a wife should have the same equity in that partnership as her husband's partner would have in his business. As the partnership progressed so would she individually progress—and there you would have an added stimulus toward making a success of marriage.

"Why should men resent giving their wives a salary? If women need money from their husbands—and they always do, of course—they're going to get it anyway. The only difference is that when it is not given to them willingly they get it by subterfuge. And that's a humiliating experience for the modern girl. She who has always earned her own living to have to beg for nickels and dimes. I have always advocated economic independence for women—in marriage and out of it. It would go a long way toward solving America's most serious problems."

How Yvonne Printemps will fare before a male jury is still a question, however. Especially in France, where men are still the lords of creation and the woman in the family a mere appendage.

For more than fifteen years, the effervescent, irresistible Yvonne was the leading woman for the French Noel Coward. M. Guitry wrote the plays in which they appeared, played in them and acted as manager. Both on and off the stage he was La Belle Printemps's manager. The marriage and stage partnership was thought irrevocable.

Everywhere, on the stage and off, Yvonne Printemps Guitry was hung with flashing jewels her devoted husband-manager had showered on her—such little items as a 44-carat diamond ring worth $250,000, ropes of pearls, giant turquoise earrings, dozens of diamond bracelets. They all glittered simultaneously, throwing off such a shower of sparks that the mutinous, provocative little mime seemed like some gleaming Christmas tree hung with festoons of jewels instead of tinsel. Her fabulous jewel collection was considered worth at least $1,000,000.

It is well to keep those gems in mind, for they play an important part in the current fight for salary Yvonne is waging against the aging star. He has had the temerity to answer her suit with the statement:

"It is true Yvonne never drew salary from me,

But why should she? She was my wife. And, besides," he adds, "she was more than amply paid, for after each performance I gave her some costly bauble."

There you have the French viewpoint. Throw the little girl a trinket. It's too bad for Sacha that Yvonne doesn't see it that way.

Mrs. Douglas Moffit, State Chairman of the New York League for Women Voters, like Sacha, doesn't think wives should be paid.

"I'm perfectly satisfied to work out my home problems on a basis of partnership—and mutual understanding. Marriage isn't a job—it's a career, and money isn't a consideration," she says.

"Marriage, successful marriage," she adds, "based on normal appreciation of a married couple for each other, isn't something that can be operated on an employer-employee basis."

The divorce of Sacha and Yvonne, in which Yvonne Printemps demands wages for years of doing this and other starring jobs.

each was granted a decree from the other for "reciprocal adultery" was a seven-day sensation. Guitry admitted he had been indiscreet with his new leading woman, Jacqueline de Lubac, and Yvonne admitted the same in respect to Pierre Fresnay, her leading man in Coward's "Conversation Piece."

Yvonne went on her way—with the jewels. Now she wants the cash as well, and is posing that brand-new query as to how much a wife and leading lady in one is worth.

Our own wife-husband combination behind the footlights, Star Katharine Cornell, and Director Guthrie McClintic, avoid all such quandaries by keeping stage finances strictly on a business basis. America's First Woman of the Stage receives her salary weekly as manager-star and her husband his as director, thus avoiding all complications, a spokesman for them explaining,

Ex-husband Sacha Guitry took all the pay for the pair of them, Yvonne swears.

Judges and juries have been called upon to evaluate the worth of a wife occasionally in alienation suits, but oftener it is the errant husband's worth that is put up to the black-robed judges to determine—as, for instance, when Mrs. Helen Bedford-Jones was awarded $100,000 by a Chicago jury in an action against her author-husband's second wife.

What seemed destined to set a new low record in wife valuations came to naught recently with the acquittal of William Ebaugh, California woodsman, who was charged by Mrs. Ray Delama with holding her captive for three months after having purchased her from her husband for $20.

But the question still remains, just what is a wife worth?

Jacqueline de Lubac, lovely wife of Sacha, seems to be happy regardless of pay.

Juliet Lowell converted her laugh lines into gag-lines.

HOW THE FEMININE JOKE-MAKERS
BEAT THE RADIO PUN KINGS TO THE TOP PRICES—BUT ELUDING THE MALE
CENSORS IS SOMETHING ELSE AGAIN!

BY HELEN HOVER
ILLUSTRATIONS BY TY MAHON

The censor lurks behind each paragraph, and is his face often red!

The Women won this battle of Wits!

PITY the poor male gag writer! As though the problem of re-vamping old jokes wasn't enough to turn his hair white, he now has an added worry in the shape of female gag writers invading his field.

Time was when a few gag writers could get together in the intimacy of a bar, exchange a few ribald ones they had heard at a stag or smoking-room, clean them up and sell them to radio comedians. They felt that their profession, unlike aviation and lion-taming, was impervious to the inroads of women. But alas, it now looks as though the girls are brushing off the Pat and Mike stories—and making them pay good money, too.

It was all started, innocently enough, by Phil Baker. He had a lady stooge on his program, a cute little trick by the name of Mabel Albertson who looked like any beautiful but empty-headed blonde.

One day, during rehearsals, Baker's gag-writers were in a wrangle. "Now here's where we introduce the boy's best girl. We must have him talk about her to the m. c. What'll we do?"

The beautiful but dumb-looking blonde piped up:

"Why don't you have the young man say, 'My girl is 48 years old,' then the m. c. says, 'Why, you told me time and time again she was sixteen.' Then the boy says, 'Sure, she was 16—time and time again!'"

The gag writers turned around and glared at her. Mistaking the hushed silence for encouragement, the beauti-

By this time the male gag writers had murder in their eyes, but Phil Baker came to her rescue. "Say, you're no stooge, you're a gag-writer." Result: radio's first skirted joke-maker.

The reason there aren't many women in the business, says Miss Albertson, is because they're emotionally less stable than men. How can a girl sit down at a typewriter and tap out a few laugh-provokers if she's weeping because the boy friend gave her a standup the night before, or the dress-maker can't have that nifty blue number finished in time? Men shake off catastrophes like that without letting it bother their sense of humor.

There's no financial discrimination against women, though, once they manage to crash into Big Time gag-writing. Like all jobs, the salary varies—some receive as little as fifty cents per gag, but Miss Albertson gets funny for about $750 a week.

Not only money, but love entered her life via the gag-writing route. Working on Phil Baker's staff was a young man by the name of Kay Englund. He was amazed at the way Miss Albertson took feeble little quips and built them into big laughs, such as:

M. C.: Hello, Mabel, what's that big book you're carrying?

Mabel: Oh, this? It's a book of my family's pictures.

M. C.: Family pictures? They call them family albums.

Mabel: That's my family all right. All bums!

Or...
Baker: I thought your father was rich.

Mabel: Rich! Say, my father has so many gold teeth in his mouth he has to sleep with his head in a safe!

Englund's respect for Mabel Albertson grew to such proportions that he finally said to her, "I want you for my wife." Mabel was on the verge of answering, "What on earth would your wife do with me?" when she realized that it would be fatal to romance. So she gave the conventional answer and became a gag-writer's gag-writer bride.

"That's another reason why girl gagsters aren't encouraged," sighs Mabel. "Can you imagine what would happen? The boy friend would whisper, 'You have teeth like pearls,' and immediately the girl would come back with a snappy one: 'When were you out with Pearl? No, women don't know when business hours end."

When David Freedman was alive he was considered the Genius of Gagsters, the Prince of Pundsters. Among his clients were Eddie Cantor, Al Jolson, Ed Wynn and Fannie Brice. Today his widow is continuing his work to support herself and their four children. She was offered $25,000 for his famous collection of a million jokes, but she turned it down. Instead, she plans to earn many times that amount by concocting new twists on the original 100,000. She may do it, too, for her weekly earnings range anywhere from $100 to $300 a week.

Every one of the Freedman gags is carefully classified and indexed from aeroplanes to Zythums. It requires a deft touch to take a gag that made grandpa laugh and overhaul it with a timely twist that will have modern audiences chuckling.

"Automobile trailers are new," explains Mrs. Freedman, "so I look up the files under 'picnics,' 'outings' and those old, but not-forgotten 'Lizzie' jokes that helped make millions for Henry. With a bit of juggling I come out with a brand new masterpiece."

"For instance, do you remember the whiskered one about the family who went picnicking on the grounds of the exclusive Astorbilt Country Club? They laid out their lunch and left a litter of orange peels, egg shells and sandwich remains on the lawn. Soon a man stalks over to them, furious. 'Get off the grounds this instant!' Papa says, 'And who are you?' The man: 'I'm the chairman of the Membership Committee of the club.' Papa: 'Nu, and is that the way you expect to get me for a member?'"

"I included that bit in a monologue I wrote for Johnny Burke. This time I had the family camp their trailer on the Astorbilt Club's grounds, while they set up their clothes lines and wash basins on the estate and used the club's golf sticks for fire wood. Enter the irate chairman. Ditto the conversation between Papa and the chairman, with the same punch line. It got as big a laugh as it did ten years ago."

The Waterloo of any gag-writer is the radio censor who lurks behind each paragraph to see that the jokes which go out over the red, white and blue networks are palatable enough for the air audience. When he gets out his blue pencil, all the mascara and lipstick in the world won't save a lady gag-writer's joke. One of Mrs. Freedman's favorites is: "Now that Gypsy Rose Lee is in Hollywood she ought to change her name to See-more See-more." It was censored.

Another of Mrs. Freedman's pets that didn't pass was this one:

Patient: What does that sign down the hall say?

Doctor: It reads: "Please refrain from making any nurse."

But while these mildly risqué gags were snipped, Nancy Hamilton, who writes most of the witty things that Beatrice Lillie says, appears to have the censors buffaloed. Here are a few she's gotten by with:

Mrs. David Freedman refused $25,000 for her husband's collection of jokes, and is using them herself.

Beatrice Lillie (as a beauty shop owner): How old are you, madame?

Woman: How dare you? I'll have you know I'm the mother of six children!

B. L.: I asked your age not your hobby!

This one passed, yet the following seemingly innocuous gag which appeared in a Mabel Albertson brainchild was scissored on the ground that it was odious, all going to prove how unpredictable a censor's mind is:

M. C.: So you're an actress, eh? What have you appeared in?

Mabel: I played with Leslie Howard in "The Putrified Forest."

Apparently it was in bad taste, but hardly risqué enough to merit barring on that score.

Juliet Lowell, who compiled the amusingly naive "Dumb Belle Letters" into a best-seller, took a fling at writing humorous scripts for the Fred Waring show last year by converting her priceless letters into laugh-lines. But to her chagrin she learned that many of the letters which passed astute and circumspect editors without evoking a teeny little blush were sent back by radio censors for laundering.

This one, based on one of her letters, came under the taboo.

Man: I'd like to get a job on the radio.

Radio Official: What have you done?

Man: Well, I've been married six times and have eleven children.

R. O.: Oh, so you want to be another Voice of Experience!

The censors sadly shake their heads. They thought, at first, that feminine gag writers would have a completely refining influence on radio humor. Instead, they are beginning to believe that often a lady is a lady—until she writes a gag!

Gauging the Gags

In every studio there is a control booth, presided over by an engineer who observes the studio through a three-sheet thickness of plate glass. He hears the program as you do, through a radio receiver. Constantly listening to voices and orchestras of every description, studio engineers develop a keen critical sense of musical values.

This studio control is the vantage point from which Ed Beloin and Bill Morrow, the collaborators of Jack Benny, gauge the Phantom Fiddler's laugh-provoking conduct. They use the following ratings:

"S" is for snicker. (Awful! Awful!)

"G" is for good. (Passing.)

"B" is for a hit. (All laughing.)

"BW" is for great. (Slugola!—it's wonderful.)

After every performance, Jack's collaborators hand him a report card. If he gets worse than all G's, the clown frowns and blows smoke rings at the ceiling. Fifteen BW's, ten G pluses, and half a dozen B's is something to be proud of, but in order to achieve this rating, Jack and his staff must have a big session, indeed.

Willie Burns is another guinea pig for laughter. His brother, George Burns, teams with Gracie Allen and together they confect the rib-tickling comedy. Brother Willie never goes before the mike, but he may be seen "walking the wings" of a studio when the pair of nitwits are doing their stuff. If Willie won't laugh at a gag, it's out—definitely. George Burns calls his brother "my average man."

Dared the Chair to save his Sweetheart's name

By EUGENE WARNER

TWICE snatched from the brink of doom by President Roosevelt, an inconspicuous, black-mustached little man has become the central figure in one of the most fantastic love stories in recent years.

The man who lost his heart and thereby almost lost his head is Thomas Jordon, of Washington, D. C., and his story is the bizarre one of a lover so infatuated with shining romance that he was willing to risk the dreaded electric chair for it.

Jordon's Galahad gesture brought him within a breath-taking inch of the grim death chair on two occasions, and now, though his life has been saved and his sentence commuted by the President to life imprisonment, he is the loser all around. The girl for whom he dared death turned against him, and took the witness stand to help send him to his doom.

This strange case of tender love and dark tragedy had its beginning on the night of April 3, 1931 when two masked bandits entered the Garden T-Shoppe, in Washington, and shot the cashier, quiet, matronly Lizzie Jaynes. Jordon, who had been involved previously in minor brushes with the law, was questioned in connection with the murder and then released.

He went to Mt. Vernon, N. Y., and was arrested again as a suspect in the case. Here the story takes one of the strange turns that place it in the Truth-Is-Stranger-Than-Fiction category.

Jordon signed a confession. In it he asserted that a girl named Edith Dodsworth enticed him into the fatal hold-up. Edith Dodsworth disappeared after the robbery and her whereabouts are a mystery to this day. Whether or not the confession was true, it carried enough weight with the jury at Jordon's trial to convict him of first-degree murder.

But let Thomas Jordon tell what happened in his own words, as he sits restlessly in his cell:

"When I was released after being questioned in the shooting I went to Mt. Vernon. I had nothing to do with the shooting.

"I got a job there as a cook, and later met and fell in love with a girl. I told her all about my past.

"Then one day she told me she'd feel better if once and for all the question of that murder were removed. 'Why don't you write to Washington and find out for sure?' she asked.

"Well, I did. I got a letter back from District Attorney Garnett saying my letter had been referred to the chief of police. I showed her the letter, laughed and told her not to worry.

"Next day she was all wrought up. She handed me $100, all of her savings out of the bank. She told me, 'I'd feel better if you take this and go some place and I'll come to you later.'

"I laughed again. But later my boss told me two men had inquired about me. I knew they were detectives. So I walked into headquarters and surrendered.

"She begged me to keep her name out of it. She was afraid of her job with the telephone company. Her job seemed awfully important to her so I kept my mouth shut. So I never did tell her name and never have. In fact, one of the detectives said, 'we want either the girl's name or a confession. You might as well confess. If you do, we'll go away and won't bother her.'

"I gave them the confession... a lot of junk I knew they couldn't verify, just anything to get them out of town. They took me to Washington."

And in Washington Jordon is today. The importance of his sweetheart's wish put him on his last mile. That wish is still important to him. Not because she cares for him any longer. Not because he cares for her any more. But because it once meant something to him, long ago in the distant past, a man to whom nothing had ever meant anything.

"They used my so-called confession against me," the glittering-ments and appeals having been exhausted, the dark, forbidding last mile loomed ahead. John M. Holzworth, his attorney, frantically digging in the records of the trial, found that several important witnesses had never been brought to testify. Then a newspaper reporter made the discovery that stayed the lethal switch!

The reporter discovered a police teletype broadcast which described the robbers the night of the holdup as both being tall. The Department of Justice was notified. A radio message crackled to President Roosevelt, fishing in the Gulf. Jordon was safe for thirty more days.

Working at fever pitch, the authorities found new witnesses who revealed that Mrs. Jaynes herself had given the police the description of her assailants. The policemen admitted their notebooks showed the murderer was tall and fair. Jordon is short and dark.

With the date of Jordon's death again ominously close, there came another message from the Chief Executive. This time it was a commutation of sentence from death to life imprisonment.

"Love can get a man into some terrible jams," broods Jordon in his cell. "But I don't think anybody ever let it get him where it got me."

Going Modern in Easy Stages

Plans for Modern Home Without Large Expenditure

By ELIZABETH MacRAE BOYKIN.

A PLEASANT room doesn't spring forth full grown from somebody's forehead like the god in the Greek myth, especially a room in the modern manner. It takes time, a lot of loving thought and very careful buying. And it takes experience too to create a room without making expensive mistakes. Just how a lady, who'd like to have modern furniture but can't afford mistakes, would go about planning her purchases was the problem that we decided to settle this week.

The first thing would be to plan so as to permit changes and additions to be made according to a definite plan as the budget expands. Keeping in mind the fact that a young couple starting out wouldn't have a lot to spend in the beginning but would want a nucleus they could develop into something really nice later without having to discard original purchases, we suggest the following general procedure. Naturally prices will vary with individual means, but this plan is flexible.

Our couple should first study their budget carefully and decide how much each month can be safely allotted to home furnishings in addition to their initial sum they spend. Thus will both present and future purchases be absolutely within their means, and by thoughtful planning they can make the most of what they will have available to spend.

On a Limited Budget.

Suppose they are starting in a two-room apartment and on a somewhat limited budget to begin, as many young couples do. And suppose they want to be very modern. Their first need would be for a place to sleep, and so they should buy a good double mattress and box springs, to which the young man could add a frame and legs to do for the present. Thus they could get along for the present without bedstead or sofa, but to make their springs and mattress look attractive the young man in the case could build a row of book shelves across one wall of the room and about a foot and a half deep. This should have an opening left in the center to permit the bed to slide in under the shelves and look like a studio couch. The depth of the shelves would take away the effect of the double bed width. If he desired the young man could extend arms out from the book shelves to serve as end tables for the bed.

If the young couple preferred to start with twin beds, they could get a square corner table, then buy two springs and mattresses to extend out from the corner table at right angles to each other, frames and legs could be made for them as for wide double bed mentioned above. By day they would make a pleasing sofa arrangement, by night comfortable beds, and in the future they would provide the springs and mattresses for their bedroom.

The lighting of the room will have to have early consideration. A pair of lamps at each end of the double bed would be needed and these could be obtained at reasonable cost. If the right angle single beds are used, one lamp on the corner table would be sufficient to begin with.

A Place to Eat.

An eating unit would have to come now. . . a console table and a pair of chairs would serve adequately and over the console a large mirror would be attractive, would make the room seem larger and also could be used for dressing. A chest of drawers is an essential, too, and could be used with the mirror if preferred, though it will seem a little less bedroomly to have a picture over the chest and the mirror over the console. Another idea about the chest facilities is suggested if the budget will permit—the twin chests give more storage space and are very smart looking used together with a long horizontal mirror above them.

The windows should have draperies in a room like this because color is the least expensive but most important thing in the decorative design of the room. And when the budget is pinched, an important color note can be introduced at fairly reasonable cost by the addition of attractive draperies which will go a long way toward making the room "seem" furnished. A bold fine modern pattern in the fabric would be effective and suitable.

Books in those book shelves are another bright splash of color that will help to furnish the room, and this plan provides that the books get new jackets in case they're worn looking or not in the right colors for the pattern of the room. In a modern room, silver, white or gold book jackets are sometimes effective. Or there are metallic greens and reds, as well as hand blocked papers in many subtle colors that will add color detail to the room.

Not an Absolute Necessity.

Maybe you are surprised that no rug has yet been mentioned. But actually a rug doesn't come under the heading of an absolute necessity. Therefore it can be waited for if the budget is short. It would be better to wait on the rug, for instance, than to buy a cheaper mattress. However, a rug adds lots to the charm of the room and if there's money enough left, a broadloom of fairly good quality could be purchased, or an interesting small rug can be selected with a view toward using it in a hall later.

As for easy chairs, they too can be left till a little later if necessary, since our young couple have their bed to sit on. But of course a chair is a great comfort and should be added just as soon as possible. However, it is better to wait until a good one can be afforded, as a cheap chair is a poor investment.

Now then, our young couple are all ready to move in. Their new apartment is furnished with all the things that they will actually have to have to be comfortable. And yet everything they have bought so far is good enough to fit into the plan for a larger home, later. . . nothing will need be junked.

But as they expanded into larger quarters, most of the things they have purchased for this first room can be relegated to other rooms, so that their living room can get the benefit of their increased means. For example, the springs and mattress can go into the bedroom and with the addition of a bolster and a nice spread and twin pictures to hang above it will be quite a smart modern bed. Or they can be used with a bedstead. The chest of drawers can also go into the bedroom, and here is where the twin chests (if they were afforded) will be particularly useful for many of the smartest modern bedrooms have them now. A vanity can be added, or if that's not yet possible, then twin night tables can be placed on either side of a mirror door with a bench or stool that slides easily out of the way of the door. The first rug can also be used in the bedroom if it is a 9x12.

If the rug was a smaller one it can go into the foyer, along with the console table and pair of chairs. A larger table and four chairs can replace this for the dining end of the living room, or for a dining room proper.

The living room can then begin fresh, retaining probably only the bookcase unit that has been built in (or better book cases can be added) the draperies and the easy chair. A sofa will be the first new purchase here, then an extra easy chair, end tables and a desk with a comfortable desk chair. (Incidentally flat top desks are very popular now because men prefer them). Some nice reflector lamps and new table lamps to replace the first ones (now in the bedroom) will probably be the next thing in line. And then a really good rug for this main room in the house.

This is the way rooms like those shown in today's illustrations could be developed by the young couple who might look at them complete and feel that they couldn't possibly afford that handsome a layout. The individual prices would, of course, vary according to individual selections, but beginning on imagination the start could be made. If everything were purchased with a

Perennials in the Garden

By W. ELBRIDGE FREEBORN.

LAST week we discussed some of the proved methods of planting perennials from seeds and at the same time made recommendation of some of the easier grown perennials that should be found in every garden. Today we want to call your attention to some of the unusual perennials giving just a brief description of these, and with these descriptions want to send along a word of warning. We are choosing some of the more unusual things and one of the reasons that they are unusual is that they are a little more difficult to grow than the standard sorts that may be found in any garden, such as hollyhocks, columbine and coreopsis.

Agrostemma, a hardy perennial; mullein pink or rose campion, with stout, erect, silvery foliage, 2 to 3-foot plants. Is very pretty, showy, deep blood-red with single flowers from May to July. Give plenty of sunshine.

Alyssum, perennial alyssum or saxatile compactum, sometimes called gold dust and basket of gold; grows 9 to 12 inches; is tall, compact, old gold or deep yellow flowers in profusion. Good for edging and rockwork.

Anchusa Italica or dropmore variety, a hardy perennial. The newest and finest; valuable and beautiful hardy border perennial. Grows 3 to 5 feet tall in partial shade and in May and June is covered with sprays of the richest gentian-blue flowers.

Arabis, a hardy perennial, sometimes called rock grass. Spreads rapidly, is low growing with clusters of pure white fragrant flowers, practically covering the ground in early spring. Arabis needs but little moisture and in sunny places is splendid for edging, ground cover and rockery beautification. Cut-flowers last a long time.

Armeria, a hardy perennial, sometimes called great thrift or sea pink. This is not the common phlox usually called thrift. It has tufty, grassy evergreen foliage surmounted by slender, stiff, wiry 12-inch stems with dense, giant clover-like flower heads. Rosy pink to purplish crimson flowers, suitable for cutting.

Baptisia or false indigo, a hardy perennial, 3 to 4 feet; strong, spreading bushy plants for borders, wild flower gardens and cutting; dark green, deeply cut foliage; dainty branching spikes of rich blue lupine-like flowers in May and June. Baptisia is slow to germinate.

Cerastium, a hardy perennial, sometimes called snow in summer or tomentosum. This makes an excellent rockery and edging plant. Silvery white, dense hairy foliage, 6 to 8 inches high and spreading 4 feet or more in a thick blanket. Miniature half-inch daisy-like flowers cover the whole plant in a white sheet early in season.

Echinops or globe thistle, a hardy perennial, growing 3 feet tall, with rather prickly, thick, serrated tomato-like foliage. Huge round thistle-like, bright blue flower heads or balls, 2 inches across, like large sycamore balls. Excellent for cutting and may be dried to remain attractive for months.

Flowering flax, sometimes called blue flax or linum perenne sibericum, a hardy perennial, valuable blue border plant, 1 1/2 to 2 feet tall, light blue flowers with a sheen; 18 to 24 inches high, erect, wide base-branching plant; short bluish-gray leaves along slightly pendulous stems.

Flowering flax or golden flax, linum flavum, another hardy perennial, 1 to 2 feet tall. Produces masses of glowing golden yellow flowers from May until September; dark green, flat, broad leaves on erect bushy plants; individual flowers 3 inches across. Fall blooming may be had by cutting back after summer flowering ceases. This and blue flax are delightful for massing together and in the mixed perennial border.

Physalis, sometimes called Chinese lantern plant, a hardy perennial, ornamental variety of winter cherry; grows 2 feet high, bushy plants with many clusters of bright, orange-scarlet, flam-

Historical.

HISTORICAL TRAILS TO CALIFORNIA, by Dr. T. De La Rhue. Caxton Printers, Ltd., Caldwell, Idaho. $2.50

This book is a most interesting story of the Spanish Inquisition, a colorful picture of that turbulent period in the country's history. It is so fascinating that one reads to the end without putting it down.

The lord mayor of Malaga was instrumental in helping the fugitives from the iron claws of torture and death, escape to New Spain. He seemed to be a smiling spectator, but in reality he instigated trouble for the king's soldiers and made it possible for the persecuted to escape.

Don Ramon Davidas, one of the most powerful and beloved landowners of Spain, was on the blacklist of the inquisitioners as a result of his pronounced opinions of wrongs committed by the church and crown. Because of his popularity no open steps could be taken against him but secretly they tried to trap him, kill him and make it appear an accident. But Senor Davidas was clever, when they offered him the title of Marquis of Alinconte, which was then vacant because the original marquis had been killed, he refused. In turn he made the king's men a proposition: In exchange for his estates he would take a large land grant in California.

Many hardships awaited those courageous people, the vanguard of Spanish pioneers, who traveled the "Road of Sorrows," El Camino de Dolores, to a land of sunshine and plenty—California.

A Spanish-American himself, Dr. T. De La Rhue, has chosen a subject on which he is an authority, old and new Spain.

Imp of Imagination.

THE CASE IS CLOSED, by Patricia Wentworth. Lippincott Co., Philadelphia. 32 pp.

The same little imp within, which helped her to fashion little nonsensical rhymes when she was angry or nonplussed, convinced Hilary Carew that Geoffrey Grey was innocent of his uncle's murder, that there was more to the Everton Case than had been discovered at Geoffrey's trial. That imp—call it imagination—saw something strange and furtive in the half-crazy babblings of Mrs. Mercer, the murdered man's housekeeper, and in the protests of Mrs. Mercer's dominating husband that his wife was insane.

It all began when Hilary caught the wrong train and chanced to meet Mrs. Mercer. Before that the case had been closely and tightly drawn about Geoffrey Grey, and had shown not the slightest possibility of loosening. But when Mrs. Mercer tried to tell Hilary something and couldn't because of fear of her husband, Hilary's imagination went to work. From then on, through a series of adventures, one of which nearly cost her her life, Hilary Carew pursued the case of the murdered uncle and the disinherited nephew to its ultimate solution. "The Case Is Closed" combines mystery, romance and humor with a situation which will keep the most competent "mystery lover" guessing till the final chapter. —K. C. C.

Roosevelt Policies.

TECHNOLOGY, CORPORATIONS AND THE GENERAL WELFARE, by Henry A. Wallace. The University of North Carolina Press, Chapel Hill. 83 pp. $1.

Three lectures delivered by Wallace hailed by some as a forerunner of Rooseveltian policies and condemned by others for much the same reason, have been released in book form for general consumption.

Wallace has reviewed the conceptions of government in its relationship to the people, to business and to the general welfare, pointing to factors governing changes in this conception over a period of years and outlining his construction of necessary changes in the future to eliminate depressions. Aside from their political aspect, the lectures are well worth the attention of readers in all walks of life.

What Atlantans Read

By LEE FUHRMAN.

This is the first of a series of articles in which regular users of the Carnegie Library list their reading preferences. Besides revealing what Atlantans read, and why, the lists serve as guides for those interested in the subjects covered. The first article deals with Modern Fiction. Next Sunday's subject will be Religion.

TO MRS. HENRY G. WILLIAMS, an Atlanta woman who prefers books to the radio or motion pictures, keeping up with modern fiction means much more than the mere enjoyment gained from reading an entertaining story.

To Mrs. Williams, whose love of books goes back to childhood days when her grandmother read aloud to her, current fiction spans distance and furnishes a direct link with her children in other cities.

"Just as my mother and grandmother read to me when I was a girl," said Mrs. Williams, who lives at 936-A Myrtle street, N. E., "I have read to my children, and instilled in them a love of good literature."

"Now that they are grown and away from me, books furnish a bond between us that neither time nor space can break. In our letters, we converse about the books we are reading, and in this manner find ourselves as close as ever."

What are some of the books they've discussed by mail?

Mrs. Williams named 10 modern novels, a group which, in her opinion, constitute a list of "10 best."

Her choices begin with "Gone With the Wind," and include Henry Handel Richardson's "The Fortunes of Richard Mahoney"; Ernest Sackville-West's "Simpson, A Life"; Winifred Holtby's "South Riding"; Rachel Field's "Time Out of Mind"; George Santayana's "The Last Puritan"; Alice T. Hobart's "Yang and Yin"; Elizabeth Goudge's "Island Magic"; Mrs. Victoria Sackville-West Nicolson's "All Passion Spent"; and William Saroyan's "Darling Young Man on the Flying Trapeze."

The reasons for her choice? Take Saroyan first. Mrs. Williams considers his work "short stories of great simplicity, showing traits of fineness and human decency surviving under most severe tests; a book giving courage to minds made fearful by the depression."

A southern point of view was expressed by Mrs. Williams in her appraisal of "Gone With the Wind" when she said: "Narrative vigor is its greatest claim, but its fidelity to stories heard in childhood give it an appeal that makes it hard to judge by impersonal standards. To every southerner, a book for which to be grateful."

As for the Mahoney work, Mrs. Williams places it on her list because it is in the tradition of the older English novelists she loves so well, Dickens, Thackeray, De Morgan and because it depicts life in such detail that the characters become friends and intimates.

"Simpson" she found an unusually beautiful character-study of a woman, a nurse for little children, revealing English family life from a unique point of view, while "The Last Puritan" won favor for many reasons: "Notable for ironic wisdom, subtle wit and humor; a thoughtful analysis of the New England traditional attitude toward life."

At this point, Mrs. Williams paused in the discussion of her literary choices, and told how she had been using the Carnegie Library here all her life.

"I would like to mention this," she said, "because it shows that through the library, any woman can get the same beauties of literature that I have."

Mrs. Williams then told how, as a small girl, she obtained books from the Young Men's Library Association, the predecessor of the present Carnegie Library.

"But let's return to the list," she continued. "South Riding." Life in this book has meaning because of the intelligence of the heroine, and depth of feeling because of the loyalty of the hero.

"Yang and Yin": Frustration and fulfillment, the survival of the high purpose of a medical missionary in China; an interesting contrast to the studies by Pearl Buck.

"Island Magic." A fairy setting for a story of a very real family, an exquisite mother and adorable children. As gay and sparkling as sunlight on water.

Mrs. Williams believes Mrs. Nicolson's book "a serenely beautiful portrait of old age," while "Time Out of Mind" is the struggle for expression by a musical genius almost accomplished through the love and understanding of an apparently inartistic woman.

"The fine old home for their childhood furnishes a perfect background for the story," she added.

Mrs. Williams concluded by pointing out that the library shelves contain not only the modern and new books, but the old favorites also.

Excellent Verse.

LAWRENCE: THE LAST CRUSADE, by Selden Rodman. Viking Press, New York. 129 pp. $2.50.

Not a great deal of narrative poetry has been written recently. Selden Rodman's "Lawrence: The Last Crusade" is one of the few which has appeared in the past five years.

Rodman was born about 30 years ago in New York city. He attended Yale University, where he helped to found the famed "Harkness Hoot." After graduation he spent a year in Europe then returned to America, where he became an editor of the magazine, "Common Sense," and traveled widely to report at first-hand on labor, politics and industry. He began his poem about Lawrence in June, 1936, and finished it in September. He is now at work on a play.

His verse is excellent. The lines contain no clichés yet they are not strained. There is a naturalness of life about them that fits into the material. Lawrence was no mere mortal. His exploits were heroic even though unheroically done. Because he was a hero the epic proportions are satisfied. Lawrence becomes a symbol of modern man choosing between the right and wrong use of power.

This is a fine poem and deserves well of the poetry public.

Dreams Fulfilled.

THE AMERICAN DREAM, by Michael Foster. William Morrow & Co., Inc., New York. 506 pp. $3.

The promise inherent in Foster's first novel, "Forgive Adam," has been magnificently borne out in his chronicle of three generations of the Thralls and of America.

It is the story of Shelby Thrall, a newspaperman who wound up 30 years of existence filled with disillusion and trapped in a blind alley of aimlessness. To him is given the American dream, bringing to this troubled figure the wisdom of his heritage. Their reasons for being are given him that he may carve anew a life in which dreams may be fulfilled.

Quaker History.

WILLIAM PENN, by William I. Hull, 362 pp. illus. $5.00.

The author, Swarthmore College professor of Quaker history, calls this volume a "tropical biography," descriptive of his novel way of treating Penn the Founder's career. Instead of the usual chronological method, involving as he says "repetition and the constant breaking off of thought for the sake of adhering to chronology," the method here followed is to treat the manifold activities of William Penn under 28 topics, each properly correlated and brought into focus. It needs hardly be said that such a method of writing biography, while admirably handled in this case, is not one to be adopted indiscriminately.

It is probable that no great character of English history has suffered so much from his biographers as William Penn. From the weakly malicious Pepys (the Suetonius of the Stuart period) to the likewise malicious, but much more caustic, Macaulay, recorders of history have vented their spleen at one aspect or other of the Founder's career. It is probable, indeed, that the very multiplicity of his activities have brought about this result; the man made himself heard on so many widely different subjects that a sincere approval of all of his ideas is scarcely possible except to another William Penn. The present author's treatment, while deeply sympathetic, is not altogether without criticism, but the reader is likely to follow his conclusion that the graver charges brought against Penn are without foundation.

A sincere devotion to the Quaker cause must be granted him without question—he suffered enough for it to purchase our abiding faith in his motives. And his devious political course during the regime of the later Stuarts should not, after all, be so difficult to understand. Once it is granted that his friendship for the Duke of York was a genuine and disinterested one, his subsequent conduct becomes, to a man of Penn's peculiar temperament, quite clear and logical. That this thoroughly likeable prince, in many ways the most promising of all the Stuarts, became a detestable sovereign, is not to be laid at Penn's door. While the friendship may have been unfortunate, it is well to emphasize, as this author does, that if it had not been for Penn's position at court much of his work would have been left undone, and the cause of religious toleration in England would have suffered a severe setback.

If there is any fault to be found with this scholarly and eminently capable biography, it lies in the inclusion of much controversial matter by by-gone interest. While Penn's role as a pamphleteer was no doubt of profound importance in shaping Quaker doctrine, this role is not likely to be of overwhelming interest to the lay reader of the twentieth century. It also seems to me that his literary contribution has been somewhat overrated. He writes with clarity and great force, but to put, as the author does, his terse style above such polished prose as that of Dryden, for instance, is too much.

In giving this much importance to what must now seem a secondary role his activities as a colonizer, as a maker of laws, and as a political theorist of the very first order, are suffered to stand in the shade. Nonetheless we get a picture of Penn the Founder that is very clear and appealing. He was not a man to enslave our sympathies in spite of ourselves, but we readily forgive him for that—far too many of that ilk have strutted across the stage of history. He was, as nearly as this may ever be said, totally without humor, yet it is to be feared that a sense of humor may have proved to him a positive handicap. There is an air of pomposity about him, but that is not to be wondered at, in an age when every man was either pompous or a rascal, and some were both. He stands head and shoulders above his self-seeking contemporaries, a true man of the world, and of commanding stature. We need to be reminded that we owe him a great deal.

This volume is illustrated with some 50 photographs, gathered with painstaking care among the few reliable pictorial sources now extant. Printed in the customary excellent format of the Oxford University Press it is a book of rare distinction.

I am a reader of The Atlanta Constitution.

Q. What is Dizzy Dean's pitching record against the Chicago Cubs?

A. Up to the beginning of the 1937 season his record against the Cubs was 12 games won and 14 lost.

Q. What religion did Francis Scott Key profess?

A. He was an Episcopalian.

Q. Is Electa mentioned in the Bible?

A. She is the "Elect Lady" to whom the Second Epistle of John is addressed. In the Order of the Eastern Star she is symbolized by the cup which, according to tradition, she gave to a poor beggar. She suffered a martyr's death according to another tradition.

Q. What is the national anthem of the French Republic?

A. La Marseillaise, by Joseph Rouget de Lisle.

Q. In which motion pictures in France did Simone Simon appear before coming to America?

A. "Chanteur Inconnu," "Un fils d'Amerique," "Le Roi des Palaces," "La Petite Chocolatiere," "Lac aux Dames," "Les Yeux Noirs" and "Les Beaux Jours."

Q. Which state has the least variable temperature?

A. As a whole, Florida has the least variable temperature, but the coast section of California has about the same annual temperature range, i. e., the difference between the mean temperatures of the warmest and the coldest months is practically the same.

Q. Who was the youngest member ever appointed to the United States Supreme Court?

A. William Johnson, of South Carolina. He was appointed associate justice of the Supreme Court when he was 32 years old.

Q. What is the function of the Federal Inland Waterways Corporation?

A. It supervises the maintenance of barge lines operated by the United States government on several important water routes; investigates types of floating and terminal equipment suitable for various waterways, as well as tariff and interchange arrangements between rail and water carriers and other matters tending to promote and encourage waterway traffic; and in general functions as the official government inland waterways bureau.

Q. Is it true that homes are free from taxation in Florida?

A. Homes assessed up to $5,000 are exempt from taxation in that state.

Q. Describe the construction of an ordinary candle flame.

A. It consists of three parts: The unburned vapor around the wick, known as the area of no combustion; a luminous envelop consisting of oxygen, hydrogen and carbon, the area of partial combustion; and the outer envelop where the carbon receives sufficient oxygen from the air to allow its burning, the area of complete combustion.

Q. Is Congressman Henry Ellenbogen, of Pennsylvania, a Jew?

A. Yes.

Q. What names appeared on the bedspread which Mrs. Calvin Coolidge made for the White House?

A. On one side of the spread, which had in its center the coat-of-arms of the United States, was the inscription, "Lincoln, 1861-1865." On the other side, "Calvin Coolidge, 1923-1929." The spread was completed in 1926.

Q. On what day of the week did January 1, 1900, fall?

A. Monday.

Q. How old are the Mauch twins, and in what motion pictures have they appeared?

A. They were born in 1924, and their home town is Peoria, Ill. Billy alone was listed in the casts of "Anthony Adverse" and "The White Angel," although Bobby, who acted as his stand-in, is also reported to have doubled for his brother in some of the scenes. Both youngsters received equal billing for the first time in a picture with the recent release of "The Prince and the Pauper."

Q. When were cans for beer approved by the Treasury Department?

A. In January, 1934.

Q. What is the address of the Junior Naval Reserve?

A. 170 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Q. Were there any colleges for women in the United States in 1800? Which were the first colleges for women founded in the United States?

A. In 1800, women could not enter any college in the United States. In 1821, Emma Willard opened a seminary for girls at Troy, N. Y.; in 1837, Mount Holyoke Seminary (later college) was opened by Mary Lyon in Massachusetts; and in 1828, Catherine Elizabeth Beecher founded the Hartford Female Seminary. These three institutions mark the beginning of higher education for women in the United States.

Do You Know? Perennials in the Garden

Q. What is earmarked gold?

A. Gold held by a bank in a special account, especially gold held by the central bank of one country for the special account of a bank of a foreign country.

Q. At what altitude could the earth be seen as a sphere?

A. 1,650 miles above the earth's surface.

Q. Where are the Gifford Lectures given?

A. They are divided among the four Scottish universities, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Aberdeen and St. Andrews, and are held annually.

Q. Which British king, within the last 160 years, was not crowned at Westminster Abbey?

A. King Edward VIII.

Q. Is the negro child actor, "Buckwheat," appearing in "Our Gang" comedies, a boy or a girl?

A. A boy, whose real name is William Thomas.

Q. What makes a bee hum?

A. The very rapid vibration of the bee's wings makes the sound.

Q. What man served as both President of the United States and Chief Justice?

A. William Howard Taft.

Q. How many bound volumes are in the library of Columbia University in New York City?

A. One million, five hundred and twenty thousand.

Q. Which country suffered the greatest number of casualties during the World War?

A. Russia. That country had total casualties of approximately 9,150,000, of whom 1,700,000 were killed and died; 4,950,000 wounded; 2,500,000 prisoners and missing.

ing lantern-like fruits which may be cut and dried for winter decoration. Small yellow and brown flowers; fruits usually form the second year. Easily grown from seed. Give good soil in sun or light shade.

Stokesia, or cornflower aster, a hardy perennial 2 feet high. This native plant of the southeast is of easiest culture and thrives in sandy loams. It does well for us in clay loam, too. Prized for the very large cornflower or sweet sultan-like flowers of blue and white, 4 to 5 inches across, from May until frost. Splendid for cutting and effective singly or in masses in garden borders. Plants are heavily branched from the base, producing nice, long, cutting stems.

Viola or tufted pansies, a hardy perennial treated as a hardy annual. This is a special mixture of the finest varieties, including apricot, blue, perfection, Jersey gem, lutea, papilio violet and light blue and perfection. They form tufty, spreading plants from which long wiry stems carry exquisite small pansy-like flowers in beautiful and striking colors. They bloom more freely than pansies over a longer period. In cool, moist soil they bloom all summer and fall. Give the same care you would violets for an abundance of bloom. Excellent for edging, bedding, rockery and for gladiolus cutting material. Sow seed as for pansies.

May we remind you that all these seeds should be planted between now and the first of September in order that a good, substantial root system may be started before heavy winter sets in. Remember that these little seedlings should be transplanted at least once before they go into the permanent border, and at the time of going into the permanent border, three or four leaves should have been borne, and a root system that has filled a 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 inch pot should also have been formed.

Questions, Answers On Garden Subjects

By MRS. FLETCHER PEARSON CROWN

Question: I have trouble with plants that are apparently healthy, suddenly wilting, then dying. This seem, espe-

WHAT TO PLANT IN JULY.

LAWNS: Bermuda grass seed may still be planted, or the roots may be transplanted. Roll thoroughly after planting.

FLOWER SEEDS: There is still time to get flowers from the fast-growing annuals such as zinnias, marigolds, petunias and ageratum. Perennial flower seeds may be planted now for blossoms next year. These include pansies, hollyhocks, canterbury bells, shasta daisy, English daisy, foxglove, Oriental poppies, candytuft, too. These should be started for best results in a cold frame.

VEGETABLE SEEDS: July is the accepted month for rutabagas and fall Irish potatoes, pumpkins, spinach, squash and crowder peas. The early planters will begin to put in purple top turnips, beets and carrots and lettuce.

BEDDING PLANTS: These may be planted in July, although it is a little hard to find them this late in the season.

cially bad on larkspur, hardy phlox, boltonia, rudbeckia and other flowers. Can it be cured?

Answer: I recently talked to Mr. Bowden at the university about this trouble, and he explained that it could be cured, then said, "After it has been treated a bed must not have any infected flowers planted in it. Your tools must be disinfected before using on this bed. Never put your foot on it, since it will carry infection. In fact if you garden according to all the rules, you will observe operating room disinfection and sanitation. I have a good time not being so exact."

But this disease is named, Rhizoctonia. It forms mats of mycelium in the soil organic matter, and causes dry rot on the roots of many plants. Pull up the plants so affected and burn. Make a solution of one pound copper sulphate and eight gallons of water. Saturate the soil with this. Do not immediately replant this area, but allow it to rest for several weeks.

I hope the hot weather of summer does not keep you from carrying on the necessary garden routine so essential to growing plants. You will find that by getting up about one hour earlier you can accomplish a great deal in the cool of the morning. Those of us who enjoy losing weight will find this one of the most efficient ways to do so. By necessary garden routine I mean not to let any weeds get big enough to have a weed-pulling party; just keep the soil cultivated. This also keeps a dust mulch, which in turn cuts down on watering. Then by all means, keep the faded flowers cut. Not only this, but cut every rose every morning without waiting for it to really open. I find that the hot noonday sun burns the petals so badly they really look worse on the bush than to have none at all. Then when you are indoors you can enjoy them for at least two whole days.

WHEN JUSTICE TRIUMPHED

ferred his loitering place to Lafayette Park, on Pennsylvania avenue, directly opposite the White House. Newspapermen were to recall his interested queries as to the President's plans for the coming week. If all who figured in the drama could have compared notes—particularly the tradesman who sold him the pistol—things might have been different, but—

Shortly after 9 o'clock, the morning of July 2, President Garfield stepped out of the White House into a carriage. He was in excellent health and spirits—at a dare from one of his four sons that morning he had leaped over his bed—and he was smiling "like a boy off for his vacation" as he drove away for the Baltimore and Potomac railroad depot. His destination was Williams College, his alma mater, which son Henry was one day to head. At his side in the carriage was Secretary Blaine.

They arrived at the depot at 9:25. Several other members of the cabinet, who were to accompany the President on the jaunt, had already boarded the waiting train. Garfield and Blaine took a short cut through the ladies' waiting room—as usual in those days, no effort had been made to clear that passage of bystanders.

Arm in arm, they passed a man of medium build who held a sheaf of papers in his right hand. The man was Guiteau, the papers concealed his gun.

The assassin calmly took aim and fired twice. The first bullet struck the President in the arm, just below the shoulder, the second entered his back.

Guiteau turned and walked toward an exit, only to find it blocked by the rush of police officers and others attracted by the loud reports of the pistol. He then changed his course, suddenly breaking into a run. When one policeman felled him with a flying tackle, he offered no resistance. Without the slightest show of emotion, and giving not one look at his victim, writhing in pain, he handed his weapon to the officer, saying:

"I did it and I want to be arrested. I am a Stalwart, and Arthur is President now."

He added that he had a letter which he wanted delivered to General Sherman. This letter, he said, would "explain everything." When asked his name, he took a piece of paper and calmly wrote, "Charles Guiteau, attorney at law, Chicago, Ill." He was the only person in the immediate vicinity who was not wildly excited. Indeed, he behaved as businesslike as a person who has just performed a more or less routine duty.

Hustled at once to a police station, the prisoner was searched and the following statement, dated that day, was found:

"The President's tragic death was a sad necessity, but it will unite the Republican party and save the republic. Life is a flimsy dream, and it matters little when one goes. A human life is of small value. During the war thousands of brave boys went down without a tear.

"I presume the President was a Christian and that he will be happier in Paradise than here. It will be no more worse for Mrs. Garfield, poor soul, to part with her husband this way than by natural death. He is liable to go at any time, anyway. I had no ill will toward the President. His death was a political necessity.

"I am a lawyer, a theologian and a politician. I am a Stalwart of the Stalwarts. I was with General Grant and the rest of our men in New York during the canvass. I have some papers for the press which I shall leave with Byron Andrews and his co-journalists at 1420 New York avenue where the reporters can see them. I am going to the jail."

Reporter Andrews, it developed, had been known to Guiteau only by reputation.

Quick Police Action Thwarts Lynch Move.

Soon there was talk of lynching the assassin. Gradually the whisper grew to a demanding shout. The police checkmated the suggestion by removing Guiteau out of a side entrance of the station house to the heavily guarded District jail.

Throughout the day the condition of the President was bulletined hourly. By mid-afternoon it appeared that Garfield could not live through the night. This caused public feeling to flare angrily, and two regular army companies went on duty at the jail and the White House.

But when the President survived the night and seemed headed toward recovery, tension loosened. It was said that his splendid physical condition would probably pull him through.

No one seemed quite certain whether the President was incapacitated within the meaning of the constitution, and accordingly Vice President Arthur's position in the executive picture could not be clarified.

But on September 19 there could no longer be any doubt about Arthur's status.

Garfield had died.

Guiteau was indicted for murder less than a month later, and his trial began on November 14 before Judge Cox in the District supreme court. The erratic, irrepressible defendant started throughout the proceedings, interrupting, correcting, protesting. Invariably he made objection to the terms "murdered" or "assassinated"—he insisted that the proper word in this instance was "removed."

Trial Revealed How Patronage Functioned.

Cabinet officers, politicians and other witnesses unfolded, under examination by Guiteau and his attorneys, the story of how political patronage functioned at that time. The purpose of the defense—which was also pleading insanity—was to show that Guiteau had merely followed the current custom in demanding public office for services rendered the party.

Thus, it was held, his frequent White House visits and his demanding attitude had not constituted antagonism toward Garfield such as might be translated into premeditation to kill.

After more than a score of prosecution witnesses had testified, many giving eye-witness accounts of the shooting, the prisoner himself took the stand and proceeded to cook his own goose.

Had he purchased this pistol? He had.

Why had he purchased this pistol? "I bought it," he replied, "to execute the Divine Will in removing the President."

Said He Had Killed Under Divine Pressure.

He explained that Divine pressure had been exerted for many weeks and that he had succumbed only after much resistance. God, one gathered, had to keep after him continually.

"I wanted to execute the Divine Will," he told the jury with a note of deep sincerity. "I want to say right here, to obviate all this kind of loose talk, that I should have removed the President any time from about the middle of June until I actually shot him, if I had had an opportunity..."

"I say that the entire responsibility for that thing is on the Deity; that He has taken care of it thus far, and that He will continue to take care of it."

Alienists and lay witnesses wrangled for days over whether the defendant was sane or insane. It was generally agreed that he was of unsound mind, but the extent of his mental distortion became a subject of much debate.

Judge Cox, addressing the jury, expounded a rule of law with relation to insanity and criminal action which set aside the previous conception that a deranged person cannot commit a punishable offense. In substance, it states that a person, though insane, shall be punished for any wrongful act he commits with knowledge of its wrongfulness. He may be insane in all other points, but if sane with reference to the instant act, he is culpable. He said:

"The true test of criminal insanity, where the defense of insanity is interposed, is whether the accused had sufficient use of his reason to understand the nature of the act with which he is charged, and to understand that it was wrong for him to commit it; that if this was the fact he is criminally responsible for it, whatever peculiarities may be shown about him in other respects; whereas, if his reason was so defective, in consequence of mental disorder, generally supposed to be caused by brain disease, that he could not understand what he was doing, or that what he was doing was wrong, he ought to be treated as an irresponsible person."

"My Blood Will Be on Heads of That Jury."

The case went to the jury on January 25, 1882. The verdict (as you have probably guessed) was guilty.

Guiteau immediately leaped up, screaming, "My blood will be on the heads of that jury, don't you forget it!"

But he was more calm when he stood to hear Judge Cox sentence him to die. "I am not guilty, sir," he said, with the same old air of sincerity. "It was God's act, not mine, and God will take care of it." When sentence had been pronounced, he cried out: "I will go to glory; I won't go yet! I'll be President before I go!"

This proved a slight exaggeration, for he was hanged the following June 30th. (Copyright, 1937, for The Constitution.)

The Planets—Your Daily Guide

By BERNICE DENTON PIERSON

Bernice Denton Pierson, eminent astrologer, has prepared this forecast in brief for a handy reference convenient to Constitution readers. This guide will aid you, for it indicates the most auspicious time to begin any new endeavor, whether it be business, social or domestic.

JULY 11—SUNDAY: Due to predominating influences previous to 12:40 noon, your mind will be filled with impatience, criticism and dissatisfaction. These qualities do not aid in the making of correct decisions, but incline to general confusion. The remainder of the day is favorable for receiving the co-operation of those who have the best interests of others at heart, for quietness and for matters of an altruistic nature.

JULY 12—MONDAY: Before 11:05 a. m. may be a slow period, and you may find it difficult to keep affairs going. The remainder of the day is filled with favorable influences, which make it an auspicious time to seek favors, consultations, artistic works, for industrial matters, for dealings with older people especially old friends, financial transactions, legal affairs and travel.

JULY 13—TUESDAY: The entire day until 9:11 p. m. is not favorable for new beginnings, and your suspicions are likely to be well justified, for the influences culminating bring falsifications, deceptions and limitations. Travel, changes or writings should be well considered before entering into them. After 9:11 p. m. confidence and courage will be rewarded, for this is a favorable period for aggressive action, work that requires muscular strength, and dealings with people of an independent nature.

JULY 14—WEDNESDAY: A feeling of freedom, wanting to expand, or a desire to spend, and spend regardless of the consequences, should be avoided during the entire day. During the evening hours be careful around fires or in travel.

JULY 15—THURSDAY: The affairs you are interested in today, or which will be brought before you, are likely to proceed at a rapid tempo, with many a tussle to put them over. All affairs should be given slow, but special consideration in order to avoid future regrets. The entire day will be overshadowed by conflict and disputes if you are not careful to show sympathy and common sense.

JULY 16—FRIDAY: Throughout the day and evening, be careful in the attitude you take toward others. The tendency will be to make sudden decisions that are contrary to your usual procedure. You may enter into affairs hurriedly that later will bring regrets. This is not a favorable day to take risks, especially if these risks involve strangers.

JULY 17—SATURDAY: Previous to 4:14 p. m. is most favorable for affairs requiring confidence, courage and quick action. This is a favorable period for transactions pertaining to land, for finances, legal affairs, education, consultations, conferences and for travel, if too much speed is avoided. Accidents are apt to be too numerous today, especially before 4:31 p. m., both in travel and around fires and hot water. The remainder of the day is most favorable for "putting your best foot forward," in any line, providing you do not lose your sense of caution.

HOW TO USE THESE INDICATIONS TO BEST ADVANTAGE.

Should you receive an important telephone call, giving you the first news you have of a certain thing, look and see if the influences at that particular time are friendly or unfriendly. The outcome of that call will be colored by the influence prevailing then.

If you wish an astrological chart covering your sign of the Zodiac, Bernice Denton Pierson will be glad to send it to you. State your birth month and date (year unnecessary). Write your name and address plainly. Accompany this with 10 cents in stamps or currency to cover clerical expenses, together with self-addressed, stamped envelope. Address: Bernice Denton Pierson, care Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Chart will be sent promptly.

THE FLIES HAVE IT.

Teacher: "See here, Willie Fly, when you don't know the correct answer to my question, why do you always say 'nay' instead of 'no'?"

Willie Fly: "Sorry, Teacher. I always say 'neigh' 'cause my grandad was a horsefly."

SECOND CHANCE - - -

By
W. BOYCE MORGAN

SYNOPSIS.

Bud Weldon has a deformed foot which makes it impossible for him to move rapidly. One day little Sally Harper runs into the street, and while Bud is unable to get to her in time, another boy named Fred Hill saves her from being hit by an automobile. Bud feels badly over his failure in this emergency, and it influences him to decide not to go to a camp which all the other fellows plan to attend, because he cannot compete with them in sports. Mildred Harper, Sally's older sister and Bud's good friend, accuses him of being a quitter and makes him angry, so that he changes his mind and joins the campers. Fred Hill is elected one of the four captains at the camp, but he will not choose Bud on his team. Bud is afraid he will be the last boy chosen, but Wally Carnes picks him and tells him he expects him to win the swimming events. Then when Wally makes him his lieutenant to supervise room inspection, Bud decides that camp isn't such a bad place after all.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT IV.

Mr. Breyer had worked out a complete daily schedule for the campers. A bugle call summoned them from their cots for setting-up exercises, followed by a short dip in the lake and breakfast. They had a half hour to prepare for room inspection and it was then that Bud went to work. He drove and wheeled the other Mohawks until they were models of neatness, and every morning Wally's team got its full 10 points for a perfect room.

The rest of the morning was devoted to sports. The first day, Bud watched his teammates lose at volley ball and win at soft ball. Then he went to Mr. Breyer and got special permission to spend this sports hour in the lake.

"I'm no help to you in those games," he explained later to Wally, "so I might as well get in some extra time in the water and get ready for the swimming meet."

From then on, Bud was in the water every morning, as well as during the regular swimming period in the afternoon. He had been a good swimmer for several years, but now he improved rapidly with constant practice. He speeded up his crawl stroke until he could do short sprints at surprising speed, and his wind improved until he could swim long distances without tiring. He also practiced diving, and his form improved steadily.

As the days passed, the point competition developed into a rousing fight between the Mohawks, Wally's team, and Fred Hill's team, the Sioux. The battle was so bitter that those few points for room inspection became more and more important. Two days before camp was to close, the Mohawks got demerits because a dirty sock was found under Bud's bed. It wasn't Bud's sock, and it hadn't been there three minutes before inspection. The Mohawks were sure that one of Fred Hill's Sioux had put it there, but they couldn't prove anything.

"Never mind," said Bud grimly. "We'll beat those guys' ears down in the swimming meet tomorrow. They are only 30 points ahead of us now, and we can make that up easily."

The swimming meet was scheduled for the last afternoon of camp. During the rest period after lunch that day, Bud was sitting on the porch of one of the cottages when a familiar-looking car turned into the lane. Mildred Harper waved to him from the back seat, where she was sitting with two other girls. Mrs. Harper was driving, and beside her sat Sally.

Bud hurried down to meet them as they parked the car, and several of the other campers who knew the girls, followed him.

"Well!" exclaimed Bud. "You finally did get out to visit camp—on the last day!"

"We've been planning to come for ages," Mil explained. "But Dad has been out of town with the car." She lowered her voice so that the others would not hear her question. "And how's camp going? Are you glad you came?"

Bud nodded. "I guess so," he replied. "But I won't know for sure until after the swimming meet this afternoon."

"And why is the swimming meet so important?"

"Because," said Bud, "I've got a chance to amount to something in it. I haven't been able to take part in any of the other sports."

"Still feeling you aren't as good as the other fellows, are you?" said Mil

KAY'S CORNER

By KATHERINE HOUSON.

AN UNUSUAL BEACH BAG.

You'll need half a yard of cretonne, chintz, or some reasonably heavy material and half a yard of oilcloth for this easily-made bag. You can use a plain material outside and a figured oilcloth lining, or figured material outside with a plain lining. Match your bathing suit or get a real contrast for a specially swanky bag.

To make the bag, cut a half-inch strip from one side of your oilcloth and a four-inch strip from one end. Now turn the two sides of your cover material in about a quarter-inch, and turn a two-inch hem across both ends. Tuck the oilcloth lining under this hem, and sew it down with wool or heavy silk, using a running stitch. You can put French knots between the stitches if you like. Now, baste the oilcloth under the turned-in sides, fold the whole thing in half, and sew the sides firmly together. If you wish you can go over this with a blanket stitch in wool and put French knots in the squares after removing the bastings.

The four-inch strip you cut from the oilcloth will make the handles. Divide it into two two-inch strips, cut it the length you prefer, and blanket stitch it all around to match the sides. Then fasten these strips to the outside of the bag, sewing them firmly, and your bag is ready for your bathing things.

You can also eliminate the handles by sewing a zipper across the top, and using a narrow oilcloth loop at one corner for a "carrier."

A GOOD SALESMAN

Once when I was living in a small town near a large city, I used to walk from my home down into the business district of the little town each afternoon, to buy an evening paper. During the walk I passed probably a dozen newsboys selling papers on various corners, and I would buy my paper from any one of them, as the fancy struck me.

But after a short time my attention was attracted to the boys who sold papers in front of the postoffice. He was a chubby little freckle-faced lad, always smiling and alert. I would give him a nickel for my three-cent paper, and as he fished in his pocket for the change, he would try to sell me another two-cent paper to get the whole nickel! When I smilingly refused, he would say, "All right. Thank you. Come again."

His conduct was so unusual that I did go back again, and again. Soon I would buy my paper from no other boy. And always he had his smile and his "Thank you," and a word about the important news of the day. That boy will "get along." He is a real salesman.

BOOKS

Pacific passage, Roy Melville met and fell in love with Myrna Lang, whose father was murdered by Lan Chao-tao's agents; then, later, his own father died while in Lan Chao-tao's hands. Roy, suspecting treachery, but not knowing of his father's death, hid the million dollar ransom in the belly of Lan Chao-tao's bronze dragon, under the master-bandit's very nose.

Like Frank L. Packard's other novels of the mysterious east, "The Dragon's Jaws," packs excitement, glamour and romance, in all of its 300 pages. How Roy Melville escaped death at the hands of Lan Chao-tao's agents, to return to China in disguise, and how he finally recovered the diamonds and his sweetheart, whom he had thought dead, in a midnight battle in an old Chinese temple, makes a swift and readable tale which will excite and hold the attention of all mystery and adventure fans.

Burrough's Stories.

THE OAKDALE AFFAIR and THE RIDER, by Edgar Rice Burroughs. Edgar Rice Burroughs, Inc., Tarzana, California. 172 and 144 pp. $2.

Two Edgar Rice Burroughs stories in one volume. And published by the author's own company. The creator of "Tarzan" and "John Carter of Virginia," "Tarzan of the Apes" and "John Carter of Mars" has given us in his latest book a tale of mystery and adventure as well as a story of a mythical Balkan kingdom. You will like the beloved vagabond in the first and the adventurous American involved in European intrigue in the second. Both are thrilling, interesting, have a love element and a mystery for your delectation. Can more be said?

The "Perfect Crime."

DEAD RECKONING, by Bruce Hamilton. Simon & Schuster, New York. 309 pp. $2.

His wife crippled and disfigured by an accident, Tim Kennedy carefully laid out what he thought to be a flawless plot to put her out of his equally carefully plotted path to the heart of the alluring Alma Shepherd. His method discovered by a blackmailing servant, he maps another campaign to cover the failure of the first.

How these lone conspiracies move to fruition and to ultimate failure forms the stirring plot of "Dead Reckoning," which gives to the reader a well-formed psychological study of a gentleman-murderer.

Its characterizations are logical, its style smooth and swift.

Pioneer Publishers.

ONE HUNDRED YEARS OF PUBLISHING. Little, Brown & Company, Boston. 83 pp.

The book describes the history of this company covering the period of 1837 to 1937. It gives considerable history regarding Boston, and quotes Oliver Wendell Holmes, who practiced medicine in Boston, stating that, "In 1837 Boston was still a provincial city but was soon to become the Hub of the Universe. Ralph Waldo Emerson, James Russell Lowell, William Elery Channing, Wynell Phillips, Longfellow, Hawthorne, John Hancock, Samuel A. Eliot, Webster, Cushing, and other great characters are described briefly either for their activities or writings in Boston.

The photographs of the leaders of this publishing house are well pictured in this book. Part of the original offices of this concern is now owned by Harvard University.

This company published some of the most outstanding books such as "Supreme Court and United States History," which won the Pulitzer prize award. "All Quiet on the Western Front," "The Amities of Book Collecting," "Revolutionary England" and other Pulitzer award books as well as such famous books as "Drums Along the Mohawk," "Peking Technique," "Grandmother Brown's Hundred Years," "The House of Exile," and even the "Atlantic Monthly" and other books such as "Mutiny on the Bounty," "Goodby, Mr. Chips," "The Old Family Almanac," "A Treatise of the Law of Evidence," "A Treatise on Constitutional Limitations," "Power Through Repose," and other very outstanding books are indebted to Little, Brown & Company as its publishers.

Winning Fight.

WITH THE WEST IN HER EYES, by Kathleen Strange. Dodge Publishing Company, New York. 282 pp. $2.50.

"With the West in Her Eyes" is an autobiography of a modern pioneer, written from the viewpoint of an English girl who had never been on a farm until the day she arrived in Canada. The scene is a remote rural community in Alberta.

In this book Mrs. Strange tells simply and compellingly of a winning fight—a fight which goes on not only in Canada, but wherever farmers wage a living from the soil. "I have always felt," writes Mrs. Strange, "that the farmer makes a very important contribution to the welfare of the world. In this book I have tried to show that behind the farmer, helping him, assisting him, encouraging him, working with him, stands the patient, uncomplaining and steadfast figure of his wife."

This book won the $1,000 prize offered for the best work of nonfiction written by a Canadian citizen. It is a story of the wheat fields that gives the reader little inside glimpses of such things as the hot summers, cold winters, drouths, hail storms, little stories about the hired men and women, things about crops and beautiful description of the wheat fields, and farm life in Canada, simple and enjoyable word pictures that hold one's interest as though the story was of the fiction type.

JESSE R. PETTY.

Hitlerism Defined.

THE SPIRIT AND STRUCTURE OF GERMAN FASCISM, by Robert A. Brady. The Viking Press, New York. 420 pp. $3.

The why, when, where and how of Hitlerism and the spread of similar doctrines in other countries, particularly in America, is presented here in one of the most vital books of the year.

We can define Fascism, either agree or disagree with its thesis, yet, for the most part, without a true conception of what it is and how it has worked in practice. Professor Brady, at present an associate professor at the University of California, has worked in Europe for the Carnegie Foundation under a grant to study the economic implications of bureaucracy in the various countries under different forms of government. In the course of that study the basis of this book was laid, and he has produced a volume to be read by all who would know more of this form of government that casts its shadow over the entire civilized world.

barteringly. "Well, I'm certainly glad I'm going to see this triumph in the water."

Bud left the visitors a short time later, to get into his swimming suit. When he got down to the lake, he saw Mil, one of the other girls, and Sally, seated in a canoe halfway out to the diving platform. The various events in the meet would start at the platform, and they had taken the canoe to get the best possible view of the proceedings.

The first race of the afternoon was a four-man relay, each man swimming the distance from the platform to the camp dock and back. Bud swam last, and by the time it was his turn, he had a handicap of many yards to overcome. He put everything he had into his stroke, but he couldn't make up all the distance, and he finished behind the Seneca. However, the Mohawks got some points for second, while their bitterest rivals, the Sioux, failed to score in this event.

All the boys took part in the sprint race, with points being counted for the winning of each heat. Bud won his heat, and then barely managed to nose out Fred Hill in the final.

"Great going, Bud!" Wally Carnes cried. "We're piling up more points than the Sioux. They may beat us in the diving events, but if you grab off the distance swim, we'll have the meet in the bag."

Sprawled out on the float, breathing fast after his hard swim, Bud resolved that he was going to win that distance swim or else! He lifted his head and gazed at the course. It was triangular, then diagonally away from the shore to a marker, and back to the platform. The course had to be covered twice, and Bud estimated that the total distance must be close to three-quarters of a mile.

"That's a real pull," he said to himself. "There won't be much sprinting on that swim. But I'm going to try to save a little something extra for the finish, just in case it's close."

He saw Mil and the other girls in their canoe, paddling idly out just beyond where the distance race would be run. He waved a hand to them, then beckoned them in closer so they would have a better view of the diving events which were next on the program.

Bud managed to get a couple of third places in the diving, and Wally Carnes also picked up a few points. But the Sioux, as expected, walked off with top honors, largely through the pretty work of their captain, Fred Hill.

"Now we've got to win the distance swim!" Wally told Bud. "Think you can dot it?"

"I'll do it or bust a lung!" said Bud grimly.

Only the strongest, most capable swimmers were entered in the long race. There were eight of them, two from each team, lined up on the float when starting time arrived. Fred Hill was one of the Sioux; Bud and a big, powerful boy named Baer, whose nickname was inevitably Grizzly, represented the Mohawks.

As Bud stood poised on the edge of the float, he saw the canoe containing Mil, little Sally, and another girl, back in its position along the farthest leg of the course. Then his attention was attracted momentarily by a young boy in an outboard motorboat, put-putting at great speed farther out in the lake.

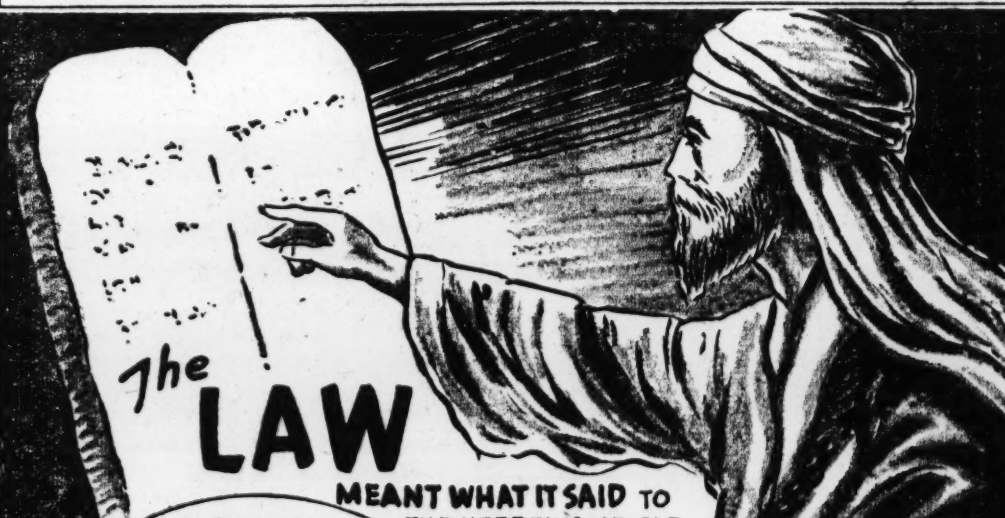

Crack! The starting gun sounded, and eight bodies hit the water with a mighty splash.

BRIEF BIBLE REVIEW

The Book of Judges is said by Bible Scholars to be one of the oldest in the Hebrew Scriptures. It is accepted by students as being one of the most interesting. It contains much of the most ancient lore of the people of Israel, and is written in vivid manner and vigorous style. Outstanding passages by way of illustration are found in the Song of Deborah, the woman judge, and the Fable of Jotham in the Story of Abimelech. (Judges 9)

His No. 2 and No. 3 Said 'Yes'—

Dashing Mr. Palmer snatched New York's most popular belle from her swarm of suitors.

—SO POTTER PALMER FINALLY GOT HIS SECOND WIFE TO TAKE THE $475,000, THAT HE MIGHT WED HIS LOVELY THIRD, THE DEBBIE ALL THE BACHELORS WANTED TO STEAL FROM HIM

By LILLIAN VERGARA

SHE was guarded twenty-four hours a day against kidnapers—but romance found its way into the home and heart of New York's top flight debbie, pretty Polly Warren just the same. And, today as she honeymoon in Bermuda with her brand new husband, Potter D'Orsay Palmer, immensely wealthy grandson of the fabulous Mrs. Potter Palmer of Chicago's Gold Coast, the smile on Dan Cupid's chubby little face must be more mischievous than ever.

It wasn't, of course, that the lovely daughter of the Arthur Chester Warrens was being guarded against Love. On the contrary, Polly has had more suitors for her heart and lily-white hand than any other half dozen debbies. But you must admit, that a constant escort of blue-coated minions of the law wouldn't ordinarily be conducive to romance. And that's the fix little Polly has found herself in ever since last December when she received several threatening letters and her parents had to take steps to prevent a possible kidnaping.

Obstacles to romance have never bothered the debonair Mr. Palmer, however. Consider, his first romance. No prospective bridegroom was ever faced with more opposition than young Palmer when he wanted to marry 16-year-old Eleanor Goldsmith, daughter of a Florida truck-driver.

Palmer, who for years had been pursued as one of the nation's most eligible bachelors by marriage-minded debbies, met Eleanor while he was acting as county game-warden in Sarasota, Florida—a job he took "just for fun." He arranged for relatives to invite her on a yachting party and for two months courted her beneath the tropic skies. When the party returned to shore Palmer and the high-school girl eloped and Potter's father, hearing about it, got busy and telephoned to 67 county judges begging them not to perform the ceremony. The "broadcast" was in vain, however, for the romantic

Mrs. Potter Palmer No. 2 forgot to take her millions on a trip abroad and had to spend a night on Ellis Island.

But the marriage lasted only 14 months, Eleanor divorcing her millionaire groom in Paris.

Palmer's next venture into matrimony was with the extremely wealthy and beautiful Maria Martinez de Hoz, of the Argentine. From the first their marriage was a hectic one. But the climax came a little over a year ago when the dark-eyed Latin beauty, angered over two alleged slaps which the scion of the Palmer family administered to her during a backgammon game, fled to the divorce court and announced there would be no more reconciliations.

Palmer was perfectly willing for his wife to have her divorce but a snag was hit when it came to discussion of a financial settlement. Palmer wanted to settle what his lawyers considered far too much upon his ex-wife. It is reported that Potter told his lawyers he would like to give Maria $8,000,000. The lawyers threw up their hands in horror. Finally, the exotic Maria agreed to call the whole thing off for a mere $475,000.

Then Potter started a whirlwind campaign to win Polly from her other suitors. Hardly a week went by that Polly's name wasn't linked with some adoring swain. Once she was reported engaged to young Louis Ehret, Jr., scion of the famous brewing family. Another time it was rumored that Haley Fiske II would be the lucky man and then it was Prince Alexis Obolensky whose name was linked with hers. It wasn't remarkable that Polly was courted so ardently, for ever since her debut four years ago, Polly, whose family is also extremely wealthy, has been one of the belles of the younger set.

Polly has had a lot of fun in her debutante days—one historic party having landed her on the front pages. That was when, with Medora Roosevelt, she helped mop up the floor in a Childs' restaurant in lieu of payment of an early breakfast check.

But those hectic days are over. Polly needs no more guards—for Potter will take care of any would-be kidnapers. His divorce was settled amicably, with the payment of $475,000 to his second wife—and as for that competition—it vanished when the ring was slipped on Polly's finger and Manhattan's most popular belle whispered: "I do."

JUNGLE VENGEANCE

WITH HIGH HOPES TARZAN LED HIS WARRIOR APES THROUGH THE FOREST TO ASSAIL THE FOE.

AND THAT NIGHT, WHILE THE ENEMY CAMP SLEPT, THE APE-MAN ASSIGNED THEM TO STATIONS IN THE TREES.

THEN A BIRD-LIKE CRY SHRILLED THROUGH THE JUNGLE. IT WAS TARZAN'S SIGNAL OF THE ZERO HOUR.

THE APES SWOOPE DOWN, AND SILENTLY THROTTLED THE SENTRIES. THEN THEY WERE FREE TO INVADE THE TENTS.

MANY A SOLDIER AWOKE TO FIND LEATHERY FINGERS AT HIS THROAT; AND MANY DIED WITHOUT A SOUND.

SOME, HOWEVER, WERE ABLE TO CRY OUT. THEIR BEWILDERED COMRADES SPRANG TO ARMS.

BUT AT THE FIRST ALARM, TARZAN VOICED THE APE-CRY OF WARNING, AND HIS RAIDERS FLED.

THEN FROM HIGH IN THE TREES THE JUNGLE LORD CALLED DOWN: "THE JUNGLE LAYS ITS VENGEFUL HAND UPON YOU!"

BELOW, EVEN THE BRAVEST TREMBLED AT THIS TERRIFYING THRUST OUT OF THE WILDERNESS

MEANWHILE, FLINT AND HIS STAFF PREPARED A PLAN OF DEFENSE AND DESTRUCTION AGAINST THE APE BATTALION.

AND WHEN TARZAN LED HIS HOST ONCE MORE TO THE FRAY, THEIR FOES WERE READY TO TRAP THEM!
NEXT WEEK: HENCHMEN OF DEATH

Against an overpowering sorcery, against a barbaric tribe that lives for cruelty, the lord of the jungle risks his life in "Tarzan, the Magnificent"—the new Edgar Rice Burroughs serial strip now running in the daily Constitution.

IT IS THE WHITE STRANGER!—SEIZE HIM!—SEIZE HIM!

DON PUTS UP A TERRIFIC BATTLE BUT THE ODDS ARE TOO GREAT.

BLAST YOU!—SAY YOUR PRAYERS—

NO!—NO!—DON'T STRIKE!—SATAR WILL WANT HIM ALIVE.

AND THEY ARE ROUGHLY DRAGGED BACK TO FACE THE FURIOUS KING.

SIRE!—MAJESTY!—WHAT HAVE THEY DONE TO YOU?

SHUT UP, YOU FOOL!—AND GET ME OUT OF THIS—

SO YOUR LITTLE SCHEME DIDN'T WORK, YOU DOG!—BY THE VULTURE, YOU HAVE PILED UP A HEAVY RECKONING—NOW YOU SHALL HAVE A CHANCE TO PAY IT.

MORNING FINDS DON HELPLESSLY AWAITING SATAR'S VENGEANCE.

THIS LOOKS LIKE THE END—UNLESS KARIN AND HIS ARMY CAN GET HERE IN TIME.

Of course it's hard to keep beautiful during the trying summer days and evenings. Do you know just what to use in the line of cosmetics to bring out the best in complexion and hair? LILLIAN MAE—whose "Beauty According to You" is a feature of the woman's page of The Constitution every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, has an opportunity to try out the various new preparations even before they are put on the market—and her advice is passed on to Constitution readers.

WHEN DINOSAURS ROAMED THE EARTH

In determining the age of life on this planet, geologists divide the past into "eras" and "periods." An animal, dying, leaves his bones to petrify or "fossilize." By identifying the layer or stratum of rock where these bones are found, the paleontologist (pay-lee-on-tol-o-jist, a scientist specializing in the life of past geological periods) can know when that animal lived.

Dinosaurs lived during the "Mesozoic (mes-o-zo-ik) Era" or "Age of Reptiles," beginning about 190 millions of years ago and lasting about 135 millions of years. During most of this era there were no warm-blooded animals and all such, from mastodons to men and mice were not to appear until the next era, or "Age of Mammals." Until then Dinosaurs swam or wallowed, crawled or skipped, little dreaming with their tiny brains that some day their tribe would completely die out—and be forgotten until odd-looking animals wearing spectacles dug up their bones.

Dinosaurs were reptiles, and ranged in size from animals a few inches high to giants taller than a two-story house. Fossilized eggs with baby Dinosaurs inside have been found, so we know that many types were egg-laying. Today, for museums over the world, paleontologists dig out the petrified bones with care, assemble them into complete skeletons, and "restore" the form of the original reptile. The size and shape of each bone show experts just how much muscle was needed to move it or hold it in place during life. By applying clay muscles, bit by bit the animal takes shape and, if the imprint of the skin has been found in the rock, even surface scales and bumps can be duplicated. Thus, except for the color (which of course is guess-work) we are able to see what sorts of creatures roamed the earth millions of years ago, before Nature dreamed of making a mouse or a man.

DIRECTIONS FOR MAKING THIS DIORAMA

Cut Diorama sections from page (do not trim to outlines yet). To stiffen, paste to heavy wrapping paper. (Apply paste to heavy paper with swab of cloth.) Dry flat beneath magazines. Now trim neatly to exact outlines and make all cuts and slits. Score dotted lines with ruler and blunt table knife for folding.

Fold Foreground down in Frame, and it becomes part of a jungle lagoon. Paste Background ends even with the inside edges of Frame (see sketch), and the tree-fern at left swings forward to hook into edge of lagoon, Tab 1. Make the three upright folds in the Foreground and continue to key in tabs as they are numbered. The giant Brontosaurus walking along the bank keys into the mud at tabs 8, 9 and 10. The armored, spike-tailed Stegosaurus keys into mud at left. Paste down all tabs in rear.

WHEN DINOSAURS TROD THE EARTH

A scene which might have been during the Jurassic Period of the Mesozoic Era. One seventy-five foot Brontosaurus walks along the bank, while another feeds on fronds of tree-fern. Beyond him are several Dinosaurs of a similar form, called Diplodocus. At the left, the armored Stegosaurus with spiked tail, wades in the ooze. Pterodactyls (or flying reptiles) soar above the tops of tree-ferns and cycads.
